Helen Wills and John L.
John D., Jr., and Dante.
In Stovepipe Hat.
The Jewish Pageant.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

HELEN JACOBS defeats Helen Wills Moody at tennis, a feat comparing favorably with that of Joshua stopping the sun in its supposed trip around the earth.

John L. Sullivan's defeat by Corbett at New Orleans was like the defeat of Napoleon by Wellington. The real Napoleon was not present at Waterloo and the real Sullivan was not in the ring with Corbett. Had he been there, Mr. Corbett would not have remained.

Sullivan said:

"I am glad I was beaten by an American."

Helen Wills Moody, specializing a little more, may say:

"I am glad I was beaten by a California girl."

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, JR., urging Americans to back the NRA and the President, says:

"We found ourselves at the crossroads, hesitant and uncertain as to which road to take."

Mr. Rockefeller reminds you, without intending it, of the first line of Dante's Inferno.

Del mezzo del cammin di nostra vita
Mi ritrovai per una selva oscura,
Che la diretta via era smarrita.

Which means that Dante, middle-aged when he began his moral work, found himself "in the middle of the road of life," in an obscure forest, with the straight road not clear.

MR. ROCKEFELLER speaks in well-deserved praise of President Roosevelt, who, according to Mr. Rockefeller, says:

"I do not pretend to know all the roads, but I know something about them. I may take some wrong turnings, and we may have to retrace our steps at times, but if you will trust me and follow me and all keep together, I will lead you out."

Mr. Rockefeller and his assistants, including some of the ablest businessmen in America, believe that NRA will succeed. That should encourage others.

FIVE MORE have recently been beheaded in Germany, the most "picturesque" executions taking place at Torgau, where a widow, Emma Thieme, was beheaded with two men who had killed her own son at her request.

The executioner cut off each head with only one blow of his ax and, in accordance with German custom, which sometimes requires statesmen to wear "full dress" in the morning, the executioner was adorned with "stovepipe hat" and "swallow tail coat."

It may comfort a ghost, arrived at the other end of the journey, and taunted with being a murderer, to say:

"Yes, but my head was cut off by a man with a stovepipe hat."

Ghosts from other countries can't say that.

Gov. Lehman, of New York, and Samuel Untermyer, able lawyer, are chairmen of a Jewish pageant, "The Romance of a People," to be presented on September 14. You wonder at the announcement 62,200 singers, actors and dancers will "portray 4,000 years of Jewish history."

Actors, singers and dancers have had little to do with real greatness of the Jewish race, except, perhaps, David, when he danced before the ark. The best Jewish pageant would show Heine writing his poems, Disraeli fighting down the stupid contempt of British Tories, becoming their prime minister, and justifying his prediction: "Some day you will listen to me." Spinoza, working through a life of poverty, on the largest problems that confront the human intellect; Maimonides, greatest of the Jewish scholars, who if he came back might write a new 1933 "GUIDE TO THE PERPLEXED" and, possibly, the eight hundred Jews that died by fire in one day, refusing to save their lives by denying their religion.

AVIATION makes steady progress. Pan-American Airways will spend at once $3,250,000 for bigger, more powerful passenger ships.

Airplane travel now costs 6.1 cents a mile. In 1926 it was 12 cents a mile.

When the Diesel engine airplane is perfected, airplane travel at one cent a mile will show a profit and you will go from the Atlantic to the Pacific, or from New York to London, in one day for three dollars. Remember the prediction. You will probably live to see it realized.

THE RIGHT REV. WILLIAM MERCER GREEN, bishop coadjutor of the diocese of Southern Mississippi, thinks this country has placed too much confidence in "those from the masses" during the last two hundred years, and says:

"Leaders were born, never made."

No worm should argue with a bishop, but it may be pointed out that when the country relied on such samples of "the masses" as Benjamin Franklin, Abraham Lincoln, Thomas A. Edison and Henry Ford they made no serious mistake.

JAMES CANNON, JR., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, sailing for Europe, with some notion that the Eighteenth Amendment will be repealed, says:

"We must and will start again at the very beginning and build back until we again secure national prohibition."

His best friends can only hope that Bishop Cannon will live until that day.

Human beings will eventually

AUTO CODE TERMS STIR A. F. OF L. HEADS

1,500,000 Volunteers In Nation-Wide Canvass

On page 17 appears the text of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson's speech opening the drive to put the country under the Blue Eagle.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28. (AP.) — Labor provisions in the automobile competitive code, just promulgated by President Roosevelt, bid fair to be tested in the courts.

While unwilling to be quoted, an official in the inner councils of organized labor informed reporters today the position of the American Federation of Labor remained that certain stipulations on relations between employes and employers should not have been left in the code.

Describing the victory of the automobile manufacturers as prorably the first step by industrialists to have the same wording inserted in all codes, the lobor speaker intimated that as soon as cases believed to be violators of the law are found, court action would be begun.

DISPUTED PARAGRAPH

The paragraph, protested repeatedly by the labor advisory board of the Recovery Administration stated that its provisions did not constitute any nullification of the law giving employes the right to organize without restraint from their employers and to bargain collectively.

It provided, however, that the employers would retain the right to hire, promote and discharge workers on the basis of individual merit and without regard to affiliation with any organization.

Despite the assertion that no qualification of the law was sought, organized labor was de-

COAL LEADERS IN NEW PARLEY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Hugh J. Johnson, Federal Recovery chieftain, was represented today as hopeful that new conferences of administration officials with non-union bituminous coal operators and mine union leaders would result in an agreement on a code for the industry.

He again was said to be ready, however, to impose a code tomorrow if renewed negotiations failed to bring a settlement.

Representatives of the non-union operators from the Appalachian fields met Deputy Administrator Kenneth M. Simpson while the union leaders conferred with the NRA counsel Donald Richberg.

What proposals had been placed before the two groups remained undisclosed. The primary points of disagreement have been minimum wages, maximum hours, unionization and the related question of the "check-off" deduction of union dues from miners' pay.

Bridesmaid Today, Fatally Burned In Her Car

MRS. FRANCES WATKINS SUSMAN, 26 . . TRAPPED AT WHEEL

Mrs. Susman, 5863 Eilsworth avenue, burned to death today when she was trapped at the wheel of a car in the East End as she was driving Thelma van Hoppy, 20, seriously injured, whose bridesmaid she was to have been today. The car's gasoline tank blew up.

Sleeping Sickness Kills Boy Here

BRIDESMAID DIES IN CAR BLAZE

Night Club Hostess, Friend Burned on Wedding Eve

A shower of blazing gasoline sprayed death over a wedding party in the East End early today.

A night club hostess who was to be married today was injured seriously. She is Thelma van Hoppy, 20.

Her intended bridesmaid was burned to death. She was Mrs. Frances Watkins Susman, 26, of 5863 Ellsworth avenue.

A male companion, Lawrence Meyer, 24, was hurt badly.

GAS TANK EXPLODES

The gasoline tank exploded and sent up spurts of fire when their car struck a pole and caromed against the curbing at Penn and Frankstown avenues.

Mrs. Susman, trapped at the wheel, was burned to death. Spectators dragged Miss van Hoppy and Meyer from the car, burned and otherwise injured.

According to Mrs. Susman's parents, Miss van Hoppy was to be married at Wellsburg, W. Va., today to Allen Haid, announcer at WWSW. She and Mrs. Susman, with whom she lived, were en route home when the accident occurred.

Mrs. Susman died an hour later in Pittsburgh Hospital. Miss van Hoppy and Meyer, who was described as an attendant at a gasoline station, were reported in serious condition.

VISITS BRIDE

Haid rushed to the bedside of his sweetheart today after he had been called upon to make this announcement over the radio:

"Good morning, ladies and gentlemen. A happy and cheery Monday morning to everyone!"

The engaged couple had already rented furnished rooms in Spahr street and Miss Van Hoppy had quit her job as hostess at the Town Club in East Liberty, preliminary to their marriage.

Lawrence Lauer, of the Downtown Y. M. C. A., and Henry Michael, of Glenshaw, helped drag Miss Van Hoppy and Meyer from the car, which was said to have been borrowed from a friend of Mrs. Susman's. The car narrowly missed dropping into the entrance of a comfort station on the sidewalk.

America's Most Effective Arm of Defense

GOVERNMENTAL ignorance and indifference, political stupidity and cupidity, are tending to drive the best men out of our national airplane corps and reducing that arm of service to a level far below that of ALL other important nations.

In fact, the government airplane service, the most essential and most effective arm of the nation's defense and safety, has become the sport of petty politicians.

In addition to an equipment of planes greatly inferior in number, speed and quality to that of other nations, the government is now endeavoring to create through bad pay and bad treatment a service of pilots equally inferior.

Commercial airplane companies are as a general proposition more progressive in equipment and management than the government.

But they, too, are unappreciative of the importance of developing a service of pilots of the very first class.

As a matter of fact, commercial airplane companies can be made by government, and should be made, to furnish a thoroughly adequate reserve in planes and pilots for the governmental service of national defense.

BUT COMMERCIAL airplane companies, like the government, are disposed to treat pilots badly and to pay them poorly, thus depriving this service and this force in reserve for national defense of the best possible personnel.

A fatuous policy of this kind not only shows little consideration for the comfort and safety of the passengers, but in the last analysis shows as little appreciation of the fullest possibilities of development in the whole program of commercial aviation.

And finally, it displays a lack of sympathy in the patriotic plan of co-operation with the government for purposes of national defense.

If the government had an intelligent policy with regard to its own airplane forces, it would be in a better position to compel a liberal policy on the part of the airplane companies.

If the government were far-seeing with respect to the importance of airplane development to the nation, commercially and governmentally, it could immensely encourage airplane manufacture, airplane lines of transport and travel, and general extension of the use of airplanes, and an air-minded attitude on the part of the whole public.

THE GOVERNMENT has at its service not only the purchasing power and patronage which could be employed in creating a thoroughly modern air force and one adequate for the defense of this great nation, but the opportunity for inducing the most skillful and most courageous and most patriotic of our younger citizens to enter into and to remain within the services of national aviation, and commercial aviation as well.

This desirable result cannot be accomplished through indifference and neglect in the matter of governmental equipment and organization, nor through bad treatment and poor pay with respect to the personnel.

It must be accomplished through the highest scientific supervision of the Department of Aviation, through intelligent expenditure, through efficient organization, and adequate compensation.

Governmental standards should be imposed upon private aviation enterprise.

The government has its codes and its contracts with which to compel adherence to high standards on the part of the private airplane companies.

LET THE government use the airplane code to compel the highest efficiency on the part of pilots, and considerate treatment and adequate compensation on the part of the airplane companies.

Let the government employ the airplane mail contracts not only to establish proper treatment of pilots as an essential requirement, but to secure the establishment in private enterprise of such a high standard of efficiency that this corps of trained and competent men will always be able to furnish

LAD IN COMA SINCE LAST THURSDAY

Mysterious Malady Causes First Death Here in Years

Sleeping sickness, a malady reputed to mystify physicians almost as much as laymen, today took the life of a 15-year-old boy in Pittsburgh. This is the first such fatality here in years.

William Clough, who had been in a coma most of the time since last Friday, died in South Side Hospital.

The boy, with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clough, of 8126 Kimbaek street, Chicago, had been visiting the J. W. Greene family at 220 Arden road, Mt. Lebanon.

STRICKEN THURSDAY

The Cloughs were driving here from Boston last Thursday when William began to show the symptoms of the malady, which is known as encephalitis.

Friday he was taken to the hospital and at 7:45 a. m. today he died. In the interim he had had few conscious moments.

Two Chicago physicians were in Pittsburgh treating the boy. It was said that once before in Chicago he had been stricken similarly.

An epidemic of sleeping sickness broke out in St. Louis last month. Physicians seemed puzzled by the cause and as to the treatment.

In Ork Park, Ill., the best known case of sleeping sickness, Patricia Maguire, comely secretary, has been asleep since January, 1932.

THAW ESTATE WILLED KIN

Benjamin Thaw, Sr., who died August 19, left his entire estate to his three children and two grandchildren in his will probated today.

The will, which made no mention of bequests to any persons outside the immediate family except household retainers, gave no estimate of the estate.

Dated August 16, only three days before Thaw died at the age of 74, the will was signed by his mark in lieu of his signature.

Under the terms of the will, three-fourths of the estate is divided equally among the three children, Mrs. Henrietta Thaw Slade, Benjamin Thaw, Jr., and William Thaw. A fourth part was bequeathed to Alexander Blair Thaw, III, and Benjamin Dows Thaw, children of his deceased son, Stephen Dows Thaw.

Benjamin and William Thaw and the Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company were named trustees for the children. At the age of 21 they are to receive half of their share and the remainder when they reach 28.

The two sons and the trust company also were named executors of the will without bond.

Carl Henning Land, in his employ at the time of Mr. Thaw's death, was left $500, and $100 each is to be given to other servants in the employ of the home the last year or more.

Anderson was listed, along with 1,190 others, in the special enrollment conducted by the County Department of Assessment and Revision of Taxes, which sent special assessors into the Twenty-second Ward to enroll those who had been missed in the spring.

Lee A. Riordan, chief county investigator, declared his men had found 169 assessed from vacant houses, business addresses, schools and other "phony" places. He recommended they be stricken off.

MOLEY DENIES ROOSEVELT FEUD LED TO RESIGNATION

PREFERS POST AS EDITOR, HE SAYS

Astor Cash to Back Journal Upholding New Deal

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Raymond Moley, erstwhile dean of the Roosevelt "brain trust," today denied emphatically that any rift between the President and himself caused his resignation to assume the editorship of a new political weekly in support of the the new deal to be published by Vincent Astor.

In an interview at the Astor offices, Prof. Moley said:

"The report that I am resigning as assistant Secretary of State as the result of a disagreement is interesting, but it doesn't happen to be true."

Vincent Astor, friend of the President, and first of his family to enter the publishing field, nodded in agreement. W. Averell Harriman, chairman of the board of the Union Pacific Railroad, and another intimate friend of President Roosevelt, also nodded affirmatively. Harriman is associated with the new publishing enterprise.

CITES CORRESPONDENCE

Moley marshalled circumstantial evidence to prove his point.

He referred to correspondence over a long period to show that he had planned just such a move. He said:

"In March, on the train to Washington with Mr. Roosevelt, I said my official job was temporary. I had the idea of public service but I would rather do this publishing job than anything else in the world.

"I prefer an editorial job to a political job. I have been doing free-lance writing for 25 years."

The professor was asked to comment upon his reported conflict with Secretary of State Cordell Hull which came to a climax at the London Economic Conference. Stroking hisc hin nevrously, Moley said:

"I am not aware of any conflict. Of course, there have always been differences of opinion between men in public office on matters of public questions."

Moley was asked:

"Would you welcome a contribution to your new publication from Secretary of State Hull.?"

Moley parried the question at first. Harriman laughed it off. Astor declared that the questioner was "trying to steal our thunder."

Then Prof. Moley replied:

"We would welcome an article by anybody, if it's a good article and on a public question, whether we agree with it or not."

PITTMAN TO FORE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—(INS.)—The resignation of Prof. Raymond Moley as assistant secretary of state led to considerable speculation in the capital today as to who is to become President Roosevelt's No. 1 adviser in foreign affairs, particularly in the matter of foreign debt adjustment due to start in about a month.

The natural answer to the question of his successor would be Secretary of State Cordell Hull, who is as sincere in his internationalism as Moley is in his nationalism. Yet the belief prevails in well-informed quarters that when the time comes to negotiate the debts Mr. Roosevelt will have other counsel than his Secretary of State sitting in.

It would not be surprising to see Senator Key Pittman, of Nevada, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, playing an increasingly important part in foreign policy in the administration.

Roosevelt and Norman To Talk at Tea

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt delved into the domestic and international economic problems today in an important series of meetings with his aides and foreign experts.

Secretary Ickes, the administrator of the $3,300,000,000 public works program, flew to the summer White House early in the afternoon to discuss with the President means of speeding up this job-making undertaking.

Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, reported to the chief executive at a luncheon conference. His smile indicated plenty of credit available for the nation in its recovery effort.

Mr. Roosevelt set aside the tea hour for a talk with Montagu Norman, the governor of the Bank of England, and George Harrison, the governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. He is interested to hear what they have been doing and talking about in the way of efforts for stabilization of currency in foreign exchange, but there is no intimation that he feels the time right to bring this about.

Tonight, Postmaster General Farley comes in to talk over patronage. The list of callers was significant, but it appeared that Mr. Roosevelt was interested primarily in checking up on government affairs prior to his departure on Thursday for an ocean cruise.

During the morning he visited briefly with Judge Harlan Rippey, of Rochester, a Democratic leader in Monroe County. He also announced the appointment of Antonio C. Gonzales, of New York, as minister to Panama.

Mr. Aimee's Glad They Didn't Use Ostrich Eggs

SEATTLE, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Dave Hutton, portly husband of Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, was philosophical today about his second experience on the receiving end of an egg barrage.

"Thank goodness," said the 250-pound baritone, "there are no ostrich farms in this part of the country."

Hutton was "telling his side of the story" at a vaudeville performance Saturday night when the eggs started to fly. He neatly dodged the first shot, possibly from similar practice gained on a California stage.

The second hit Don Smith, orchestra leader, squarely on the chest.

Then H. W. Pickrem, 26, decided his aim was so bad he'd better leave the theater, police said later. Intercepted, he posted a $25 bond on a disorderly conduct charge.

SCHOOL DESPITE SLEEP MALADY

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—St. Louis children will tuck their books under their arms and go to school September 5, despite the epidemic of "sleeping sickness" which today had taken 39 lives and affected 265 patients.

Dr. Henry Gerling, superintendent of instruction, said he found that comparatively few children had been attacked by encephalitis, and that if the epidemic should spread further, the children would receive better protection from the malady in the schoolroom than in their homes.

Epidemiologists studying the disease, had before them today a report of William Godin, St. Louis resident, who said he saw in his yard an insect similar to the tsetse fly, which is the carrier of sleeping sickness in Africa. Godin said he spent some time in Borneo, where he saw tsetse flies, and that the insect in his yard strongly resembled the African insect.

TEXAS LINES UP FOR REPEAL 2 TO 1

State of Washington Votes Tomorrow; Wets Face Fight

Associated Press.

Anti-prohibitionists, having tucked Texas away in their fold, turned their attention today to the state of Washington, which votes on repeal tomorrow.

Texas, home of Senator Morris Sheppard, who is often called the "father of the Eighteenth Amendment," voted 2 to 1 on Saturday to wipe the amendment from the Constitution.

The Lone Star state was the twenty-third in a row to approve repeal. If Washington follows the example, the repeal drive will be two-thirds of the way to its goal.

'GRAVE DANGER'

J. C. Herbsman, of Seattle, who heads the campaign of his state's association for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, said, however, that there was "grave danger" of a prohibition victory in Washington unless repealists record a heavy vote.

He charged that the Legislature, in requiring a referendum through each of 46 legislative districts rather than for the state at large, failed to provide for an expression of the "will of the majority." Prohibitionists praised the arrangement as fair.

Postmaster General James A. Farley reiterated last night his prediction of early repeal. He said:

"The vote in Texas justifies the prediction I have made repeatedly—that the Eighteenth Amendment will be repealed by November 7."

OTHERS TO VOTE

Besides Washington, 14 other states have set definite dates for repeal referenda this year. They are:

September 5, Vermont; September 11, Maine; September 12, Colorado, Maryland and Minnesota; September 19, Idaho and New Mexico; October 3, Virginia; October 10, Florida; November 7, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Carolina and Utah. Some other states may vote this year.

States which have voted to ratify repeal are Michigan, Wisconsin, Wyoming, Rhode Island, New Jersey, Delaware, Indiana, New York, Massachusetts, Illinois, Iowa, Connecticut, New Hampshire, California, West Virginia, Arkansas, Oregon, Alabama, Tennessee, Nevada, Arizona, Missouri and Texas.

The explosion occurred in an unused unit of the refinery. Officials began an inquiry immediately. It was believed one or more of the injured might die.

DETROIT BANK FRAUD PROBE CERTAIN

Books to Be Scanned For Criminal Evidence

DETROIT, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Judge Harry B. Keidan, sitting as Detroit's one-man bank investigating jury, said today he will order conservators of the Union Guardian Trust Company and the Detroit Trust Company to examine the books of their institutions to determine whether or not there have been criminal acts in conduct or management.

The action, he said, follows the testimony of United States Senator James Couzens, (Rep.), of Michigan, before the jury that the Union Guardian Trust Company "jockeyed" the $10,000,000 children's fund of Michigan which the Senator founded out of $200,000, and that the closed First National Bank-Detroit and the Detroit Trust Company "switched" funds in order to increase their respective cash positions.

Arthur J. Lacy, attorney for Senator Couzens and for the Detroit Trust Company, on the stand today, testified that so far as he has been able to learn, there has been no criminal action in the conduct of the trust company.

Lacy said one of the chief obstacles of the federal government in reorganizing the closed First National Bank-Detroit and the Guardian National Bank of Commerce, specific objects of inquiry by the jury, was the submission by local leaders of numerous plans of reorganization, all of which left out any provision for assessment of stockholders.

Wilson W. Mills, former chairman of the board of the First National, charged by the Rev. Father Charles A. Coughlin, militant priest, with presenting false reports of the bank's condition, today requested permission to return to the witness stand following Lacy.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 28.—"Lindbergh cakes" and "Lindbergh puddings" blossomed in the restaurants and cafes of Copenhagen today as Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh took this ancient city by storm.

In general, the public respected the Lindberghs' request for privacy, but enterprising bakers and cafe proprietors did a rushing business with creations named after the distinguished visitors.

SOME BOARDS of health are distressed because milk drinking has diminished considerably since beer came back. This is bad for health, where it applies to children, at least, and bad for farmers.

However, good light beer, in moderation, is also a food, although it has not the food value of milk. It is certainly better to have the consumption of milk reduced by beer than to have it reduced by whisky and gin.

EX-HOMESTEAD PAIR KILLED

International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 28.—A double funeral service will be conducted here probably Wednesday for Mr. and Mrs. Rilace Barnes, victims of an automobile accident in Anaheim, Cal., Thursday.

The automobile in which they were riding with friends, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Curtis, collided with one driven by Maj. Anderson, Santa Ana businessman.

They moved from Homestead, Pa., 13 years ago to Santa Ana, Cal., where Barnes was connected with a public utility. They had planned to celebrate their fourteenth wedding anniversary next Thursday.

Barnes' two sisters, Marjorie Barnes and Mrs. Charles Hoffman, were to arrive tonight from Homestead Park, Pa. His body may be taken there for burial. Mrs. Barnes' body will be cremated and interred here. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. Fischer, reside in Walnut Park, a suburb of Los Angeles.

BATHTUB DEATH LETTERS TO BE READ AT TRIAL

Defense to Introduce Notes Slain Wife Wrote to 'Rival'

By ERNESTINE BALL
International News Service.

SAN JOSE, Cal., Aug. 28.—What kind of letters does a wife write to the woman she suspects is supplanting her in her husband's affections?

Allene Lamson's letters to Sara Kelley—defense attorneys today admitted that there are such letters—will be introduced in court.

Sara Kelley, former Stanford University co-ed, is the woman, the prosecution claims, who was responsible for the poison of jealousy spreading in the once happy campus home of David and Allene Lamson.

Was the death of Allene Lamson an accident? The defense has already scored many points in favor of that theory, backed up by expert medical theory.

A murder? Yes, says the state and brings David Lamson, brilliant, handsome, young executive in the Stanford University publishing business, into court charged with killing his demure, dark-eyed young wife, mother of his three-year-old baby girl.

LETTERS TO BE READ

Very soon, perhaps tomorrow if the trial proceeds at the same fast tempo, here in this courtroom in this peaceful orchard valley, David Lamson is going to hear the contents of the letters Allene wrote to Sara Kelley.

The day that letters are introduced into court is usually a day of blushes, of snickers from the excitement-eaters who crowd murder trials, of resolves from those not enmeshed in the trial that never, never will they put anything down on paper that reveals their emotions.

According to the defense, Allene Lamson's letters are going to establish a new precedent. But then everything in this murder trial is unique in the experience of the amateur crime squad. It is concerned with highly educated people who lived for the plaudits of the world of respectable culture.

'BREAKING HER HEART'

No outbursts of unguarded jealousy in Allene's letters to Sara Kelley, says the defense. Friendly letters, not vehement, not a study in insulting coolness, nothing hostile between the lines. Just the sort of notes any well-bred Stanford graduate like Allene Lamson would write to a former Stanford co-ed who was seeing her husband for business and professional reasons.

The prosecution will attempt to prove that David Lamson's frequent trips to Sacramento, where the blonde, attractive Sara Kelley lived, were "breaking her heart" and Allene so told a Stanford friend.

The defense maintains that when Sara Kelley takes the stand she will convincingly explain that it was business which brought David Lamson so frequently to her home town. Sara Kelley will explain that business—a garden page for a syndicated publication.

CHILD VISITS FATHER

She will bring with her letters that Allene wrote her—controlled and courteous—and the jury must judge if these are the letters of a jealousy tormented wife.

David Lamson comes into court today sustained by the many visits to the jail from his family over the week-end, and especially by the precious moments with his baby girl, little Allene.

The child, adored by both parents, an unusually beautiful baby, is brought to the jail for these visits by David's devoted sister, Dr. Margaret Lamson, and then returned to the little house on the Stanford campus where mother and father once made this child the very core of their heart's ambition.

The smile that David Lamson shows in the courtroom is not the smile that manifests itself for his baby girl, his sisters, his mother.

SMILES AND SMILES

There are smiles and smiles! The smile that is a nervous grimace. The laughter that is hysteria. The hysterical have shrieked with laughter as well as sobs.

The psychologist sitting in the courtroom would tell us it is unfair to say that David Lamson is unfeeling, that he must be guilty because he smiles now and then.

Back of those smiles may be twitching nerves that find an outlet in a smile. The French have a saying:

"He laughs that he may not weep."

Innocent or guilty? David Lamson must not be judged guilty just because he has resolved not to break down in courtroom.

Son Best Man as Rogers, Oil Magnate, Weds

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28—(INS.)—Col. Henry Huddleston Rogers, Standard Oil millionaire, and Mrs. Pauline Van der Voort Dresser were married quietly at Southampton, L. I., today. Their engagement, which took society by surprise, was announced two weeks ago.

The ceremony was performed at Sand Blown, the home of the Barclay H. Warburtons, which the bride has been occupying this season. Only relatives of the couple were present.

Friends of Col. Rogers explained he is anxious to join his daughter, Millicent, and her husband, Arturo Peralta Ramos, who are abroad with their children. Col. and Mrs. Rogers will sail Wednesday, meet Millicent in London, and then honeymoon on the Mediterranean.

The wedding took place at noon. The Rev. Mr. Clements, of Greenwich, Conn., officiated. Mrs. Dresser was given in marriage by her father, Charles R. Van der Voort, of Jamestown, N. Y. Henry Huddleston Rogers, Jr., acted as his father's best man. Mrs. Dresser's sons, Charles Van der Voort Dresser and Bradley Sherman Dresser, were the only others present.

This is Col. Rogers' third marriage. His first wife, the former Mary Benjamin, secured a divorce in Holland in 1929. The same year he married Mrs. Basil Miles, of Philadelphia. This marriage terminated in Reno last May.

The marriage of the new Mrs. Rogers to the late Carl K. Dresser, an oil operator, of Bradford, Pa., and Tulsa, Okla., was dissolved by divorce in 1927. Mrs. Rogers is a descendant of a long line of colonial ancestors.

Vanderbilts Take Yacht For 'Bridge Honeymoon'

International News Service.

CANNES, France, Aug. 28.—It will be a real "bridge honeymoon" for the Harold S. Vanderbilts.

The millionaire American sportsman, also a bridge player with a world reputation, revealed today that he has no fear of marital dissension from the game, and that he and his bride, the former Gertrude L. Conaway, of Philadelphia, would spend their honeymoon playing bridge aboard the yacht Argosy, which they have chartered for a Mediterranean cruise.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger V. Cutler, of New York, will go along as bridge partners.

Vanderbilt admitted he knew little about his bride's ability to play bridge, that he was a little uncertain about her, and that "the Cutlers may own this yacht coming back."

The Vanderbilts arrived here yesterday aboard the liner Rex, on which they sailed from New York directly following their marriage.

22 SHARE $3,200 REWARD FOR CAPTURE OF BLONDE, DAGUE

JUDGE SETTLES CLAIM LONG IN DISPUTE

Arizona and Missouri Posses Get Cash, Hopi Paid $250

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Aug. 20.—Twenty-two persons today shared in the $3,200 reward offered nearly four years ago for the capture of Irene Shrader and her gunmen pals, Walter Glenn Dague and Tom Crawford. The division was decided in the Lawrence County courts by Judge R. L. Hildebrand, just in Corp. Brady Paul death trial for which Irene and Dague were electrocuted. Crawford, an escaped convict, was shot and killed about a year ago in Missouri.

Fifteen members of the Arizona posse which tracked Irene and her salesman sweetheart to their dessert lair in the Estrella Mountains and seven members of the Cape Girardeau (Mo.) police force shared in the split. The shares ranged from $250 to $25.

Horace B. Corr, Leon Sundust, J. C. Carter, Oscar Roberts, Albert W. Rhodes and George Prewitt, of the Arizona posse, each received $250. Paul Cordova, another Arizonian, was given $125; William Bobby, E. H. Johnson, Jose Smith and Joe Keith each received $86; Joseph Chapman, $75; Miles A. Chumbly, $40, and Gus Dobrinsky and Charles H. Wright, each $25.

Charles Schreer, C. L. Childs, Morris Huckstep, John Wilson, B. L. Hutson, Paul McNeely, Robert J. Reed and W. A. Yount, making up the Cape Girardeau posse, each received $121.25.

Sundust, a member of the Hopi Indian tribe, led the Arizona deputies to the mountain stronghold to which Irene and Dague had fled by tracking them across the desert. He and the five deputies with him received the largest shares.

The Missouri policemen came came into the picture about a year ago with the revelation that the gunman who had "shot it out" with them was Tom Crawford. Identification was made through finger prints, recorded by the National Bureau of Identification from his Army records.

Stork Delays Jobless Man's Dash to Work

Clarence J. Fowler will probably be late for work

He got a call, after a long enforced loaf, to be back in Canton, O., his home.

So he and his young wife, Anna, each 24, set out last night from New York on a excursion train.

This morning when the train halted in the Pennsylvania Station here the young couple dashed madly through the station for a doctor and half an hour later from the office of the Pennsylvania Railroad medical examiner, Dr. W. G. Goodman announced:

"It's a boy."

Two hours later, with mother and the 8-pound baby doing very well, an ambulance from the Allegheny General Hospital stopped by and the mother and child were bundled in it and taken to the hospital.

The Fowlers have been living in New York with her relatives for several months, while the husband sought employment. Returning with them were Mrs. Fowlers' two young brothers.

The young brothers, George Dragovich, 14, and Sam, 16, with Mr. Fowler took a bus for Canton when they found the mother and her first baby doing nicely.

U. S. IN CHICAGO CRIME WAR

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—The federal government prepared to take a hand today in Chicago's war on criminals and question Jack McGurn, high on the police list as a public enemy, about the kidnaping of John Factor.

Warrants for the arrest of 25 others were issued under the new criminal reputation law, and more than 200 more will be asked for known hoodlums, police said.

McGurn was arrested Saturday while competing in the Western Open Golf tournament.

DENVER, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Puzzled at the disappearance of Bernard Bitterman, missing since last Thursday night, authorities are searching for him in Denver on the possibility a note received from Cheyenne, Wyo., indicating he was held by kidnapers, may have been a hoax.

If the 28-year-old department store buyer is held by abductors for ransom, authorities have expressed the belief Bitterman has been mistaken for a relative of David May, founder of stores of that name.

PARIS PLEDGES AID TO AUSTRIA

PARIS, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Premier Edouard Daladier's visit to intricate fortifications along the German frontier after proclaiming that France had resolved to guarantee Austrian independence aroused keen interest in political circles today.

In a statement issued before he left to inspect trenches and dugouts over a 125-mile front, the Premier declared that France wants peace, but "it is a duty to assure our own liberty, which will be better respected when it is known we are capable of guaranteeing it." He continued:

"We must also be on guard to see that decisions of the League of Nations and the Hague Court of Arbitration are observed and maintained.

"They have proclaimed the political and economic independence of Austria. We are resolved to guarantee it."

Meanwhile, several Socialist members of the Chamber of Deputies, speaking at a meeting at Angouleme, said they feared war within a few weeks if Fascist control should spread to Austria.

Donora Girl's Slaying Holds Second Suspect

Father of 3 Children Blames Friend For Shooting

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Benjamin Weiss, 30, of Brooklyn, was held without bail in Homicide Court today in connection with the fatal shooting last Saturday morning of Rose Griygiel, 18-year-old unemployed waitress of Donora, Pa.

The girl was shot as she struggled to prevent two men from entering the apartmentt she shared with two other waitresses. She had come here only four days previous in search of work.

Weiss, married and the father of three children, surrendered on the day of the shooting. A companion, Jack Miller, was caught as he fled from the rooming house and is being held on a charge of homicide. He was accidentally shot in the hand during the struggle to enter the apartment.

Police said Weiss was identified by Rose Manetta, McKeesport, Pa., and Anna Perdok, of Donora, as one of the two men who tried to force their way into the room the girls shared with the slain woman.

Weiss' police record shows he was arrested and freed as a suspect in North Scituate, R. I., three years ago.

Miss Perdok and Miss Manetta are being held as material witnesses.

Weiss was questioned for several hours. Police said he placed the blame for the shooting of Miss Griygiel on Miller.

She was shot in the neck as her roommates fled down a fire escape in their night clothing.

Rose Griygiel, 18, left her parents and five brother in Donora three weeks ago to hunt a job in New York.

4 HURT, HOUSES DESTROYED IN N. S. BLAST

Mystery Explosion Wrecks Home Of Barber

A mysterious explosion, followed by fire, early today destroyed three houses in Lake street, North Side, seriously damaged four others across the street and jarred the plaster from the walls of nearly a dozen houses a block away. Four were injured.

Found in her home at 1264 Lake street, Mrs. Catherine Wittler, 39, was taken to Allegheny General Hospital in a serious condition.

Mrs. Wittler collapsed, presumably from shock, her head hitting a kitchen sink. She suffered a probable fracture of the jaw and is believed to have fractured her skull.

Police were investigating the theory that the blast may have been an aftermath of the North Side's bitter warfare among barbers.

BARBER'S HOME BLASTED

The blast occurred in the home of Sam Lintni, at 1250 Lake street, police said. Lintni's barber shop at 1523 Beaver avenue was stoned several weeks ago because of his alleged refusal to join a barber's organization.

Lintni and his family were absent at the time of the explosion, visiting relatives in Greensburg, according to reports.

Houses adjoining the Lintni home at 1252 and 1254 Lake street, destroyed by fire, were unoccupied.

Across the street at 1249 to 1255 Lake street, flames seared the front of the buildings, while flying debris shattered windows, imperiling the occupants.

The injured, treated at the scene, were Joseph Garber, 48, and his wife, Monaca. Both suffered lacerations.

The family of Albert Goetz, at 1256 Lake street, including his wife, Margaret, and four children, Albert, 12; Mary, 10; Thomas, 8, and Betty Clara, 6, fled to the street in night attire when the explosion shook the adjoining dwelling.

GLASS SHOWERS BABY

Ronald Williamson, 21-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Williamson, of 1249 Lake street, sleeping near an open window in the front of the house, escaped injury when showered with glass and debris.

He stood up on his bed and cooed at the flames in the adjoining home. His mother wrapped him in a blanked and carried him to the street.

Billy Williamson, 12, sleeping in a third-floor room, was temporarily trapped when the blast jammed the door. He squeezed his way out and ran from the building.

A dozen houses in Columbus avenue, a block from the scene of blast, were damaged. Plaster was jarred from the walls, police said.

William Wilson, a bus driver, reported to police he had rescued a woman and two children trapped by flames in an adjoining yard.

A newly-wed, who arrived in Pittsburgh from Sicily 10 days ago, Mrs. Michael Ponzio, 22, suffered shock when hurled from her bed by the blast. She and her husband, staying with relatives, were to start housekeeping today.

The blast, felt over a widespread area in the Manchester district, did damage estimated by firemen at $20,000.

NEW MONARCHY FORECAST BY HINDENBURG

Hitler Warns Reich Will Fight to Keep Saar

BERLIN, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Germans regarded as handwriting on the wall today the broad hints of two leaders regarding restoration of the monarchy and the Reich's claims to the Saar territory.

Venerable President Paul von Hindenburg said he was thinking of his "kaiser, the king and lord," when he accepted as a gift from East Prussia a forest estate adjoining his ancestral home at Neudeck.

Chancellor Adolf Hitler told a crowd of 200,000 that Germany, without wanting a new war or proposing to annex anything foreign, would never renounce her claims to the Saar.

"The Flying Chancellor" in his swift airplane flew to both gatherings, about 700 miles apart—the demonstration at Niederwald Mountain, near the southwestern border, and exercises for Von Hindenburg at Tannenberg, near the eastern extremity.

REVERES KAISER

Thousands of persons—representatives of the old imperial army in uniforms, an honor company of the standing army, brown-shirted attendants, people from every German province, coal miners, farmers and others—nodded knowingly as Hindenburg said:

"I am thinking with reverence, fidelity, and gratitude of my kaiser, the king and lord, in this hour, when I am thinking also of my deceased comrades in arms, and when I proceed to thank you for the gift."

He deposited a wreath in memory of his fallen comrades commemorating the victory of the former army leader over Russian forces in the World War.

Automobile clubs throughout Germany arranged a tour to East Prussia through the Polish territory that separates it from the rest of the Reich to assure the East Prussians that they intend to stand by the province.

TO HOLD SAAR

Before the Niederwald monument Hitler predicted that in 1935 Saar residentts would vote in a plebiscite to rejoin the Fatherland. Now under League of Nations control, they will determine whether to remain a semi-autonomous state, become a part of France, or rejoin Germany. The Chancellor said:

"They lie when they say the German people are being terrorized. I am willing to appeal to the electorate and am confident five-sixths will back our program.

"We do not want a new war, but if holy treaties are binding, they must bind our opponents as well as ourselves. We desire an understanding with France, but will never abandon the Saar."

At both the eastern and western gates of the Reich Chancellor Hitler proclaimed Germany's determination that past sacrifices for the unity of the fatherland should not have been made in vain.

GREETS AIR RACERS

He made a brief intermediate landing at Tempelhof Airdrome to greet pilots who have engaged in a three-day around Germany race.

Emphatically the Chancellor attacked foreign allegations that terror is ruling Germany. He said:

"It is not terror—it is fate. Germany has re-arisen. We have liberated Germany from the terror of those who did not want a strong Germany.

"Many people abroad still fail to understand that socialism and nationalism have become one here.

"Whom God joined let no man sunder."

Elliott Roosevelt Sees Peril to Nation Through Neglect of Air Forces

Balbo's Flight Clear Indication of War's Menace to U. S.

By ELLIOTT ROOSEVELT
Aviation Editor, Hearst Newspapers
(Copyright, 1933, by Hearst Newspapers.)

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 27.—I hope that those who read what I have to say regarding aviation as an industry and as a national economic and social necessity, will not be those who are today taking part in its advancement or who are today taking advantage and accepting its undoubted service. I aim to reach the average man and woman who have a vague idea that the industry is growing in importance in their own community, but do not know how it actually affects their lives.

This country has one man to thank for an object lesson. I refer to that great Italian flier, Balbo.

Twenty-four ships flew with ease from Italy to Chicago and returned. Those 24 ships were fighting craft—instruments of war capable of annihilating the whole populations of cities the sizes of New York, Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

WARFARE FEARSOME

When 24 ships can fly with ease from Rome to Chicago, 2,400 can likewise accomplish the task. Modern warfare is a fearsome thing to contemplate, but we must contemplate its results and guard against the possibility of its recurrence.

Is this nation prepared to meet attack and launch a counter attack in case of war? "No," is the sad but unmistakably answer.

This country has been a pioneering nation since its birth. We point with pride to the first two men who ever flew, Wilbur and Orville Wright. We point with equal pride to such great aviators as Lindbergh, Byrd, Amelia Earhart and scores of others.

We remember how our Navy gloriously made aviation history by the flight of the NC4. And, the early world's record speeds attained by Lieut. Al Williams and others in the Pulitzer trophy race and the Schneider cup races. But, it's a long time since all those records were made.

Yes, we held the world's speed record when it was around the 265--an-hour mark, but England and Italy have long ago boosted that mark to around 460 miles an hour.

Today it is pretty hard to find a single record which this country holds.

Why is this?

ARMY, NAVY LAG

Well, let's get around to facing the facts. Our Army and Navy air equipment is so far behind the rest of the world that today we rank fourth among the other nations of the world in the matter of numbers of airplanes in active military service.

England, France and Italy far surpass us in military strength in the air.

Nobody in this country seems to realize that Japan and Soviet Russia are concentrating on increasing their strength in the air so that shortly they too, will surpass us.

I believe our Navy could not at the present time duplicate the Italian seaplane's feat. Navy officials may challenge my statement. The average equipment used by the Army air corps from my observation is not what might be expected of a powerful nation such as ours. I have actually been in a commercial transport plane that flew circles around a Regular Army pursuit ship! That took place only last spring.

How about personnel?

MEN OUTCLASSED

We have a fine group of men in the service in both branches, BUT they are helpless and would be outclassed against the aviators of the other leading nations in battle. Why? They have not the equipment to fight on equal terms with other nations. Their training is limited and their numbers restricted due to a tightening policy of economy which does not tighten wisely.

I do not criticise economy. We have had need for just that in our government for years. But, today, we are striving to keep our defenses impregnable.

In 1917, when Germany had destroyed 155 British ships, we had over 100 cruisers and 350 destroyers. Today we have only 50 of the first type and 150 of the second type.

The government has awarded contracts for 37 new ships. These ships will cost $238,000,000. Fine, but all 37 of those ships would be helpless against a similar number of Japanese ships supplemented by their modern airplanes.

NAVY HELPLESS

Our Navy sea forces are helpless without adequate co-operation from the air. Our Army, which is vital in backing up our naval defenses, would be crippled without an unexcelled air corps.

We are a grand nation, but we're open to criticism when viewed in our smug attitude that our homes and wives and children live in security.

The Pacific Coast with its great pride in advancement and achievement is asleep. The most powerful industry on earth, in years to come, has made California its cradle. Vast fortunes were founded and built in railroading from its birth through the long years of growth. Railroads became the backbone of our land. Aviation and air transportation stand where railroads stood 50 or more years ago.

The same vast fortunes will be built by the same type of pioneering in this still new infant industry during the next 50 years. The government of the United States heavily subsidized the railroads during their infancy.

Those same railroads enriched their government, and made possible prosperity for a young nation such as few dreamed was possible.

POSSESSED FORESIGHT

The government then had foresight. It had courage and a pioneering spirit whether the country at that time happened to be in the throes of depression or not. It must maintain that same spirit, or we, as a nation, must lose our position as the ranking country of the world.

We need adequate defense, especially when all the rest of the world is arming to the teeth. We must have a Navy that is unsurpassed. We must have a modern army. But above all we must supplement this with an air corps second to none.

If Americans as a whole have any pride in their homes and the safety of their families they will take the trouble to acquaint themselves with the facts about aviation.

They will take the interest to find out what a tremendous effect the development of commercial aviation will have on their economic life and how great a part these great transportation lines play in equipping us with adequate national defense.

They will find out what their government is doing to aid in the advancement of this all important industry.

They will see what the rest of the world is doing and when they see that the government is falling down on the job, they will bring pressure to bear through their representatives in Congress.

Steel Company Clerk Hit By Engine, Dies

Crushed beneath the wheels of a shifting engine in the Jones and Laughlin Steel Company's yards at Aliquippa, Albert McMullen, 61, of Vanport, Beaver County, died in South Side Hospital last night, according to a report to the morgue.

McMullen, a clerk for the steel company for 35 years, is said to have stepped in the path of the narrow-gauge engine while crossing the [illegible] Saturday evening.

Stomach Line Is Toma's Target

The natural tendency for people to worry and suffer with a stomach condition which has been induced by gastric-hyperacidity is no longer necessary with the benefits of a remarkably successful prescription prepared for these conditions. Sufferers who have used this formula pronounce it the most astonishing achievement of years, to soothe and relieve stomach ulcers due to hyperacidity, to neutralize trouble-causing acids, and to aid the digestive system.

If your stomach line causes you to suffer from stomach ulcers, indigestion, gastritis, bad breath, dyspepsia, heartburn, frequent colds, bloating, gas pains, belching, sourness, headache, lack of pep, constipation, or other disorders induced by hyperacidity, investigate Toma Tablets, a Doctor's prescription. LABOR HINTS AT NRA COURT TEST scribed today as believing that unless the new language meant something, the manufacturers would not have sought so vigorously to have it inserted.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said the labor language in the automobile code was not intended to be a precedent and added that the Labor Advisory Board had requested President Roosevelt so to specify in his executive order promulgating the charter.

Meanwhile, NRA volunteers—1,500,000 strong—opened today, under Gen. Johnson's mandate, "We cannot afford to fail," a campaign to implant the Blue Eagle in every business house and in millions of homes.

Speeding this "greatest corps of volunteers in the country's history on its door-to-door canvass, Johnson told his workers and the country that "either through codes or agreements we enter this drive with between 70 and 80 per cent of the employes in trade and industry already under the Blue Eagle."

TEST OF PRINCIPLE

The Recovery Administration described the drive as "a milestone in human progress, explaining:

"For the first time the American people has a chance to test in business a principle that they long ago proved in government. That principle is the trite old slogan, 'In union there is strength.'"

"Buy under the Blue Eagle" was the watchword set by Johnson for his volunteers after warning that "even a shadow" of "boycott, intimidation and violence would spoil this whole endeavor." He added:

"But there must not be the slightest misunderstanding. It is not a boycott for the people of a distressed country to say they are going to stick to those who do their part to cure a common evil and to ignore those who refuse to do so. To do otherwise would be to frustrate the national purpose."

SENDS FORTH WORKERS

Johnson sent forth his volunteer NRA corps with a reminder that "you are patient missionaries and neither snoopers nor policemen." He added:

"For about two weeks we shall confine all action to an intense effort to see that the obligations of the Blue Eagle are understood by every man who flies one. In the meantime we shall collect evidence in the few important reported cases of big and thoroughly informed employers who seem knowingly and wilfully to have taken on this obligation with a deliberate intention of violating it to mislead and defraud their employes and their customers.

"The opening gun of the enforcement campaign will be a painstaking, fair, open, public hearing of these cases and if they prove to be what reports indicate we shall use every lawful and proper means to protect the public and their competitors against such destructive, unpatriotic and unfair conduct.

"Wherever the Blue Eagle flies we shall keep his wings clean and his talons sharp."

an arm of effective defense to the nation in case of need.

These foresighted measures are the duty of the government in the protection of its people.

But it is the duty of the people to see that the government performs this duty.

A democratic form of government has frequently failed in its international relations and national obligations because its politicians have little vision.

Their minds are concentrated on matters of domestic consequence and immediate moment.

Their interests are local interests, sectional interests. They do not think nationally.

They are concerned with the limited requirements of a limited constituency.

They do not consider sufficiently the necessities of the future.

They lack broad vision, clear vision, foresight and farsight.

IN FACT, it has been said that democracy is like a man riding backwards in a train. It never sees anything until it is past.

However, this need not be the case.

The national defense, even in a democracy, should be beyond the wrecking reach of narrow-minded, shortsighted politicians.

There should be a policy, a precedent, a system, and an organization established which would be safe from the contaminating touch of pork-barrel politics.

In a republic, everything depends upon the intelligent and patriotic purpose of the people.

Theirs is the power, theirs the obligation.

The American people must think nationally and patriotically.

The American people must create high ideals and establish high standards in national policy and procedure, and especially in matters of national defense.

The American people must, and surely can, make their politicians live up to these high ideals and standards.

A politician will do anything to keep his job—even become a patriot.

In a republic all the people need to do to get GOOD government is to show their capacity for SELF government.

FRICK TO ADD 12,000 MINERS

Coal mining operations in the Western Pennsylvania field were booming today with announcement from Fayette County that the H. C. Frick company would begin a six-day week schedule, giving employment to 12,000 more miners. There were no strikes in the district to hamper production.

The Pittsburgh Coal Company had settled its differences, particularly at Library, where 1,100 men had struck four times in as many weeks. Strikers returned to work in the Hillman mine in Somerset County, where 600 men agreed to accept the terms of the NRA truce and arbitrate their grievance against the company before the Labor Arbitration Board.

FOOD PRICES UP, GAIN SLOWER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Food is costing more throughout the country this month, but the upward price trend has slowed its rate of advance.

Labor Department officials studied retail food prices reported by 51 cities and their conclusion was that while the general level rose more than 8 per cent between June 15 and July 15, the increase in August was only 2 per cent.

Today's prices at the retail grocery were said by the department to be back to the approximate level of February, 1932, and 18 per cent above April's prices, this year's low.

Of the 42 commodities included in the survey, 32 were priced higher this month, eight were lower and two unchanged. The increase reached 46 of the 51 cities which reported.

SEES COURTS BOW TO NRA

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Patrick H. O'Brien, Attorney General of Michigan, told delegates to the annual meeting of the National Association of Attorneys General in a prepared address today that no court in the United States will dare set aside President Roosevelt's recovery program.

In his welcoming address to the legal heads of the several states, Attorney General O'Brien declared that the National Industrial Recovery Act "offends against all the cherished constitutional maxims relating to due process of law and the taking of private property for public use without just compensation." He said:

"With the Blue Eagle of the National Recovery Act flying from her masthead, the Ship of State is sailing uncharted seas. With the President at the wheel, Congress and the courts must function as able seamen. Where is the court that will attempt to mutiny? Where is the court that will attempt by injunction to scuttle the ship?"

PARLEY DELAYS STRIKE AT DAM

George W. Vang, head of the Vang Construction Company, and union labor leaders were in Washington today seeking aid in settlement of difficulties between the company and its men at the Allegheny River dams at Aspinwall and Cheswick.

Vang was to seek a grant of $300,000 from the government to pay higher wages, retroactive to August 1, which allows for an average increase of about 35 per cent.

The 500 employes involved in the two strikes have returned to work pending negotiations between union leaders and the company.

'LEFT WINGERS' FLAY NRA

CLEVELAND, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Called for the express purpose of "tampering with the NRA," 650 delegates to the Trade-Union Conference for United Action, a self-styled "left wing" labor group, approved a manifesto yesterday declaring the "new deal brings no relief, but rather increasing misery for the workers."

The manifesto declared that "where codes have been adopted employers are guilty of general violations of even the miserable apparent guarantees." It affirmed confidence in strikes and picketing as weapons to bring better labor conditions.

The delegates, who said they represented 317,000 workers in various parts of the country, held 14 group discussions on the best course of action in opposing the NRA in their respective industries.

Donald Henderson, ousted instructor of Columbia University, invited the delegates to the United States Anti-War Congress to be held in New York September 29 and 30.

Communist Pickets Seized in NRA Test

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Four persons, alleged Communist pickets, were arrested in Brooklyn today and charged with violation of the NRA regulations in a test case designed to determine the validity of such prosecutions, police headquarters was informed.

The arrests followed a statement last week by Grover A. Whalen, city NRA chairman, that Communists were trying to block the NRA program and that they would be punished for their picketing efforts.

AUTO MEN KEEP HIRING, FIRING RIGHT IN CODE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Administration approval today had brought the great automobile manufacturing industry under a code of fair practice which asserts a right to employers to hire and discharge their workers without regard to union affiliations.

In permitting the labor language proposed by the manufacturers to remain in the agreement, however, Gen. Hugh Johnson, recovery administrator, made it clear to newspaper men that:

"If there's any thought that that statement (the labor clause) takes away any right conferred by the law to either side, that doubt should be dissipated immediately."

NO PRECEDENT

The administration statement accompanying the code made no comment on the report of the Labor Advisory Board that its approval was based on the understanding that the labor clause neither modifies or qualifies the recovery act, and that it does not establish a precedent in the preparation of any other code.

Bearing out the labor board's suggestions, however, Gen. Johnson indicated he will not consider the automobile language a precedent when he told newspapermen:

"Every single industry that comes here must stand on its own economic feet. I'll treat each one of these situations as they arise."

EXPLAINS MOTIVE

Nevertheless, the question confronted the administrator whether every industry attempting to prevent unionization of its plants would not insist upon having the language of the automobile agreement placed in its own code as a means of resisting organization. To this Johnson said:

"You have that all wrong. That was not the motive at all. They wanted that statement to come back at some highly misleading declaration from the opposite side.

"The claim was being made over and over again that nobody could get a job in an automobile plant or in fact get any of the benefits of the NRA without belonging to the union.

"Now that is not true and there is nothing in the law like that. As a case in point, take the labor benefits given by the NRA in the cotton industry, which is not at all unionized."

LANGUAGE CHANGED

The labor clause has been the barrier to reconciliation between workers and manufacturers throughout consideration of the code. The industry at first proposed a clause expressly stipulating that employers "may continue the open shop polic."

When Gen. Johnson issued a statement last week, however, that no interpretations of the law can be written into a code by anyone, the code committee of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce proposed the following language, which now stands approved:

"Without in any way attempting to qualify or modify by interpretation the foregoing requirements of the National Recovery Act, employers in this industry may exercise their right to select, retain or advance employes on the basis of individual merit, without regard to their membership or non-membership in any organization."

ROOSEVELT APPROVES

President Roosevelt approved the code at the summer White House at Hyde Park without changing any of its provisions.

Most important of these, in addition to the labor clause, are the establishment of minimum hourly rates ranging from 40 to 43 cents dependent upon the size of the city in which the industry is located, and fixing 48 hours as the maximum for any work week, with a maximum average of 35 hours a week over any six months period. The code becomes effective September 5.

In further clarifying the code's provisions in their final form, Johnson remarked to newspaper men:

"I had to go out on the spot, to Detroit, to see conditions as they actually existed, rather than as they were represented to me at long distance, to make up my mind as to the advisability of inserting the labor condition."

This was taken to answer the suggestion made in some labor quarters that the administrator had assented to the provision to end argument and bring about an agreement without further loss of time.

Johnson made no reference to Henry Ford, only large manufacturer not represented, so far. He has said previously, however, that he regretted this situation, but that the recovery program would "be administered without fear or favor to every manufacturer, both large and small."

Objections of labor to the proposed minimum rates of pay and maximum hours were withdrawn when William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said:

"We reluctantly agreed to the terms, although we thought minimum pay should be higher and maximum hours lower."

Green had proposed a minimum hourly rate of pay of 60 cents and a work week not to exceed 30 hours.

Boy's Kick to NRA Puts All Parents 'On the Spot'

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 28.—(INS.)—Ten-year-old Morton Surkin, who wrote Gen. Hugh S. Johnson the other day demanding a code for downtrodden errand boys, today was seriously considering organizing an errand boys union for collective bargaining with parents under Section 7 of the National Recovery Act.

Said Morton, declaring himself in favor of a 36-hour week:

"I think the minimum pay for an errand boy should be 5 cents a day and time and a half for overtime."

Morton's mother, who said her offspring remembers prices better than she does, was meanwhile contemplating a shorter work week and more money for movies as a result of the boy's letter which threatened to put thousands of parents "on the spot."

MASTER RETAIL CODE LIKELY

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—(INS.)—The National Recovery Administration's desire for speedy action on codes for retailers was demonstrated today when the drug store and general merchandising group which sponsored codes at public hearings last week were summoned for conferences.

The conferences were held in the offices of Deputy Administrator Arthur D. Whiteside. He received the general retail merchants first. The drug store group joined the conference later.

It is expected the conferences will result either in the formulation of a "master" code for all retail establishments or a plan to include in the separate codes for different types of retailers virtually identical provisions to insure against inequities in cost-competition.

The need for one or the other of these agreements was made clear in the hearings last week when it was hown there was a great amount of cross competition between drug, grocery, variety and general merchandise stores.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at drug stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

"I wanted a clear skin— I got it...and a happy home, too"

If you long for a better skin pause and reason

A CLEAR, healthy skin is an evidence of good health. Ample red-blood-cells, filled with hemo-glo-bin (skin and tissue purifier), are necessary for good health and a clear skin.

When the hemo-glo-bin is right you feel it . . . your looks show it. But when sickness, colds or the "flu," tear down this vital substance, or you neglect your diet, you get weak, tire easily, lose your appetite. Your resistance is lowered—and your complexion usually shows it.

And here is the reason: When the hemo-glo-bin is reduced, the billions of tiny cells in the body are not getting sufficient oxygen, because it is the hemo-glo-bin that takes the oxygen, breathed into the lungs, to all parts of the body—even to the skin. Also, it throws off the poisonous carbon dioxide.

To clear your skin of pimples and get back that old-time vigor with color in your cheeks, take S.S.S. Tonic just before meals. No need to change your diet . . . S.S.S. will not interfere with any other medicine you may be taking. You will be happy with the beneficial results obtained.

S.S.S. is a proven Tonic . . . by experience for over 100 years . . . and by modern medical research. Start taking it today. At all drug stores in two convenient sizes. The larger size is more economical. © The S.S.S. Co.

RICH DIVORCEE TO WED JUST ONCE MORE

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—"Farewell to Orange Blossoms" will be the theme song for Mrs. Marian Hughes Whitehead's next—and possibly final—march to the altar, the pretty society woman who divorced Conky Whitehead in Chicago on Thursday and now has announced her engagement to Andrew Pierce III, woolens heir, let it be known today. She said:

"I intend to stay married this time. There won't be any divorce. I will have a real home and settle down and raise a family."

She laughed when asked how many new members would, in her opinion, constitute a family. She announced:

"I want at least a polo team and a baseball team in my own home."

Her marriage to Pierce, son of the head of the American Woolen Mills and member of an old New England family, will take place very soon, but just how soon the bride-to-be could not say. She explained:

"We haven't had time to discuss the date yet—there have been so many reporters around."

"I want to settle . . . vn. I've been traveling since I was a child and I'm tired of it. I had a French governess who was always dragging me from one place to another.

"When I married Conky I hoped he would settle, but he wanted to travel, too. I want a place I can call home. I'm trotting out in a few minutes to look for an apartment."

She told a romantic story of her first meeting with young Pierce. She was in charge of a charity dance at the Ambassador last fall and Pierce crashed the gate by representing himself as an "unemployed musician." She said:

"I thought it was very cute. It was weeks before I found out who he really was.

"I didn't have a place prepared at the table for him and had to get out an extra chair and plate. After the party he bought champagne. I thought it was very funny for an unemployed musician to do so. And next morning six dozen American beauty roses arrived from him."

TAR CONCRETE TESTED HERE

No longer will feminine heels sink into the tar of Pittsburgh streets on hot summer days, if tests being conducted at the University of Pittsburgh on a new paving material are successful.

Information on the new material was brought here from Europe by E. C. Rhodes, technical director of the Koppers Products Company, which is assisting the university in the research.

The new type of paving, Rhodes announced, permits the use of Pittsburgh coal by-products, slag from Pittsburgh steel mills, or gravel from Pittsburgh river beds. Known as tar concrete, it resists melting, reduces skidding and makes a more resilient road, Rhodes said.

Water Sports Win Him Culver Medal

James Wiley Ward, of 5555 Hobart street, was among the medal winners at the closing exercises of the Culver summer schools. He was the winner of the greatest number of points in water sports during the season.

Nine Pupils Fail, Teacher Gets 'Death Note'

GREENSBURG, Pa., Aug. 28.—(INS.)—A childish attempt to imitate the ways of the underworld, or a serious threat?

That question puzzled police today as they sought the author of a note to Miss Opal L. Berthel, principal of Mt. Pleasant Junior High School, containing a threat to bomb her home unless nine pupils who failed to pass the eighth grade tests last May are permitted to enter high school next month.

The letter was signed by a man who said he participated in a recent New Jersey bombing outrage in which four persons were killed. Miss Berthel was warned not to enlist the aid of other teachers.

PITTSBURGHERS ON BUS HURT

Three Pittsburgh women were among nine persons injured late Saturday when a St. Louis-bound bus of the Nevin Lines crashed into a telephone pole on the Lincoln highway near Devon, Pa., a suburb of Philadelphia.

They were Miss Elizabeth D. Roy, 37, of 334 Emsworth avenue, Emsworth; Miss Jane Crithlow, 35, of 813 Collins avenue, and Miss Isabelle Summers, 43, of 2826 Frontenac street, Sheraden. Miss Roy received cuts and bruises, Miss Crithlow head cuts and back injuries, and Miss Summers suffered from shock. All were treated at a hospital.

Police said the bus was forced from the road in an attempt to avoid collision with a delivery truck. None of the passengers was seriously injured.

McKeesport Picnic Set for Labor Day

Can I Have Air-Conditioning In My Home and Keep My Present Heating Plant?

Yes—you can. That is one of the distinctly desirable features about the home air-conditioning installation that has been developed through the combined efforts of "Pittsburg" and Frigidaire engineers. Your present heating plant can be used to full advantage and the other necessary elements for the filtration, washing and cooling of the air, built around it. This puts air-conditioning within the reach of thousands and makes it possible for you to enjoy perfect man-made "atmosphere" in one or all the rooms of your home.

DIRT, DUST, FLOWER POLLEN REMOVED AIR FRESHENED BY WASHING
COOLED IN THE SUMMER
HEATED IN WINTER

The public is just becoming acquainted with the manifold benefits of air-conditioning. Heretofore, air-conditioning in the private residence has been all but prohibitive in its cost. But now "Pittsburg" and Frigidaire, division of General Motors, have "pooled" their engineering talent and have brought perfect air-conditioning well within the reach of the average home-owner. We invite you to visit our complete installation. No obligation at all.

BONES REVEAL KILLING OF CUBANS

HAVANA, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Members of the A B C secret society found the remains of 10 men, believed by authorities to have been killed by the army lieutenant Diez Diaz after an abortive revolution in August, 1931, while digging in the banks of Lake Piedra near Havana late Sunday.

Two skeletons were identified as those of Dr Andres Bermudez and Jose Hernandez, prominent members of a group opposing the regime of former President Gerardo Machado.

KILLED BY BOMB

Diez Diaz was killed in May, 1932, by a bomb received in a registered mail package.

Two men were killed and four wounded last night in a shooting said to have started because of differences between two groups of workmen.

Workers on the Cuba and Northern Railways agreed at Camaguey to return to work today, after striking for nearly four weeks. Scores of less important strikes throughout the island continued.

HERRERA IN N. Y.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Cramped in quarters which ordinarily accommodate only three crew members, Gen. Alberto Herrera, Cuban secretary of war in the Machado regime, and 10 members of his family arrived from Jamaica today aboard the Colombian liner Haiti.

Members of the party told a tale of harried adventure in fleeing their country during the recent revolution.

The party fled Cuba on the United Fruit liner Quiricua to Jamaica with the help they said of American Ambassador Welles, and boarded the Haiti there.

The party is stopping at a New York hotel. They said they had no plans for the future.

ATTACKER SLAIN IN 3-HOUR FIGHT

BURGAW, N. C., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—The body of Doc Rogers, 45-year-old Negro farmer who shot a white woman and a deputy sheriff yesterday and was then slain after a three-hour gun battle with officers, was dragged about the lawn of the Pender County Courthouse here last night.

Finally the bullet-riddled body was given over to an undertaking establishment by a crowd of men and boys who had taken it from officers as they were bringing the body here from a farm 10 miles distant.

Rogers was killed officiers said, as a result of his drunken insistence that he eat breakfast with a white family.

Mrs. Tom Piner, 60, wife of a farmer, and R. T. Murray, Jr., deputy sheriff of Pender County, were felled by the Negro's gun. Mrs. Piner was wounded seriously.

3,000,000 Destitute In Shantung Floods

SHANGHAI, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—The governor of Shantung reported today that floods of the Yellow River had made 3,000,000 persons destitute in western Shantung and that 800 villages were under water.

Many foreign missionaries, who remained at their posts, were among those endangered in Honan province. A renewed rise of the river again endangered the important city of Tsinanfu.

Farm Sessions Set For Mercer County

PEOPLE'S FAIR OPENS IN PARK THURSDAY

Allegheny County will troop off to its first county fair Thursday in South Park, and there are enough exhibits to please everybody, seats for more than 30,000 spectators and parking space for 10,000 machines.

It's a people's fair, according to the County Commissioners, who have invited all to attend free.

Last-minute hammering and painting went on today to put the finishing touches on the 13 large buildings that will house more than 1,000 displays, ranging from chickens to an old Conestoga wagon.

EXHIBIT DEADLINE

Wednesday has been set as the final day for having exhibits in their place at the fair grounds.

An entertainment program matching the exhibits in number and quality according to the fair committee, will be presented free during the four days of the fair. Polo games, rodeos, sports contests, drum and bugle corps meets and pet parades are all on the bill.

Street car and bus service to and from the park has been coordinated by the Pittsburgh Railways Company and the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company. A combined street car and bus ticket will be issued for 30 cents, good on trolleys and buses of the Brentwood Motor Coach Company.

BEGINS THURSDAY

Here are the days of the fair, which is officially known as the First Annual Agricultural Fair Livestock Fair:

Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Labor Day.

There will be no stands for "hawking" novelties and no advertisements in the program, according to Chairman C. C. McGovern, of the Board of County Commissioners, who said:

"No exhibit in the fair will be authorized to sell wares of any kind. It is to be truly a free exhibit for the people of Allegheny County."

REP. WATSON OF PENNA. DIES

LANGHORNE, Pa., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Death has ended the long Congressional career of Henry W. Watson, one of the best known Republican figures in the national capital. He succumbed to heart disease in his home yesterday at the age of 76.

Representing Pennsylvania's Ninth Congressional District, he was re-elected to his tenth term last year, despite the Democratic landslide. He first was elected from the Eighth District, where former United States Senator Joseph R. Grundy was and still is, a power.

Watson, a strong advocate of a protective tariff and world peace movements, served on many important committees during his 19 years in Washington. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Cornelia Winder Ball Watson, formerly of Detroit, and a daughter. He was a lineal descendant, on his mother's side, of Sir Nicholas Bacon, a member of Queen Elizabeth's court.

George D. Thorn, chief of Pennsylvania elections bureau, said last night Watson's successor would be elected at a date to be set by Gov. Pinchot, probably the November general election.

LEAP IN DARK KILLS FLIER

STAMFORD, Conn., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—A leap in the dark from a plane which had exhausted its fuel brought death to Capt. E. E. Harmon, of Washington, an Army flier, authorities said today.

Harmon's body was found about a quarter of a mile from where his empty ship plunged to destruction last night at Turn-of-River, a suburb of Stamford. The craft, its cockpit and gasoline tank empty, swooped out of the darkness and buried itself in the earth, a mass of wreckage.

Capt. Harmon took off from Mitchel Field, Long Island. Authorities believed that he lost his way and that he was forced to "bail out."

His parachute was open, indicating that he hit the ground before the 'chute had broken his fall.

Harmon was born in Texas 39 years ago and was graduated from Bethany College, West Virginia, in 1913.

Judges to Address Pharmacy Employes

Judges Ralph H. Smith and M. A. Musmanno will make the principal addresses tomorrow night at a meeting of the Employe Pharmacists' Association of Greater Pittsburgh at the Fort Pitt Hotel. He said that at present the clerks work on an average of 77 to 90 hours a week.

IN A JAM: PUNCHER-PROOF AND EPPY

HENRY (YOUNG) EPSTEIN

HARRY M. (PUNCHER-PROOF) FOX..WHO OWNS THAT BEER?

Foxie, who with his pal and brother-in-law, Henry (Young Eppy) Epstein, today was trying to explain to Indianapolis police about a carload of beer that someone was trying to get into Indiana without paying the tax. These are Sun-Telegraph pictures.

PUNCHER-PROOF AND EPPY HELD

Puncher-Proof Foxie, the self-styled beer baron of the East, and his brother-in-law, Henry (Young Eppy) Epstein, strayed off the home lot over the week-end and got themselves into a jam in Indianapolis.

It seems that somebody was trying to ship a carload of beer into the great state of Indiana without paying the excise tax of 5 cents per gallon.

So Harry M. Fox and Young Eppy, "who needs the dough," were arrested. A charge of vagrancy was brought against Eppy, who no doubt was surprised at such an accusation. Later all were charged with non-payment of excise tax.

Three others were arrested—Cole Giles, friend of Eppy's; James Meredith, 26, of Indianapolis, and one Frank Venezia, 43.

To admirers of Young Eppy it was inconceivable that he had any part of the carload of beer. For had he not in Federal Court just 10 days ago pleaded for an extension to pay his Uncle Sam $4,179 due on his 1925 income tax? He was granted an extension of three months on his parole, on his statement that he was without funds.

George G. O'Brien, federal parole officer, said he would investigate whether Eppy had left the court's jurisdiction without permission.

SPURNED, KILLS WIFE AND SELF

OIL CITY, Pa., Aug. 28.—His rage at her refusal of a reconciliation was the motive, police said today, behind the slaying of Mrs. Bertha Eiseman Plack, 37, by her husband, George C. Plack, 39, who also fatally shot himself.

Mrs. Plack, mother of two children, Anna, 12, and Robert, 9, had just returned home late Saturday from the store where she worked and was preparing to retire when Plack, from whom she had been estranged for several weeks, forced entrance to her bedroom. She was attired in pajamas and dressing gown when police found her body.

The children, sleeping in an adjoining room, ran screaming from the house, arousing neighbors at the sound of the shots.

A former taxi driver, unemployed for several months, Plack had been drinking heavily, police said.

Panama Envoy Quits, Takes College Job

PANAMA, R. P., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Roy T. Davis yesterday announced his resignation as United States minister to Panama, terminating 12 years in the diplomatic service in Central America. He has accepted a post as assistant to the president of Stephen College at Columbia, Mo.

TIPANA, Albania, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Herman Berstein, United States minister to Albania, made known his resignation yesterday. He plans to return to New York the end of September.

Doomed Man Gets Stay of Execution

WHEELING, W. Va., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—A 60-day stay of execution has been given Joseph Doyle, 35, Ohio County farm hand, under sentence to be hanged September 15 for an alleged attack on the 5-year-old daughter of his employer.

Judge John S. Ritz granted the delay Saturday to permit an appeal for a new trial.

Italian Flier Sets Upside-Down Mark

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—(INS.)—Lieut. Tito Falconi, Royal Italian Air Force pilot, today was the holder of a new world's record for upsidedown flying, having flown head down from St. Louis to Joliet, Ill., in three hours, six minutes and 39 seconds.

Lieut. Falconi, when he landed at Joliet for fuel, had bettered the previous record of two hours, 20 minutes and 53 seconds by 47 minutes and 26 seconds.

Jurymen, Together 6 Weeks, Hold Picnic

WELLSBORO, Pa., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Friendships, fostered by constant association as they sat in judgment at a murder trial, were renewed today at a picnic.

Jurors, who for six weeks heard testimony in the trial of Frank E. Davis, Jr., charged with slaying Henry P. Cooley, held a reunion today at Woodland Park.

Davis was acquitted.

TEXT OF SPEECH BY JOHNSON ON NRA DRIVE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Here is the text of Hugh S. Johnson's speech last night opening the national drive to put the entire country under the Blue Eagle:

Tomorrow marks a milestone in human progress. For the first time the American people has a chance to test in business a principle that they long ago proved in government. That principle is the trite old slogan, "In union there is strength."

On that principle, the 13 colonies in the revolution were able to do against the mother country what none of them could have dreamed of doing alone. They created this nation. In 1861 Abraham Lincoln declared that principle, and the Civil War was fought to protect it. It preserved the nation.

But all that was political unity—not business unity. Business unity has never been permitted to us. The old order was afraid to try it. It was absolutely unlawful for business to get together. Every effort was made to prevent workers from getting together and as for the people—the consumers of the country—getting together, that was just too much even to think of.

Sacred Cow Protecter

Rather than to threaten this sacred cow, some of its keepers were willing to let the country suffer anything. They banished the thought while from 1929 to 1932 our people—helpless to do anything about it because they had no way to act together—sat and saw the melting away of almost everything that makes life worth while.

And then came Franklin Roosevelt. He proposed to the people of this country that they take charge of their own affairs—in business just the same as in government and he said that if that is what they wanted, he would give it to them.

Well, he has done it. That is the meaning of what we shall start tomorrow—the first hop of the Blue Eagle's flight to better things.

The first step is for every employers to adopt the Blue Eagle. The Roosevelt unity plan of economic unity for the American people simply cannot go forward with any considerable number of employers standing aside and taking advantage of the patriotism of their competitors. There just isn't any question about that. The government would be a coward if it did not say that. The people would be remiss if they did not support that. Employers would be wrong if they did not recognize that.

100 Per Cent Needed

It is our belief that either through codes or arrangements we enter this drive with between 70 per cent and 80 per cent of employers in trade and industry already under the Blue Eagle. We must get 100 per cent under the Blue Eagle and we cannot afford to fail.

Tomorrow morning the greatest corps of volunteers in the country's history is going forth under the NRA banner to accomplish this result. It is of the utmost importance that these workers know precisely what to do and that they register in their hearts a solemn determination to do that and nothing more nor less. They must understand their task.

Why are there any employers not under the Blue Eagle? This administration has looked into thousands of cases. It has found not one in which the reason was unwillingness.

The big trouble is lack of information. You must explain what the President's program means. We have tried to equip you to do this and it is your task—patiently and courteously to carry out that duty.

A second obstacle is the fear of honest patriotic men that they cannot do what the President asks and remain in business. What they do not understand is that by getting a certificate from his local chamber of commerce or merchants' association that he cannot comply, any man is entitled to get and display a provisional blue eagle while an investigation is made by the National Recovery Administration. That should be explained so that nobody in the country is in the dark about it.

Denies Boycott Talk

There has been a great deal of loose talk about boycott, intimidation and violence—I want to say to you in all earnestness and solemnity that if there is even a shadow of such a thing it would spoil this whole endeavor.

A boycott is a banding together of people to cut a seller off from his trade. Threat of a boycott could be intimidation. Any violence—even any critical comment or unkind words in this effort is repugnant to its whole purpose and volunteer workers have no right to use such means. I beseech you to follow these rules.

But there must not be the slightest misunderstanding. The watchword of this great co-operation is "Buy under the Blue Eagle." It is not a boycott for the people of a distressed country to say they are going to stick to those who do their part to cure a common evil and to ignore those who refuse to do so. To do otherwise would be to frustrate the national purpose—not to mention its lack of plain every-day horse sense and fair play.

You would be less than frank and courageous and honest if you did not also explain this simple fact. The government itself has acted to center its buying on Blue Eagle supplies of both goods and service; the whole people should follow that lead.

Warns of Cheating

The third obstacle we have found is a fear that competitors will use the Blue Eagle and cheat behind its wings—that there will be no real protection—of course the government cannot permit this—people who fly the Blue Eagle must be honest with him—and it is our duty to see to this.

It is quite true that in these first days of this great charge there has been some failure to perform. Ninety per cent of this also comes from misunderstanding of what is required. Our next job is to clear that up.

For about two weeks we shall confine all action to an intense effort to see that the obligations of the Blue Eagle are understood by every man who flies one.

In the meantime we shall collect evidence in the few important reported cases of big and thoroughly informed employers who seem knowingly and wilfully to have taken on this obligation with a deliberate intention of violating it to mislead and defraud their employes and their customers.

The opening gun of the enforcement campaign will be a painstaking, fair, open, public hearing of these cases and if they prove to be what reports indicate, we shall use every lawful and proper means to protect the public and their competitors against such destructive, unpatriotic and unfair conduct.

These examples will clear up mistakes and—of themselves—go far to eliminate these abuses everywhere.

Going All the Way

But we shall go the whole distance. Wherever the Blue Eagle flies we shall keep his wings clean and his talons sharp. If fairness and justice and patience require more time than some of us would like to see consumed, just remember that no such universal system was ever put to perfection in a minute. The mill-wheel in the eagle's claw may grind slowly, but it will grind exceedingly fine.

You are about to go forth on your great work—remember that you are patient missionaries and neither snoopers nor policemen. You will find bewilderment, some misinformation and (in the rarest of cases) resistance—with the latter you have nothing to do. Your sole duty is as of the duties of the disciples:

"Whosoever shall not receive you nor heed your words, when ye depart out of that house, shake off the dust of your feet."

It is not your duty to provoke resentment or hard feeling, but only to give your message of helpfulness and go your way.

This is a great adventure by a great people—no man other than the President could have taken it thus far. What you have seen is only a beginning. As he said at his home yesterday, we are on our way out of this valley of despair and you are in the vanguard of that triumph.

Zipper Factories Sign Code Under Blue Eagle

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—The zipper industry is under the Blue Eagle.

A code for the six firms manufacturing zippers—those sliding fasteners on galoshes and such—was signed by Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson and W. C. Arthur, representing the industry, and went into effect immediately.

The code provides for a 40-hour week and a 40-cent per hour minimum wage, except in plants where the hourly rate in 1929 was below that figure, in which case the 1929 rate will be the minimum provided it is not below 30 cents an hour. The firms include the Hookless Fastener Company and Lion Fastener, Inc., of Meadville, Pa..

PERRY DRAMA Lake Erie Naval Victory Anniversary ON THE AIR

County Fair Invitation On Radio

The blue waters of Lake Erie and the primitive iron foundries of Pittsburgh figure in one of tonight's dramatic radio features.

Observing the one hundred and nineteenth anniversary of Commodore Perry's victory on Lake Erie, Columbia's Theater of Today presents "Ships of Oak," a re-enactment of the famous naval battle, on WJAS at 9:30.

Perry obtained the anchors and iron fittings for his oaken ships from Pittsburgh foundries. In one of the most masterful maneuvers in naval history, Perry, his ships becalmed, carried the anchors ahead in small boats, heaved in on them, and hauled his men-of-war up within striking distance of the helpless British fleet.

Come to the Fair

Gen. Churchill B. Mehard extends a radio invitation to all residents of the tri-state area to attend the Allegheny County Fair in South Park. He speaks over WJAS tomrrow at 5:45.

The fair, opening Thursday, continues Friday and Saturday of this week and Monday of next week.

* * *

Political Speakers

George S. Oliver, campaigning for re-election to his seat in City Council, speaks over WCAE at 9:30.

Judge Ralph H. Smith, candidate for re-election to the Common Pleas Court bench, is heard over WJAS at 7.

* * *

New Jewish Series

WWSW institutes a new series of programs tonight at 7:45 under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Section, National Council of Jewish Women. Former Consul General George Tchirkow opens the series with a talk on "Education of Foreign Born Citizens."

Minstrel Melodies

"Newt and His Flute" and "I'd Leave My Happy Home for You" are typical of the song selections heard in the Minstrel Show staged over NBC-KDKA at 9.

Child Lost 72 Hours In Rockies Rescued

TABERNASH, Col., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—A little girl who wandered 72 hours in the wilds of the Rocky Mountains where bears occasionally are seen is safe at home, rescued by a posse of six lumberjacks.

Betty Clark, 4-year-old daughter of a rancher, was in tears when lumbermen came upon her about four miles from her ranch home.

Local Highlights on WJAS Tonight

Wermes' Saxophone Sextet repeats by request a paraphrase of Rachmaninoff's Prelude in C sharp minor at 8 o'clock.

Paul Gannon sings "Then You'll Remember Me" as the high spot of his 6:45 feature.

The Three Bridges have some unusual tango and rumba arrangements for their 6 o'clock program

WJAS will sign off at 11 tonight, thus canceling the Peyton broadcast. However, the Frivolities will be heard as usual tomorrow.

Hollywood

Sue Carol, film star, who with Ken Murray, screen comic, and Charles Farrell, is featured in the Hollywood-On-the-Air broadcast on WCAE at midnight.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

It must be that the vocabulary is playing out. "Vam" Murray suggests a new word that hasn't been used yet. Deliquesce. That's what he feels like doing after a disturbing game of bridge.

"Whatever that may be, I hope he doesn't hurt himself doing it.

In one of those health emporiums, where clients bask in the ultra violet rays, the attendant notifies them when one side is done and it is time to expose the other. It sounded like bankers' day to the several half asleep ray absorbing customers when, the other day, his voice boomed out:

"Mr. Morgan, Mr. Mellon, time to turn over."

Mrs. Edgar Marts, Export, asks for the words of the poem beginning:

"It was midnight on the ocean, Not a street car was in sight."

Jesse Mentecky, New Kensington—Regardless of the parents' birthplace, or whether naturalization papers were taken out, a child born in this country is a citizen by birth. He can lose his citizenship only by a formal renunciation.

When Marion House deals she believes in a minimum of subsequent effort. She not only passes out attractive cards but she shuffled a hand out to W. A. Merritt, Jr., so that when he picked it up all the suits were in order and the cards in rotation. Of course he was so surprised that he had to disclose his unusual hand and then she had to deal again.

I got no report of the second distribution.

Jean Harris, 12, and Mary Harris, 10, of Detroit, with their cousin, Erwin Cummins, 10, of Canonsburg, all visiting their grandma, cut out a life size picture of Popeye and colored it. I like it very much. Thank you.

'Sisters' Drop Skillets for Reporting

By AIRCASTER

The Sisters of the Skillet are going to be "reporters" when they take over Ed Wynn's old spot on NBC-WCAE for the time being, Tuesday nights, beginning tomorrow. They have signed an exclusive contract for an indefinite period.

Aside from the "Sisters" there will be no change in the program, which includes the Don Voorhees Orchestra, a quartet and Johnny Hill, tenor.

Clara, Lu and Em

Three years on the air without a vacation is a long grind, so Clara, Lu 'n Em have called a holiday for two weeks. They are spending their first vacation at their summer camp.

Jean Paul King, the girls' announcer, is reading hilarious letters from the girls over the air each day until their return September 4.

Pearl Stays

Despite the widespread reports that Jack Pearl and his bankrollers are shopping around for a spot on the CBS web, you can put your mony on the wager that by tonight the cigaret manufacturer will have reserved the season's space on NBC.

* * *

Tony Wons tells it. It's about the young man who applied for the job of announcer at the CBS studio. He submitted himself to an examination that was a honey, and later, to a barrage of questions. His torturers repeatedly impressed him that an announcer must have extraordinary qualities. And then he was asked:

"Do you ever tell lies?"
To which the dizzy replied:
"No, but I can learn!"

M'NAIR CAMPAIGN ON HILL BRINGS OUT BLACKJACK

Officer Describes Way Used to Sweep Mines After War

NAVY NARRATIVES
By LIEUT. JIM HAYS

Today, Lieut. Jim Hays, U. S. Navy, retired, well known to radio audiences for his sea story broadcasts, begins a series of 10 or more thrilling stories of the Navy during war times. The first is presented herewith.

1.

November is a dreary month at best, in the south of Wales. Pea-soup fogs blowing inland from Bristol Channel and the Irish Sea are enough to drench anybody's spirits. And there's a sharp chill in the misty air.

Life was particularly listless for me, that fall, at United States Naval Base 29, at Cardiff. My ship's colorful career in the English Channel and the Bay of Biscay had come to a violent end on the coast of France.

Mr. Hays

You may still see the stark silhouette of her hull perched high on the rocks, the white foam of the breakers surging up under her broken keel, a mile to the left of the Gironde River's mouth, where you go into Bordeaux—a grim reminder of the mountainous seas that tossed her there.

And now I was back at the base again, with no ship and no prospect of one. The war had come to a sudden end.

I loafed about the base for several weeks waiting for further orders, making daily rounds of clothing and tailor shops in Cardiff to round up a new outfit of uniforms and linen, for all that I owned was scattered along the coast of France. By night I watched the boxing bouts between burly sailors, staged in the thick cigaret smoke of the Y. M. C. A. hut. But life ashore, after an exciting year in the war zone, was pretty dull.

Eager for Job

Then, one early December day, I heard rumors going the rounds of the base. The Navy was going to tackle the North Sea mine barrage—sweep it away and restore the freedom of the seas. It held interesting promises of adventure, and I hustled into the Base personnel office to see Admiral Andrews' aide.

"I hear you're sending men up to Base 18 for the mine barrage job," I told him. "How's the chances to go?"

"Hells bell!" the personnel officer exlaimed. "You just landed here in summer underwear. I should think you'd had enough! Do you know anything about mine sweeping?" he continued.

And I told him sure! I'd sweep up plenty of them.

"Yeah," he said, "But these mines up in the North Sea aren't the kind the Germans planted down in the Bay of Biscay. These things go off if you look at 'em. They're a brand new type! Besides," he warned me, "the life of a mine sweeper, on a mine field, is supposed to be about 20 days, you know!"

A Sailor's Sendoff

But I told him I reckoned I'd had all the tough breaks that any one man could have. So orders were written up, detaching me from Base 29, and instructing me to proceed to U. S. Naval Base 18, at Inverness, Scotland, for duty on the North Sea mine barrage.

On the way north, I stopped off for a day in London, and had a taste of English hospitality. I wandered into the Carlton Hotel to write a letter home on swanky stationary, and a group of Englishmen, spotting my uniform, asked me to step up to the bar.

They inquired if I were bound for the States, now that the war was over, and I told them no, that I was leaving Euston Station that afternoon at 3, on the Jellico Express for Scotland, to help clear mines out of the North Sea.

They thought a man shoving off for the North Sea at that time of year ought to have a sailor's sendoff, and they gave me one, all right!

I drank a light lunch with them at a huge round table in the Carlton dining room, and the next thing I knew, I came to in a British Admiral's private car at Crewe, in the heart of the English Midlands. My London hosts had started me off in style, an uninvited guest of the Admiralty.

As the train came to a stop in the train shed at Crewe, an attendant hurried into the private car with a wicker basket of food for the Admiral and his staff. I remembered I hadn't had anything but liquids since breakfast. It was 10 o'clock at night, and I was hungry. So I sauntered into the station, set up at a counter and had a cup of tea, sweetened with a saccharine pill for lack of sugar, and a brown bun without any butter.

Baggage Recovered

In a few minutes I was out on the platform again, just in time to see the stern lights of the Jellico express fading out of the trainshed. And there I was marooned for 24 hours.

When finally I arrived at Inverness two British sailors stepped up to me on the station platform and asked:

"Are you Lieut. Hays?" I told them I was. "We've been on the lookout for you, sir, to give you your baggage," they said. "Admiral Beatty had it set off here when he went through yesterday."

So I narrowly missed losing my shirt a second time within a month. And I was to lose it again.

* * *

You don't hear much about the Navy's part in the World War, except that we transported a couple of million troops to Europe, and accounted for a submarine now and then.

But some day when the various claims of the allied victors have been impartially analyzed, historians will record that the United States Navy's North Sea mine barrage was primarily responsible for the collapse of Germany.

The magnificent achievement was typically American, and Franklin D. Roosevelt, I am told authoritatively, was the man behind the job.

Barrier of Mines

Soon after the United States entered the war in 1917, Roosevelt, then Assistant Secretary of the Navy, became convinced that the only way the Allies could possibly win the war, was to bottle up the enemy submarines in the North Sea.

His plan to build a solid barrier of mines, 250 miles long, all the way across the North Sea from the north of Scotland to the coast of Norway was proposed to the allied nations. And

PROWLER BEATS SHANTY MAN

John Gordella, 67, living in a shack in Shantytown, on the Banksville road, was in serious condition today in South Side Hospital as a result of a mysterious attack by a stranger armed with a hatchet. He suffered three fractured ribs and a perforated lung, but was able to give police a description of his assailant.

Homicide Detectives Al Grayber and William Harris learned, they say, that Gordella was awakened yesterday by the sound of woodchopping outside the door of his shack. He remonstrated with the stranger, who attacked him with the hatchet, leaving him unconscious.

Abraham Weldon, Negro employe at the nearby dump, hearing moans from Gordella's shack, notified West End police.

USES 4 MEANS TO END LIFE

Deputy coroners today were attempting to establish a motive for the reported suicide of Edward Lavelle, 72, former cork cutter, of 5845 Center avenue, in his room at the St. James Hotel, Third avenue and Smithfield street, yesterday. Police said when they broke in the locked door, they found Lavelle had swallowed poison tablets, and chloroform, slashed his throat with a razor and hanged himself to the foot of his bed.

He registered his address Saturday only as "city," and it was not until police connected him with the description of a missing man that he was identified. He lived at the Center avenue address with his sister, Miss Mary Lavelle, and a brother, George J. Lavelle.

Does Your Code Call for Pepper, Salt or Both?

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

NRA turned out to be the world's largest information booth.

Get Gen. Johnson on the phone for five seconds and it's like four years at college.

So many orders have been issued that a man is afraid to use salt and pepper at the same time.

We all wanted to do the right thing. But since the codes are printed, we are scared to.

Only the farmers don't seem to be affected this year. Their crops are either in the barn or plowed under. They can play checkers until the free seeds bloom again in the mail of 1934.

The five-day week is a success on Saturdays and Sundays. But the rest of the codes have us puzzled. And we know you can't catch eels with the hook in your thumb.

And how about the bankers who were ordered to be generous? Call on one and you will find his 40-hour week was up before you got there.

GIRLS SOUGHT IN STABBING

South Side police today searched for two girls, about 14 years old, to help clear the mystery surrounding the stabbing of Joseph Saltis, 24, of 854 Windom street, who lost the sight of his right eye in the affray at South Tenth and Carson streets last night.

According to Saltis' story to police, he was standing at that corner when Joseph Pitkevich, 35, of 2506 Larkins way, allegedly passed an uncomplimentary remark at the girls, friends of Saltis. He remonstrated and the fight, in which he was stabbed in the eye by Pitkevich, followed, police said.

The latter denied the charge and said he was passing when he was beaten by Saltis and a male friend, Mike Haynda, 24, 12 Enon street.

Haynda and Pitkevich were arrested.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Aug. 28.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Helen Wills Moody, congratulations. I don't believe the armistice got as much publicity. And poor Texas, they would be unfortunate enough to have their prohibition election on the same day Helen was losing her championship, so it will be Tuesday or Wednesday before we hear what happened down there. Voted like they drink, I guess, just for a change. President Roosevelt made a speech to his rich home county neighbors, none of whom voted for him (smart bunch of lads?) I would like to see the "code" he makes out for them.

Yours, WILL.

McNair Will Reply To Henry Tonight

William N. McNair, Democratic candidate for mayor, will speak tonight in the Allen school, Eighteenth ward, on "Republicanism, alias Coyneism."

The address is considered a reply to his Democratic opponent, John M. Henry, who has charged McNair was too friendly with the Oakland senator, James J. Coyne.

ANOTHER TALK LEADS TO HINT OF BATTLE

Fisticuffs Averted As Democrat 'Inspects Slums'

William N. McNair, Democratic candidate for Mayor, spent a morning packed with adventure in the Hill district today.

He saw slums which he admitted were the worst he ever saw, got direct word that the organization is instructing its henchmen in the Hill to vote for Herron or Henry, and had an altercation with a city building inspector.

John Ihlder, executive director of the Pittsburgh Housing Association, led McNair to the worst spots on the association's records.

At several of these, McNair made speeches, gathering the Negro residents about him and promising immediate relief if he is elected.

After looking into a cave-like habitation at 2 Franklin way, McNair's attention was called to a place bearing Herron slogans in Roberts street nearby.

VOTE ORDERS TOLD

He walked in for a visit, through a curtained doorway and into a back room decorated with pictures of movie stars and other celebrities. In a corner, two Negroes behind a counter, asked him what he would have.

He inquired about their politics, and one replied:

"The orders in our ward is vote for Herron or Henry."

McNair called attention to the sanitary conditions nearby, but they did not appear interested. When he became warm in his argument, one of them laid a blackjack on the table.

As he was getting in an automobile to leave this place, McNair's roving eye spotted a large shiny car which had drawn up in front of a nearby cafe. He shouted:

"There goes a collector. I'm going to see him get the money."

He dashed across the street with newspapermen and photographers in pursuit. The driver of the big car had disappeared in the labyrinth within, and McNair, after gazing through the front door for a time, gave up hope of being a witness to a transaction.

The next stop was 21 Arthur street, where a wall fell out of a building recently, somewhat to the embarrassment of the City Bureau of Building Inspection, which has been trying to get something done there for several years.

LOUD ARGUMENT

There McNair met G. A. Givens, a building inspector, who declared the bureau is doing all it can under the law. A loud argument followed, which gathered a crowd.

McNair said that he, being a lawyer, knew more about the law than Givens. He said:

"When I'm elected I'll put a stop to this."

Givens replied:

"You have no more chance of being elected than I have."

At this point Givens became so emphatic that physical combat appeared possible, but he said:

"You needn't be afraid. I won't hit you."

McNair countered:

"I'm not afraid of being hit."

Someone furnished a box and McNair made a speech, promising relief from bad housing conditions. He invited Givens to make one, too, but the inspector declined.

Other places visited included 214-18 Hazel street, and an alleged dangerous building in the 1800 block, Bigelow boulevard, bearing Herron's campaign sign.

MEET TO SPEED BANK OPENING

A report on the outcome of a conference with the Comptroller of Currency will be made by a depositors' committee to depositors and stockholders of the First National Bank at Wilkinsburg at a meeting in the Wilkinsburg High School tonight. The committee has been working six weeks to open the bank. Members will explain steps necessary by each subscriber to bring about a speedy opening.

Thomas M. Allen, general chairman, will preside. Speakers will be Joseph T. Miller, chairman of the planning committee, and George R. Craig, secretary.

Roxie Long's Wife Cut In Mystery Attack

Police today were searching for the assailant of Mrs. Virginia DiPippa, wife of Roxie Long, jailed rum conspirator, stabbed early yesterday at the rear of her home at 1828 Bedford avenue. She was treated in Passavant Hospital for a wound in the left shoulder.

According to Mrs. DiPippa, while she was carrying a basket of clothes up the rear steps, a young man crept up behind, stabbed her, and shouted:

"Well, did you change your mind? This isn't the only one you'll get."

She said her attacker used a drugged needle, but police believed he wielded a small penknife. She told police her life has been threatened if she does not separate from her husband, serving a year in Lewisburg Prison for his part in the rum conspiracy case of last winter. She continued:

"I did not leave him when he served his last term in prison, and I'm not the type to leave him now. If these men who send these threats are willing to come face to face with me, I'll be willing to take another stab."

Roxie, she said, also has been threatened for testifying against other members of the rum conspiracy ring.

M'ARDLE AGAIN URGES AUDIT FOR CITY

P. J. McArdle, Independent Republican candidate for Mayor, today charged that delays on public construction have caused large losses of the taxpayers' money. He renewed his demand for an audit of city affairs.

He referred to the building of the lower end of the Mt. Washington road, a job which he declared had been in the Department of Public Works for years before it was started.

The address was made at a noon meeting at his headquarters in the William Penn Hotel.

GARLAND'S WARNING

Councilman Robert Garland, pleading for the nomination of McArdle, said that although Pittsburgh is in good shape financially now, it cannot remain so under a government dominated by James J. Coyne. He said:

"A vote for Herron is a vote for Coyne."

Mrs. J. O. Miller, chairman of the meetings and speakers' committee, introduced Garland, who, in turn, introduced McArdle. Garland said:

"The financial problem of American cities today is greater than the political problem. The National Municipal Review and like magazines lay particular streess on this most important subject. Tax burdens are greater and continue mounting.

"With Detroit in an awful plight, having greatly exceeded its borrowing power and very much embarrassed financially; with Chicago unable to pay its employes and its school teachers; with the great city of New York unable to issue bonds and depending upon the pleasure of the banks, who before loaning must ascertain the purpose for which the money is to be expended, with our sister city of Philadelphia at its lowest ebb financially, we should sit up and take notice.

CITES MISMANAGEMENT

"Don't misunderstand me. Our city is not in this class by any means. But our four largest cities are on the rocks. The cause, mismanagement, inefficiency, extravagance, and the many abuses which creep in and grow in a politic-ridden government, where all consideration is given to politics and very little to business methods.

"There must be a thorough change in the government of our American cities. Budgets must be balanced, economies must be effected, inefficiency and deadwood must be eradicated. Equitable assessed valuations, without favoritism, must be established, with lowest possible tax rates, and politics and all the abuses that follow in the wake of that term and what it implies must be ruthlessly cut out.

"The interest of the taxpayers must be our first and only consideration. The welfare of the people is the highest law."

McARDLE PRAISED

"Of the various candidates running for the office of Mayor, my friend, McArdle, is, in my opinion, the logical man to emancipate the people of Pittsburgh from political rule and ruin.

"You may safely give him your confidence. He has the ability, the knowledge and the experience, as well as the unquestioned courage to do exactly what he states he will do. If you will support him in his candidacy with your votes, doing missionary work in his behalf among your kin and your friends, I know that he will make good.

"More than ever before in our history we need a change—a new deal. We want emancipation from the evils that fester us, and McArdle, as I have state before, will, if you give him your support, prove to be your emancipator."

HENRY BOOSTED BY HAMILTON

C. C. Hamilton, a Democratic candidate for City Council, has indorsed John M. Henry for Mayor because, "he is thoroughly familiar with existing conditions in Pittsburgh and is an honest, respectable citizen and an attorney of high standing."

Henry, he said, would be able to cope with financial conditions facing the city.

The Henry speaking schedule for the week:

Tuesday night, 8:30, Chateau Post, No. 258, Veterans of Foreign Wars, 1500 Sheffield street, North Side.

Wednesday night, Holmes School, Dawson street, near Edith street, Fourth Ward.

Thursday night, address, the Margaret Brent Club, Hazelwood, Miss Margaret McQuade will preside.

Summations Start In Jap Officer Trial

TOKIO, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—The state began summations today in the court-martial at Yokosuka naval base of 11 officers charged with participation in the assassination last May of Premier Inukai and accompanying acts of terrorism.

Direct testimony ended and defense attorneys used as the principal theme of their pleas that American support of the London naval treaty justified the young Japanese cadets in their conviction that Japanese leaders' acceptance of the treaty constituted a national betrayal.

Charleroi Girl Spurns Food for Wood Diet

RUTHANN CUPPETT . . . SHE'D PREFER WOOD TO ICE CREAM

Furniture, Porches Suffer by Child's Odd Craving

CHARLEROI, Pa., Aug. 26.—Two-year-old Ruthann Cuppett's favorite "food" is not an all-day sucker nor even an oversized ice cream cone, but wood.

Yes, wood. A table, a chair—even the wood in the front porch.

Ruthann's mother, Mrs. Ruth High Cuppett, has tried to cure the baby by locking her up, but when released Ruthann hurries to the nearest wooden object.

Physicians are puzzled by the child's craving—especially since Ruthann's teeth seem in good condition and her health appears excellent.

Meanwhile the Cuppett furniture suffers. A dining room table, chairs, cedar chest, dresser drawers and the porch have taken considerable punishment. Nor have neighbors' porches been neglected.

Ruthann is only mildly interested in food and candy.

She's versatile, too. Not because she liked wood was she awarded a prize recently in the American Legion parade, but because she's a mighty attractive young lady.

But her worried mother is anxious to find a cure.

Mackrell to Speak At Women's Meeting

Chairmen and vice chairmen of the women's division of the Progressive Republican party in the various wards will meet in the Gold Room, Roosevelt Hotel, at 2 p. m. today, to plan a campaign of personal work among women of the city.

Joseph N. Mackrell, Progressive Republican candidate for Mayor, and candidates on his ticket, will present the women with a program for the work. Mrs. Walter McFarland, chairman of the women's division, will preside.

Patriotic Society Indorses Walker

The Allegheny County Federation of Patriotic Americans has unanimously indorsed William A. Walker, candidate for judge of the County Court. Walker is a member of the Legislature from the Thirteenth district.

TABOR TO BACK LEAGUE CHOICE

Edward O. Tabor, Council candidate indorsed by the Citizens League, in reply to a questionnaire sent out from Mackrell headquarters, said he fully indorsed the mayoralty candidacy of P. J. McArdle, also backed by the league.

Tabor said he had expected the league to indorse a man of the type of William P. Witherow, and that when he declined, the closest representative to his principles in the field was McArdle. Tabor said he would not support a "typical machine politician," but that a man versed in practical politics was desirable as mayor if he had independence and a sensible business point of view.

Tabor said he had attended no meetings of the league, but gave permission for use of his name "on condition that I be a free agent."

Tabor said he was not personally opposed to the Mellons, that he received no income from them, but "I am opposed to so much of ward and machine politics as can be justly attributed to the political leadership of W. L. Mellon or of anybody else which leads to a departure from the standards" Mr. Tabor set as guiding his choice for mayor.

The questionnaire was sent out by Charles L. Hannan, attached to Mackrell headquarters, and was an effort to show that the league as a whole had not been canvassed before McArdle was indorsed.

Headed by P. J. McArdle, mayoralty candidate, Independent Republican councilmanic candidates will make a tour of the North Side tonight, speaking at four schools. Each of the meetings will begin at 8 o'clock.

Edward O. Taber, Charles Wolff, Howard B. McNutt and Robert N. "Bob" Waddell are the councilmanic candidates.

The schools in which McArdle and the councilmanic aspirants will speak in are Allegheny High, Sherman avenue; East Park, Lockhart street; Horace Mann, Shetland avenue, and Daniel Webster, Reedsdale street.

McArdle will address a mass meeting in Polish Falcons' Hall, South Eighteenth street. The meeting will open at 8:15. Tabor, Wolff, McNutt and Waddell, also are to appear.

Guard Killed Foiling Prison Farm Break

SUGARLAND, Tex., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—J. R. McCall, 44-year-old guard at the Central State Prison Farm here, died yesterday in frustrating an attempted break by 15 convicts.

Officials say McCall was shot through the chest by Beaumont King, 26, a convict, who in turn was shot twice by the guard.

NRA TO SMASH POSTER RACKET

Pittsburgh's first NRA racket activity in the Hill district today brought the threat of prompt prosecution from the headquarters of the local recovery committee against men selling Blue Eagle insignia to merchants in defiance of the government's strict orders.

Sale of NRA placards is prohibited by the National Recovery Administration, according to Frank C. Harper, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce and general secretary of the Pittsburgh recovery committee. He said:

"We will prosecute immediately. There will be no violation of the NRA left unpunished."

Pittsburgh Boy Scouts today undertook the first Scout Blue Eagle drive in the country.

The 250 chosen Scouts spread through the downtown business district to make a two-day census of employers who have not signed the President's re-employment agreement.

The reports of the Scouts will form the basis of a sales drive to start Thursday on those who have not signed codes.

Meetings and speakers for today's NRA drive include:

Andrew H. Blaas, WJAS, 6:40 p. m., and Mrs. Oliver J. Haller, Dormont Women's NRA meeting in Dormont Borough building, 8 p. m.

HAYS RELATES MINES HUNT AFTER WAR

they politely snorted at the idea.

For one thing, the great depths of the North Sea made the anchoring of mines there impracticable, they said. And think of the countless number of mines it would require!

But Roosevelt persisted until, finally, the allied authorities as much as said, "All right. You go ahead and do it!" And he did. Just how he did it I shall tell you later.

But for the moment suffice it to say that an impenetrable barrage of TNT WAS planted between Scotland and Norway.

Up to that time, the German submarines had come and gone from their German bases pretty much at will. As you know, they were the Allies' greatest menace.

But now, that deadly weapon, the U-Boat, was bottled up. Several enemy submarines tried to pass through the mine barrage and were destroyed. Others, badly damaged, managed to return to their bases. And the harrowing stories their crews took back to Germany unnerved the others.

Feared by Germans

So long as they had an even chance against the Allied surface ships, the U-Boat crews were willing to fight. But now they faced a foe more deadly than themselves, a submerged, hidden wall of American mines, waiting to destroy them upon the slightest contact.

Fear grew into mutiny, mutiny into defeat. New crews for the U-Boat could not be mustered. And so the submarine campaign, Germany's only hope for victory, was crushed.

She knew it better than we, and within a few days after the North Sea mine barrage was completed, Germany sent out in a round-about way proposals for peace. Within a surprisingly short time the Armistice was signed, and the war was over.

Now, with the arrival of peace, we had the responsibility of removing every one of the mines we had laid—70,000 of them—21,000,000 tons of TNT waiting to let go the instant anything touched it.

The mines used before we entered the war were a more or less primitive type. They had to be struck with considerable force—the hull of a ship had to hit them—before they would explode.

But ours were far more delicate, and designed especially for the North Sea job. They contained a minute electric battery, and exploded upon the slightest contact with any piece of metal, however small.

They were so sensitive that a ship even approaching them would like as not set them off. Vessels built of anything but wood could not go near them.

Ordinarily the process of sweeping mines is simple enough. It is done by dragging a heavy steel cable between two ships.

In order to keep the sweepwire deep down in the water, to catch the mine's anchor wire, "kites" are attached to the sweepwire just astern of each vessel. These kites fly down into the water, just as a boy's kite flies into the air, and hold the sweepwire down to any depth desired.

When a mine is snagged by a the sweepwire, it is dragged along between the two ships until it breaks away from its anchor, and bobs up to the surface, where it is destroyed by riflefire.

And that's all very simple when you're sweeping up the old-type mines. But these new mines of ours would explode electrically when even the sweepwire touched them, and, what was worse, one mine exploding frequently set off a number of others nearby, more than once directly beneath our sweepers. But I'm telling the story stern-first.

The first thing we had to do, from Base 18 in Scotland, was definitely locate the lines of mines forming the Great Barrage. The mine layers had planted the barrage under the worst of fog and storm conditions, and it seemed unlikely that they could have charted the lines with much accuracy. But we found that they had, with masterful navigation.

Before we started the job of sweeping we must find out, too, just what condition the mines were in. Now that they had served their purpose, we hoped their firing batteries might have become exhausted, rendering them harmless. That would simplify the job tremendously.

Borrowed Schooners

And now, in late November, we could lose no time, for winter days are short in that northern latitude (the same as Greenland). The sun sets there at 3, or earlier in the afternoon. And aside from the shortness of daylight hours, gale follows gale in such rapid succession that no small craft is ever safe in the North Sea.

Steel vessels—and we had plenty of them—could not be used for our first experiments on the mine field. And wooden vessels with steam or motor power always have so many metal fittings about their hulls that they, too, would be in constant danger of setting the mines off, blowing themselves out of the sea.

So we borrowed from the British the only vessels that we could possibly use—two wooden fishing smacks, little sailing ships, 69 feet long. Impractical as the idea seemed—little sailing vessels dragging a heavy cable and kites through the sea between them—they were the only hope we had of getting the information so badly needed.

We hauled them up on the ways at Inverness, to make them as mine-proof as possible. Nail heads in their hulls were driven in and plugged over, and we gave their hulls a heavy coating of tar for insulation.

Then, manned with Navy crews, we got under way, two little old wooden fishing schooners, the Red Rose and the Red Fern, one cold winter afternoon at sundown. Two Navy tugs, the Petuxent and the Petapsco, escorted us the hundred miles north from Inverness to the mine field. The tugs were to stand by while we were making sweeping experiments and give us any assistance we might need when we came off the field again.

Mine Explodes

The next morning we arrived on the southern edge of the barrage. There was an ominous threat in the air as we stood up to each other—the Red Rose and the Red Fern—to rig out our sweepwire and kites.

As we took our positions a couple of hundred yards apart and headed across the lines of mines, dragging our sweep between us, low-flying black clouds scudded swiftly across the cold grey winter sky, and the barometer went down with alarming rapidity.

Afterward, they told us on the Patuxent that we were a pretty sight to see, two tiny white-sailed ships, dragging our sweep, tacking and wearing in perfect unison, keeping station on each other by furling topsls or streaming out a sea anchor to adjust our speed.

Before we realized that we were actually crossing the mine barrage there was a terrific explosion. A towering column of glistening white water sprang high into the air directly at our stern.

The Red Rose was literally lifted out of the water and shaken, as a dog shakes a rat, until it seemed as if our timbers would fly apart. When we settled down into the sea again, water gushed in between our loosened planks until our single hand-pump could scarcely keep us dry.

That was the first of 70,000 mines! The Red Rose had passed directly over it, and the steel sweepwire at our stern had touched it off. We exploded five others that afternoon, but, fortunately, near the center of the sweepwire, half-way between the two ships.

But that first experiment on the mine field was cut short. The gale, foretold by the morning's threatening sky, broke with the fury of a hurricane in the early afternoon. We hurriedly chopped our sweepwire adrift, reefed our sails and set a course to pick up the Patuxent and the Patapsco, long since left out of sight beyond the horizon. With their steel hulls, they couldn't follow us through the mine field.

Vessel Crippled

By 3 o'clock the sun had set, and darkness added to our difficulties. At midnight we sighted the lights of the Patuxent and signaled her to come and take us in tow. But she was suffering equally in the storm. She had lost her rudder. Lieut. Harmer, her skipper, tried to stick with us, rudder or no, but in a little while we lost sight of the Patuxent altogether.

And how it blew! We hove to, under storm jib and stays'l, forward, and triple-reefed mizzen, aft. Then we began to lose our canvas. First, the jib went overboard; then our topmast; and a few hours later the mizzen boom snapped with a crash, and we were completely crippled.

For the next four days the little Red Rose wallowed, helpless, in the North Sea's fury, battered by vicious, mountainous seas that seemed to crash down upon us from every direction at once.

Fearing for the safety of the Red Rose and the Red Fern, British men-of-war put out from Scapa Flow, in the Orkney Islands, to search for us. But they were all forced back into port. They couldn't weather the furious winter storm.

Those were anxious days, back at Base 18 at Inverness. Had it been asking too much of such frail craft, to undertake such an expedition at such a time of year? The North Sea is notorious the world over for the violence of its winter gales.

And when hope had almost ebbed away at Base 18, we telegraphed from Peterhead, 300 miles away, that we had made port. The following day the Red Fern anchored wearily in St. Andrews Bay, a hundred miles farther on.

So ended the FIRST experiment on the North Sea mine barrage.

We had destroyed but six of the 70,000 mines to be cleared away. But we had found out something! The mines were THERE, all right—and still VERY MUCH ALIVE!

All we had to do now was go after the other 69,994. And we got them—every one!

FLOOD CONTROL MEET SET TOMORROW

The first meeting of the committee appointed by Mayor John S. Herron to urge federal adoption of the City Flood Commission's plans for flood control in the tristate district, will be held tomorrow afternoon in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association.

It is expected that definite progress toward early action by the NRA on plans for a system of 10 reservoirs in the Allegheny and Monongahela valleys as a national emergency public works project, will be reported at tomorrow's meeting.

PLANS FORWARDED

Mayor Herron and George S. Davison, president of the Flood Commission, will report to other members of the committee that Maj. W. D. Styer, United States district engineer, has forwarded plans for the project to Washington.

Mayor Herron said:

"With this encouraging news to stimulate us we will doubtless devote tomorrow's session to developing a good, workable plan for having the industrial region in the three states which will benefit from the project take mass action to impress upon the Federal Public Works Administration the necessity for the installation of the protective system of reservoirs."

Engineers say the system of reservoirs will lower the crests of floods to a point where they will no longer constitute an annual danger to life and property. In low water periods, according to the engineers, the reservoirs will aid navigation, protect domestic and industrial water supplies and will have ultimate possibilities for development of hydro-electric power.

BENEFITS CITED

These benefits, it is estimated, will reach a value in excess of $50,000,000 per year and extend from the headwaters of the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers to points as far down the Ohio as Parkersburg, Huntington and possibly Marietta.

The members of the flood committee which meets tomorrow are: Mayor Herron, president; Gordon P. Fought, Mayor-Manager of Wheeling, W. Va.; J. C. McMaster, Mayor of Steubenville, O.; J. G. Payne, Mayor of Oil City; J. Fred Thomas, Mayor of Sharon; A. G. Martin, Mayor of Fairmont, W. Va.; Edward G. Lang, director of Public Works; President Davison, of the Flood Commission, and County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, M. L. Benedum and Joseph F. Guffey have been invited to attend the meeting and act as advisors.

CLAIRE FIGHTS BALM SUIT

International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 28.—Both sides today promised new sensations in the $100,000 love balm suit brought against Claire Windsor, actress, by Mrs. Marian Read, Oakland, Cal., socialite, and scheduled for trial Wednesday.

Mrs. Read charged that Miss Windsor stole the love of her husband, Alfred C. Read, Jr., a young stock broker.

The suit was filed in Oakland and brought here under change of venue.

Numerous letters from Read to Miss Windsor, and from the actress to Read, were expected to figure in the testimony.

Miss Windsor expressed confidence of a favorable verdict.

She said:

"The suit was filed so long ago—it has caused me a great deal of worry and trouble—and I am glad that at last it is going to be over with for once and for all. Then I will be able to get down to work again.

"Now that the thing has been set definitely, I am sure my case has all the merit. Mr. Read got me into this mess and he is going to get me out of it."

O'DUFFY OUTWITS IRISH GUARDS

ENNIS, COUNTY CLARE, Irish Free State, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—While President Eamon de Valera held a large mass meeting here through a 90-minute downpour yesterday, Gen. Eoin O'Duffy played hide and seek with civic guards and addressed a secret gathering of his Blue Shirt organization at Bandon.

After the Bandon meeting, O'Duffy went to Beal-Na-Blath, where 50 civic guards met him and prevented him from addressing a scheduled meeting of the proscribed national guard

WARNS OF DICTATOR

The question of the moment for Ireland, declared President de Valera, is "whether you are going to have a government of the people, by the people and for the people or a government controlled by an individual who appoints himself." He continued:

"Democracy has its weaknesses. But it is a more stable and natural form of government in modern times than any other, and I know the people of Ireland are devoted to it."

CIVIL WAR FEAR

The President said a small group of people was trying to get into power by force, but there was no hope of any such system being voluntarily accepted by the Irish people. He declared:

"I have only one thing to fear. It is that this attempt to bring back the bitterness of Civil war may give rise to disturbances."

At this point one of the President's listeners shouted:

"Shoot the devils down!"

De Valera went on:

"It is because we cannot afford the luxury of disturbances that this government is going to use all the power at its disposal to prevent them.

"The most effective way to deal with our opponents is not to listen to them, not to go to their meetings."

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair
—With—
Patricia Pitt

An Indianapolis, Indiana, girl will join the ranks of the September brides when she marries the son of a Pittsburgh family at an impressive church ceremony in Indianapolis.

An evening wedding at 8 o'clock is being planned by Priscilla Ann Miner, daughter of the Joseph Allison Miners, of Indianapolis, for her marriage to Malcolm Hoagland Tinker, son of the Wesley Rayner Tinkers, of Reynolds street. And the date of the event is Thursday, September 7, to take place in the Tabernacle Presbyterian Church. There is to be a reception and dinner at the Woodstock Country Club later, for the families and a few friends.

Courtenay Whitaker is to be the maid of honor and the bride's only attendant. Wesley R. Tinker, Jr., of Wheeling, W. Va., is to be his brother's best man. Three years ago the bridegroom-elect was best man for his brother when Miss Frances Smith McCanice, became his bride.

Robert H. Isely, of New York, and Paul Martin, Thomas Henderson and Joseph A. Miner, Jr., brother of the bride-elect all of Indianapolis, will be ushers.

Men in Party

After November 1 Mr. Hoagland and his bride will be at home here.

Priscilla is a graduate of Tudor Hall, Indianapolis, and attended the University of Wisconsin. Her fiance is a graduate of the Culver Summer Naval School and attended Carnegie Institute of Technology. In June he was graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md. He is also a member of Alpha Tau Omega of Tech.

Mr. and Mrs. Tinker and their son will leave early in September for Indianapolis.

Helen Whitehill Announces Her Bridal Party

Miss Helen E. Whitehill, whose marriage to Lieut. Samuel P. Crago, will be an event of Saturday, has chosen her bridal party. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Whitehill, of Wilkinsburg.

The ceremony will take place at 2:30 o'clock in the children's chapel of the Second Presbyterian Church, of Wilkinsburg, with the Rev. Dr. Franklin Troupe officiating.

Miss Eleanor Rodgers will be maid of honor and Harold Harrity will be best man. Miss Dorothy Yearsley will play the wedding music and Thomas Bell will sing.

Miss Eleanor Rogers entertained the bride-elect with a bridge party recently, and Miss Elizabeth Johnston was hostess at a dinner.

Lieut. Crago is a commissioned officer in the Air Corps of the United States Marines in Quantico, Va. He completed the preliminary training course at Pensacola, Fla. Both he and his fiance are graduates of Carnegie Tech.

Miss Dolores Weslager To Marry This Evening

This evening at 6:30 o'clock, Miss Dolores Weslager, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Weslager, of Mt. Lebanon, will become the bride of W. Edward Buente. The ceremony will take place in the Temple Baptist Church, Mt. Oliver, with the Rev. O. E. Krueger officiating.

The bride, to be given in marriage by her father, will wear a gown of white organza, with a veil of tulle and lace, finished with a cap of lace.

Her bouquet will be of roses and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Charles L. Jones, as matron of honor, will wear green organza and carry garden flowers. The bridesmaids, Miss Amy Long and Miss Ruth Jones, will wear yellow organza and carry garden flowers, and Miss Dolly Steffens, as junior bridesmaid, will wear green chiffon and carry a basket of garden flowers.

Charles L. Jones will serve as best man and the ushers will include Fred Weslager, Jr., brother of the bride, and Richard Carl. C. A. Weslager, another brother of the bride will play the wedding music.

Both the bride and bridegroom are graduates of the University of Pittsburgh. She is a Delta Zeta, and he a Kappa Sigma.

Mrs. Taylor Federation Chairman for Fair

The State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, under its chairman of work for the blind, Mrs. Clifford C. Taylor, will have an exhibit at the Allegheny County Fair, August 31 to September 4. The exhibit will consist largely of sight-saving methods and, with the co-operation of Miss Dorothy Hossford, Mrs. Taylor will give demonstrations in sight-saving at the booth. There will also be a replica of a sight-saving class and junior clubwomen will be present to assist and explain.

University Women Sell Maps to Aid Fellowship

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

A new project for raising its contribution to the national $1,000,000 fellowship fund has been undertaken by the Pittsburgh branch, American Association of University Women. The local members are selling pictorial maps, as are members all over the country.

These maps, which are entitled "The Conquest of a Continent," show the westward progress of the pioneer. They are pleasingly lithographed in full colors and are historically accurate, their authenticy having been checked by Miss Agnes Larson, of the history department of St. Olaf's College.

A panel at the top of the maps shows the three determining factors in American history, the peoples who came here, the land they found, and the inventions which made possible the "conquest of the continent."

The political story of the country is told, too—by means of 29 pictures portraying significant historical scenes, the pageant of characters being led by Christopher Columbus and ending with Woodrow Wilson.

The map even has humor, for there are a number of whimsical pictures which supply it. The map's historian, Mrs. H. K. Painter, of Minneapolis, is a graduate of Mt. Holyoke College, where she majored in history and laid the groundwork for the historical research which found expression in the map. It has been painted by August Kaiser.

The annual flower show held by the Beaver Garden Club is set for Friday and Saturday in the Beaver High School gymnasium. The ways and means committee of the club sponsored a garden bridge at Mrs. W. P. McConnel's home last Tuesday as a benefit for civic improvement funds.

FIRST FALL COSTUMES WORN WITH OR WITHOUT JACKETS

AS YOU know, first fall flurries bring out suits, and as the calendar already heralds autumn, it is logical enough to discuss town costumes with cold-weather possibilities. These suits often have dresses that are complete enough to be worn without the jacket—which meanwhile hangs safely in a closet in preparedness for the first cold snap. If you think back to previous years you'll remember how this change in the weather comes along suddenly, with little or no warning. Fall is like that. To meet this situation, a dress with a matching jacket is perfect.

* * *

THE WAY of a coat with a dress (illustrated in the distinguished black woolen suit at the left) is interesting. The hem of this jacket exactly touches the hem of the bright contracting tunic beneath. Necklines, being quite important this season, are frequently furred to draw attention. This suit takes to Persian lamb, very, very new in treatment, with the tie of fabric running through the roll collar to knot once and hang loosely in front. Double epaulets are small and neat, with a modified feeling that stresses the newer slim shoulders and slim sleeves. We are definitely saying adieu to all wide exaggerated shoulder emphasis. The attention is going from there to one of two places, the neckline or the skirt. Remember this when you shop for fall clothes that you expect to appear fashionable in this winter. Otherwise, you'll be "dated."

* * *

THE ENSEMBLE to the right is a distinguished example of dress-and-jacket arrangement. The detachable little capelet of gray kidskin compromises between cape and jacket. It is a grand complement to the matching gray woolen dress with a knubby surface. The shoulders are flat too, but neckline interest is provided cleverly in back. An extra strip of fur is set on at a sober straight angle across the shoulder blades. The dress beneath has the same treatment. The whole costume is set off by a single note of elaboration, a glistening metal belt.

AS YOU CAN see by these two suits discussed, fashion says that you may have your choice—take your jacket short, or take your jacket long, whichever meets your whim. The important thing to remember is that jacket suits are prominent, and at least one should be in your wardrobe. Accessories that go hand in hand with these clothes are spectator sports in type. Large, roomy handbags in soft calf and comfortable walking shoes are good ideas.

TELL IT TO ELSIE

Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Decency Is Sign of Fineness To Be Proud of

Is it "smart" to tell shady jokes?

And are you just a flat tire if you won't tell them, or listen to them?

The Four Kids would like to know.

They were brought up to believe you could have plenty of fun and still be decent and dignified.

But the other night they went to a party, and—

Here's the whole story. What do you think of it?

Dear Miss Robinson:

This letter is about rank jokes. I would like to know your opinion of them. So many people seem to think it's a sign you're "smart" and knowing, and a live wire, if you tell them or listen to them . . . and a dead head if you don't. I'd like to know what you think.

We are four girls who were brought up to be decent and have clean minds. We're full of fun, and we like wisecracks, and we're by no means dull.

Well, some time ago we attended a party. The party was going along fine, when a couple of fellows started telling stories that we wouldn't be proud to tell our mothers. We got mad and left the room . . . and this made those boys mad. We soon found that they thought they were "livening up" the party. That got our goats. We've always gotten along fine, and been plenty lively, without any such stuff, and we can't see any reason why a person can't have plenty of fun without bringing that kind of "liveliness' up.

WERE TALKED ABOUT

But we've since found out that after the party was over we were talked about, and called "green kids" and "dim bulbs" and a lot of other uncomplimentary things. Do you have to listen to stuff like that . . . or peddle it yourself, to show you're grown up and know your way around?

We're not babies. We're from 19 to 21 years old. And we have been told plenty about life, in a decent way. We're no old fogies by any means. What do you think about it all? Do you think a girl should listen to raw jokes? We always try to do the right thing, and we are honestly not interested in them. They seem entirely unnecessary, and a pain-in-the-neck. Is there something the matter with us because we feel that way?

We would appreciate your honest opinion on this subject.

THE FOUR KIDS.

WILL BE HONORED

Must a girl listen to raw jokes? Is she just a big baby if she won't?

No, youngsters. You're right . . . and if the crowd doesn't like your style, get a new crowd! Decency is not a sign of "greenness." It is a sign of fineness and fastidiousness. It is up to you to choose what you want to be in this world.

And, regardless of what cheap and vulgar people think, the regular folks in the world will honor you for choosing to be regular yourselves. Nor will you lack for friends or fun, providing you're jolly and friendly, and go in for good sportsmanship.

No really smart or witty person has to "liven things up" by being dirty. Only people whose bulbs are dim have to fall back on such stupid, dull ways of finding "fun."

So stick to your guns, kids.

Fay King Writes of Hero Worship Bestowed on the Unworthy

By FAY KING

The fact that many shallow characters have enjoyed prominence for a little while proves how optimistic the public is, and eager to approve and applaud.

Hero worship is almost second nature, and it seems that any hero is better than no hero.

When no better choice is possible the public will bestow its patronage and praise upon the less worthy and even the unworthy.

But the fact that this fame is fleeting and such favorites are soon discarded, proves that they filled only a temporary need, and that the public is really searching for the worthwhile, which alone endures.

We seem more tolerant of the trivial and shoddy today only because we silently turn from it so easily in a short while to something we believe better.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

Prepare Now for Old Age

It is natural for youth to disregard the fact that years are passing and old age is approaching with almost unbelievable speed. Perhaps that attitude of mind is the chief joy of early life. It is cruel to disturb it.

Dr. Copeland

As a matter of fact, I shall not propose that you give up a single one of the many things you love to do. If they are healthful, stimulating, decent and proper, go ahead with them. As the Preacher said in the book of Ecclesiastes:

"Rejoice, O young man, in thy youth, and let thy heart cheer thee in the days of thy youth, and walk in the ways of thine heart, and in the sight of thine eyes."

Let me remind you, however, that youth will grow into middle life and middle life into old age. Because of this, let me quote further from the Preacher:

"But know thou, that for all these things God will bring thee into judgment."

If we are to learn a lesson from these words, perhaps it is this: We should so order our lives that old age shall not be a burden to ourselves and to our friends. We should prepare for the time when desire shall fail and strength is lost. We must be ready for old age and learn how to be happy when it comes.

One of the great mistakes men and women make, men more than women, is not to have an avocation, a diverting hobby of some sort. Women have needlework or some similar occupation to busy their hands and divert their thoughts. But may I say to them, too, that the cultivation of some sort of a fad is not a bad idea.

Even during the World War, I am told, King George of England occupied himself an hour or two a week in going over his stamp collection. He had that brief respite from the agonizing thoughts of the war horrors and the anxieties of government.

It makes little difference, no difference, indeed, what you choose to do, so long as it actually entertains, refreshes and amuses you. Golf, chess, checkers and other games; coin collecting; the reading of books that relate to some particular subject—biography, history, government, political economy—it matters not just what so long as it holds the interest and continues to do so; flower gardening and plant and bee culture—these are but a few of the hobbies that enter my mind at the moment.

If you love music never give up playing your favorite instrument. As old age approaches give yourself more devotedly to your avocation.

How is health maintained? It is by keeping the heart active, sending cleansing and purifying blood to body and brain. That keeps the muscles elastic, the vital organs in a state of normal vigor, promotes digestion and clear thinking. It keeps you feeling fit and promotes good nature. It makes you a desirable companion. A real interest in life has this effect.

Prepare for old age by doing every day those things that stimulate the heart. The surest way to do this is to cultivate and practice a hobby.

Given in Marriage

A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge's Efforts to Avoid Visit to The Larches Are Nullified

As Mrs. Ticer's high-pitched voice, asking for the use of the telephone, came to us from the side porch, Lillian grinned over at me.

"I simply can't help it, old dear," she said. "It looks as if fate had insisted upon making you use Hugh's telephone."

But I gave her no answering smile.

"I imagine the public telephones in Bridgehampton or Sag Harbor are still working," I said curtly.

"No doubt they are," she returned, wrinkling her nose at me, "and if you refuse to do your Girl Scout good deed for the day in brightening the corner for Hugh and Lee Chow, you might accomplish it by taking Mrs. Ticer home. She evidently walked up here."

"I'll do that," I said promptly. "She, no doubt, has some errand in Bridgehampton. I'll take her over there, telephone Mr. Veritzen, and bring her back home again."

"A noble program, nobly planned," Lillian laughed. "But while you have the opportunity, just give our old friend and neighbor the once over. Isn't she simply priceless? The only one of her kind in captivity."

"I shouldn't call her exactly in captivity," I said, smiling, as I hunched my chair around for a better look at my neighbor.

MADGE IS CAREFUL

"No," Lillian agreed with a sardonic little grin, "not with husband Sam and son Jerry jumping the way they do whenever she snaps a whip. But you can't deny she's the only purely mid-Victorian left in this end of the island."

"She is, indeed, priceless," I murmured, "and not only in looks. She's worth her ample weight in gold or in diamonds."

It was but a second later that Mrs. Ticer was in the room, inquiring with courteous solicitude about my ankle, before coming to her errand. When I had assured her that my ankle was practically well, she looked at me with an amused little smile.

"Katie said I was to ask you if I could use the telephone," she said.

"Do you think you need my permission?" I asked her warmly. "Don't you know that you are privileged to walk into this house and use or take anything in it, whenever you wish?"

She smiled again at me, gratefully, but with a sort of whimsical stubbornness.

"Not when Katie's on the job," she said, and I wisely made no answer. I knew from long experience the feud which exists between Katie and Mrs. Ticer over my housework. In these later years it has softened somewhat, and could probably be described now as an armed truce instead of a feud, but I am always conscious that any chance indiscretion of speech or action on my part would fan into life the smoldering embers between them.

SUGGESTS THE LARCHES

"I hope our telephone is working," Lillian said. "Come to think of it, I haven't heard its dulcet tones for an hour or more."

"It may be off, at that," Mrs. Ticer said. "There's a fire over Bridgehampton way, and Mrs. Pindar, down the road, said her phone was out. But it's Sag Harbor I want to telephone, and I think your phone ought to be all right, although you have a Bridgehampton number. You're quite a ways away from me, you know. But there's only one way of finding out and that is to try it. So, if you'll excuse me, I'll try to get my number."

She walked quickly away, and returned almost as swiftly.

"Your phone's dead, too," she said, "so, as I'm in a hurry, I'll walk down toward the harbor."

"I'll take you down," I said quickly, "for I have to do some telephoning myself."

She demurred, as she always does at my doing anything for her, but yielded at my insistence and in another two minutes we were out of the door and in the car.

"I wonder if you'd mind stopping at The Larches to phone," she said, when we were out on the road. "I'm in such a terrible hurry, and I'm sure they're on the Sag Harbor circuit."

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

Quite a splash is being made by the printed crepe evening frock done in large splashy floral prints. Such a model done in blue, mauve, white, yellow, black in a huge splash pattern has a one-side shawl drapery that almost covers one arm. The silhouette is princess, the skirt has a slight train.

To the ground go many of the new evening wraps, designed for autumn wear. Satin will be the favored material. A new wrap made with a full-length fitted silhouette is of lustrous black satin with a cape of white fox and double borders of the fox at the cuffs of the sleeves.

Under cover are hands and arms these days, as more and more women turn to summer gloves. With sleeveless dresses, one girl wears long gloves of white silk, the upper arm marked by close shirring to the elbow.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Wedding Plans

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I am to be married next month and I am contemplating a church wedding. For an evening wedding, about 7 o'clock, would tuxedos be all right for the male attendants if I wear white with a veil, or should they wear full dress suits?

2—Would it look too cold if there was no reception following the ceremony?

3—For an afternoon wedding, at 4 o'clock, is the proper attire for the male attendants striped trousers and the cutaway coats?

BETTY.

1—Since you are planning to wear formal bridal attire, the groom and his attendants also should wear formal attire, to be consistent with the standard that you are establishing for your wedding. Therefore, they should, to be correct and to be appropriately dressed, wear tailcoats, formal evening attire.

2—No. There is no reason in the world why a reception should be held after the ceremony if the bride does not wish to have a reception. Many brides omit this social function, preferring to have all the emphasis on the marriage ceremony. Also, in these days when budgets have been such a serious matter, the reception has been the first thing to be eliminated from the list of expenses.

3—Yes, this is the correct attire for the groom and his attendants if you are planning a formal wedding.

Motoring Attire

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am going to visit a friend of mine at a military camp in the afternoon. I am traveling by car. What sort of an outfit should I wear? S. D.

A sports suit or dress, one that will stand up well under the strain of motoring so that you will look as fresh as possible when you arrive, would be the appropriate costume.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

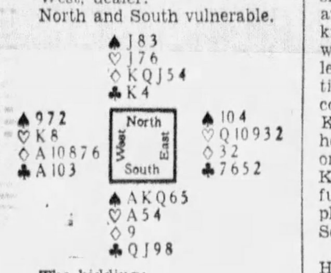
By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Careful Play

In the recent team-of-four match held at Asbury Park the two eventual finalists won the semi-final event by fairly comfortable margins. One of the swings which enabled the team of Messers. Waldemar von Zedtwitz, Louis H. Watson, Samuel Fry, Jr., and Edward Hymes, Jr., to win their match occurred on the hand below, in which Mr. von Zedtwitz and Mr. Fry sat North and South.

West, dealer.

North and South vulnerable.



The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♡	Double
Pass	1 N T	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠
Pass	Pass	Pass

East's heart bid, which was very doubtful and would not have been made except by a player who believed in keeping the bidding open very light, had the effect, in this instance, of indicating to West the best Opening. He laid down the King of hearts, a low card was played from Dummy, East signalled with the nine, and South now had a decision to make. There was no reason to believe that West did not have a sound Opening bid. Therefore he must be marked with both the diamond Ace and the club Ace. This being the case, East could not possibly have any way of getting into his hand to run the heart tricks unless West were able to lead the suit to him. Therefore but one line of play was open to Mr. Fry, the Declarer. This play was to allow the heart King to hold the first trick, playing on the assumption, which seemed pretty certain, that East had five hearts and West had two.

West, of course, continued with a heart, and the second trick was won with the Ace. The rest of the play was quite simple. Trumps were drawn, and the diamond Ace was knocked out of the West hand, which now did not have a heart left to put East in for the setting trick. The Dummy, of course, was reached through the King of clubs, and a losing heart and club were discarded on the diamond Queen and Knave. Thus the contract was fulfilled by means of careful play, which was marked to South from the bidding.

At the other table, West, Mr. Hymes, chose to pass his hand, and East and West accordingly never entered the bidding. Mr. Hymes, with no bidding to go by, also chose as his Opening lead the heart King, and it turned out to be a brilliant lead, indeed. South in this instance had no possible indication as to where the Queen and Ten of hearts lay, and naturally assumed from the King Opening that West held the Queen of that suit also, and even if he did not, there was no reason for South to believe that he held the only two cards of reentry. Therefore South went up with the Ace of hearts on the first trick, and from this point on had no play to make the hand as, as soon as West was in with his diamond Ace, he led a heart, and the two hearts were cashed, which, together with the Ace of clubs and Ace of diamonds set the contract.

The Hostess

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The hostess always rises when she greets a guest. She rises, shakes hands with the guest and says some gracious words of welcome. Also, when the guest is about to depart, the hostess rises, shakes hands with the guest, and says something like this: "Thank you so much for coming," or "It was such a pleasure to me to have you come."

Household Hints

Perspiration stains can be removed from silk or other fabrics with lemon. Place the stained portion over a basin of hot water, hold tightly, and squeeze lemon juice on the stain. Rub gently, dip the part into water when the stain has disappeared, squeeze out and iron.

Add two or three drops of malt vinegar to the last rinsing water when washing white and Shantung silks to keep a good color.

A little ammonia added to water used for cleaning windows will enable you to clean them more easily and twice as well.

KROGER-STORES

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W.: In one of your pillars from Hollywood you offered the item that Eleanor Holm and Art Jarrett would middle-aisle it in six weeks . . . Then when you were holidaying, not a few contemporaries belittled that report, by asserting it was a publicity stunt or that Miss Holm, feeling sorry for you, decided to give you an item, etc. . . . Well, Eleanor and Art took out a marriage license on the coast . . . Gertrude Neisen, cast for "A Party" at the Playhouse, wasn't programmed, and so I told most of the critics her name . . . Grace Moore, who says "please" prettily, urges no more scallions. She says she never in her professional career kept anyone from rating all the breaks and during the final weeks of the failing "Du Barry," she worked without wages, so that all the chorus boys and girls could be paid. . . . If you people ever have a son I have a grand name for him—swell ad for the column, too—Reed Winchell.

Incidentally, there are no police in the new movie "Police Call" . . . Mrs. Jessie Costello is expected at the St. M. . . . Edna Hibbard, while playing in Chicago, had another breakdown; pretty sick girl. Friends rushed her to a farm in the Mid-West. Always one of my favorite actresses . . . The show girls are panning Bettie McDonald's "expose" on the Ziegfeld Girl—so it must be good . . . One of those stories made the rounds of the town the other day that J. J. Shubert has a mass of coin left by an unnamed benefactor, who hopes it will be handed out to distressed showfolk. . . . Jay Faggen, the press agent, says the column is tougher to break than a landlord's heart.

You are about to be sued for a mess of money by several society people, now in Hollywood. . . . They were grouped at an affair there the other night discussing a slam in which they were mentioned as having been to "The Garden of Allah" where Bankhead was hostess—and that while very gay they jumped into the pool with all their clothes on, etc. . . . And so the other night they all resented your so-called story about it and—after much "egging on" by others in the party—decided to teach you a lesson and take it to the courts. . . . That, in substance, is the phone call that came this afternoon from Archie, just returned from there, and he thought you ought to know and be prepared and he was very worried about you. . . . I waited until he was done and then amazed him by telling him that you never penned such a story at any time and that all concerned apparently were confused over such a tale that appeared elsewhere. . . . It must be such a lark being you. . . . Woollcott says you keep dancing a jig on the hot stove of Broadway—the best description yet.

Tammany's candidate for District Att'y, Magistrate Dodge, ought to get a lot of votes . . . Since being transferred to Traffic Court—he suspends almost every sentence . . . By the way, the maximum sentence in the Night Court (still the best dramatic show in town) is six months . . . A prisoner is entitled to five days off each month for good behavior . . . If you come up before some of the judges there, though, you lose all that good time if they hand you five months and 29 days, which is being done a lot lately . . . I promised not to reveal names, but a certain woman whose betrothal has been announced to a millionaire, just this Summer begged a milliner friend for any sort of a job, anything she urged, to keep body and soul together . . . The milliner was sorry, etc. . . Imagine such a break for one who was so miserable only recently? . . . The Chrysler Tower, hoping to stimulate trade, will give sightseers a large photo of themselves for the 50c admission fee. Peggy Rich's new "heart" isn't Edward Maxwell. He's her new "find," whose voice is like Bing's.

I thought this would amuse you . . . In Mr. Brady's play "A Party," Edward Broadley, who always is seen as a butler—has been promoted to the role of a foolish-looking dramatic critic—Mr. Brady's cunning little way of avenging himself on the reviewers . . . That Hollywood strike, which has retarded so much progress, is over a battle between labor unions, I hear, and not with the producers, the only ones to suffer . . . I think that the advertising of the screen version of MGM's "Dinner at Eight" is the most dignified newspaper ad yet—none of that shrieking, sensational stuff—and the drawings are very good . . . From their best friends I learn that George White and Lew Brown aren't really reconciled, although someone got them to shake hands, while both were feeling high . . . After they shook paws, each went looking for a bottle.

After reading your groan in "Portrait" about the sluggish and stupid movie shorts, I thought of this: In any library may be found a wealth of material perfectly fitted for "shorts," and in many cases the producers only have to take them . . . I mean the one-act play, that form of dramatic expression seldom heard out of the classroom . . . Every playwright indulged just for the fun of it, you know; the list includes Eugene O'Neil, Elmer Rice, Pirandello and many others . . . Surely the royalty would be equal to the tidy sums wasted on most of the "short" story-tellers, many of whom ought to be jailed . . . There it is, at any rate . . . The next time you're in the mood for good music, hear Henry King's crew on the Pierre Roof . . . Did you know that Gen. Johnson, the big NRA and Blue Eagle man, used to write army love yarns for the mags? . . . John Gilbert's new contract doesn't call for $75,000 a picture, as reported—John gets $3,500 per.

If you want the tastiest hot tamales in town—go look for the guy who peddles them for a nickel at midnight via a pony and cart. . . . His beat is the theatrical district and he is getting rich quick. . . . The commentators on the coast, I hear, didn't make a mention of Jean Malin's going . . . He played all their benefits and parties, too. . . . Here's a twist on the NRA thing. A friend of mine, who manufactures ladies' hosiery has never known a depression. When he was told about the NRA and code and so forth he said he'd be happy to help and he suggested putting on a third shift of men . . . No, he was told, that wouldn't do—he was doing too much business, while so many other firms have been shut down for years. In sum, he was obliged to turn over part of his business to another company, a rival, so its factory could be reopened. Of all things! . . . The plague of sleeping sickness in St. Louis, I think, is explained in this fact—Bernie just played there . . . Oh yes—the "lowdown" on the sudden bust-up of Janet Snowden's sudden merger to that Prince is a German named Bernard Berghaus—Your Girl Friday.

Cary Grant To Star as A Marine

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 28.—Virginia Cherrill needn't worry about Cary Grant while she's away in Honolulu, for the tall Paramount actor is going to be swamped with work.

As soon as he finishes the Mae West picture, Cary is scheduled to take the leading role in "Come On Marines," a brand new story by Phillip Wylie, to fit the title that Paramount once announced for a Buddy Rogers-Richard Arlen vehicle.

In the revised version, Cary will play an Annapolis cadet who leaves the Naval Academy with his courage under question, but who proves himself under another name, fighting with the Marines in a Central America revolution.

The role will be virtually a starring one for Cary and he'll start it some time in September.

Take it from Marie Dressler, bankers have a sense of humor too. She met one in Santa Barbara recently and he said:

"For years I've been wanting to meet someone who can make people cry and laugh, too. I've only been able to make them cry."

Hollywood Parade: Wrestler Gus Sonnenburg can't forget his estranged wife, Judith Allen. In Reno to get a friendly divorce, he is having his car shipped back to Hollywood and put at Judith's disposal.

Considering the billing he'll receive, the giant Primo Carnera will make a studio appearance of record briefness. Five days will see him through with his part at M. G. M. Those five days, however, will find every free executive and player on the lot visiting the set in the hopes that either Primo or Max will let a real one fly. Originally expected on Thursday, Carnera slips in here tonight in a private car. Studio executives hope to persuade both him and Baer to dress up in evening clothes and make an appearance next Tuesday night for the "Dinner at Eight" premiere at Grauman's Chinese Theater.

Miss Jordan

Ginger Rogers' ma is turning fan magazine writer. She's the author of several plays, you know . . . Would you call this an English sense of humor? Someone told Mimi Jordan the other day that her slip was showing. Just as a test, she left it that way all day. Thirty-three people called her attention to it.

The Marquis Henry de la Falaise will not lose a foot of the film that he had to keep on ice during his stay in Bali . . . Wallace Smith's gay novel, "The Captain Hates the Sea," is in its seventh edition . . . Arthur Sheekman and Nat Perrin will write for Samuel Goldwyn for the next three years . . . Labor Day will see Irene Dunne's husband, Dr. Francis Griffen, on his way back to New York.

John Barrymore is due here the first of the week . . . Did you know that Sally Eilers' brother, Bud, also acts in the films? He's doing a small part in Sally's current picture, "Walls of Gold" . . . Edmund Anthony Brown, the original "Whitie" of "Queer People," is turned actor for Mae West's picture, "I'm No Angel."

And of all the amateur scenarios, I like best the one turned in by a bootblack near the Fox Western avenue studio. In the big scene, the hero walks into the kitchen, discovers his Negro cook murdered and says:

"Well, I guess we'll have to get a new cook. This one is dead."

Did You Know: That Wallace Beery is a lieutenant commander in the United States Naval Reserve, a battalion chief in the Los Angeles fire department, an inspector of the Immigration Department, a lieutenant in the Los Angeles air police, a deputy fish and game commissioner, a deputy United States forest ranger and a licensed United States transport pilot?

Alice White Is Signed To Long Contract

Alice White, petite blonde, has been placed under a long term contract by Universal. Miss White will have a prominent role in "The Good Red Bricks," featuring Margaret Sullivan, which will be placed in work by Director Harry Pollard as soon as Miss Sullavan complete her important assignment in "Only Yesterday." If production schedules permit Miss White may also appear opposite Chester Morris in "Kid Gloves."

'The Pink Chemise' To Be Movie

Paramount has purchased "The Pink Chemise," Philip Wylie's action-romance of the Central American jungles, which ran as a short story in a magazine a few months ago. Cary Grant, currently occupied opposite Mae West in "I'm No Angel," will play the leading role when he finishes his present assignment. Philip MacDonald, English novelist and playwright, is adapting the piece for the screen.

The Alibi

IT WAS the strangest sort of a friendship. Not only was there a wide disparity in the ages of the two men, but they were as totally different in all other ways as it was possible for a pair of individuals to be.

Pop, the elder of the two, had never harbored a dishonest thought. He was a mild-tempered old soul. He was conscientious and simple-hearted. His entire interest was bound up in the small store that afforded him his humble living.

Louie was a jailbird. The total years he had spent in various establishments founded for gentlemen of his ilk embraced the major portion of his short life. He had never done an honest day's work. And the chances were that he never would.

Yet, in his own peculiar fashion, he was more or less fond of the old man. During the short intervals between his stretches he spent considerable time hanging around the back room of Pop's store.

There we found the two men on the evening that our story opens. Pop was contentedly counting over the day's receipts. Louie was not quite so content. He had something on his alleged mind. In another part of the town there was an overcrowded safe, the contents of which, Louie felt, were merely awaiting his own practised hand.

And yet he hesitated. He needed an alibi, an air-tight alibi.

He glanced over at Pop, speculatively. Pop, he knew, would never lie for him. The cops would know that, too. They had an uncanny gift for knowing whether or not a man was telling the truth. But if the old man could be used, unwittingly, as an alibi, then Louie would be all set.

As he stared at Pop, a suspicion that had been lurking in his mind took definite shape. The manner in which Pop was poring over the bills served to strengthen that suspicion.

Louie drew a two-dollar bill out of his pocket. He threw it down in front of the old man.

"Hey, Pop," he requested, "gimme two fives for that ten, will you?"

The older man picked up the bill and hesitated over it.

"Okay," he murmured finally, "just take 'em off that pile there."

Louis exulted. Just as he had supposed! The old bloke was nearly blind. He couldn't distinguish figures any longer. Louie knew, too, that Pop was sensitive. Knew he'd never admit that his eyesight was faulty. Then the plan occurred to Louie—the air-tight alibi.

He glanced at the clock on the mantel. It was almost 10 o'clock.

"Gee," he exclaimed, "it's almost eleven already. I gotta blow, Pop. Gettin' late. You oughta be in bed too, Pop. Eleven o'clock's too late for an old guy like you to be sittin' around."

The old man looked up and nodded.

Louie fairly flew out of the store. Now he was all set. It wouldn't take him an hour to crack that safe. Then, at eleven o'clock, he'd breeze into some joint and stay until dawn, some place where plenty of people would be sure to see him.

When the dicks came for him, Pop would swear he'd been in the store until eleven, and after that he was all set.

He hurried across town, careful to stay in the shadows of the buildings, so that no one would spot him.

The actual cracking of the safe took only a few moments. At 11 o'clock he was seated in a more or less respectable restaurant. He conversed idly with the waiters and the proprietor. Then, a few hours later, he took himself into an all-night coffee shop where he lingered until almost dawn.

Everything was fixed. Louie knew, but he was getting out of town anyway. He'd pulled it off this time, but he mightn't be so lucky on the next occasion. Then, too, there was no future in the city with the cops watching him. In the early forenoon, he packed his humble belongings and departed for the station with the intention of boarding a train that would carry him many miles away.

Sad to relate, however, Louie never boarded the train. A detective in plain clothes laid a heavy hand on his shoulder and requested the pleasure of his company as far as headquarters.

A few minutes later, Louie faced three men across a table.

"It's good to see you again, Louie," grunted one of the men. "We've sorta missed you around here. And just to make it like old times, suppose you tell us just what you did last night?"

The crook narrowed his eyes. Then he grinned.

"Last night?" he repeated. "Well, let me tell you something, wise guys. If you've pinched me for something that was pulled off last night, you're workin' on a bum steer. It wasn't even around last night—and I can prove it."

Louie drew a long breath.

"Well," he began, "I never left my hotel until 9 o'clock. Then I walked over to the West Side, and I dropped into the store that Pop Ryan owns. And you wanna know how long I stayed there?"

"Sure," said the first detective softly. "Tell us."

"Until after 11 o'clock," cried Louie triumphantly. "So I guess that shows you that——"

The detective nodded.

"That shows us all right," he interrupted. "Do you want to sign a confession now and save us all a lot of trouble?"

Louie saw the three men star at him strangely. Cold perspiration popped out on his forehead.

His voice trailed off. For the first time he glanced down at the morning paper that was lying face up on the desk. A headline screamed up at him.

"Shop Keeper murdered," it read. "Robbery the Motive. Daniel Ryan, proprietor of a small store on the West Side, was found slain in the back room of his shop early this morning."

And on and on, Louie tried to tear his eyes away from the printed page, but he could not. Then he came to the last line—and he almost collapsed. For only a lover of irony would have appreciated the grim jest it contained.

"The time of the murder," it read, "was definitely placed by the medical examiner as between ten and eleven o'clock last night."

Fairbanks to Star Son in England

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 28.—Plans of Douglas Fairbanks to produce pictures in England, some of them starring or co-starring Doug Jr., can be taken as the father's formal seal of approval on his son's motion picture career.

When the junior Fairbanks received his first film offer, as a raw and untrained youth, the elder Doug did not look favorably on his plans. In fact, the talk at the time was that he openly opposed them, possibly because of the fear that the boy was being given a good salary because of his Dad's name and fame, and that it might spoil him.

Doug Jr. went right ahead, however, and made the picture. He was not a great hit, and it was not until the boy, on his own initiative, made a stage appearance here that it began to look as though his intentions were serious. He kept on in pictures, worked up from featured leads to what some of his friends still consider a premature stardom with Warner Brothers.

Meanwhile he had married Joan Crawford, whose star was rising even more quickly than his own. All this time the elder Fairbanks had stood by, not unfriendly, but letting Doug Jr. make his way on his own. It was some time ago that intimates began to hint that big Doug not only was reconciled, but also was actually proud of "Little Doug's" achievements on the screen. Even when Fairbanks thought his boy was misguidedly seeking a movie career, however, Doug Jr. came to him for advice—and got it. There was a time when his father was young Doug's only "agent," in ths advisory capacity. Now M. C. Levee, the Screen Guild organizer, is Doug Jr.'s manager, and incidentally, is opposed to the plans for his client to remain in England.

Among their projected films to be made abroad is one in which Fairbanks will revive his Zorro character, with young Doug as Zorro's son.

...to Anticipate Your Fall and Winter Needs at August Prices

AT the beginning of the month the SUN-TELEGRAPH suggested the slogan, "Buy in August"....This was done only after a most careful and comprehensive survey of trade conditions, indicating that prices would be higher in the Fall....We supported the Pittsburgh merchants in their August sales campaign because we believed that we were rendering a constructive service to every thrifty family by urging them to anticipate their merchandise needs. The results thus far have been most gratifying. Merchants report the best August in years. The public by falling in line with the SUN-TELEGRAPH campaign have protected themselves against future increased costs, and, by spending more freely they have helped to create employment for a great many more persons.

The government, through General Hugh S. Johnson, National Recovery Administrator, is urging the public to buy now, and thus co-operate to accelerate the Recovery program. One thing is reasonably sure—prices of many commodities will be higher this Fall, so those who can afford to buy now will benefit themselves, and at the same time help somebody else get and hold a job.

Read the store news featured in this issue of the SUN-TELEGRAPH by the leading merchants of Pittsburgh. They bring the message of savings to the reader. They remind you to take advantage of August Prices on Fall and Winter merchandise.

PHILS LEAD PIRATES IN FIRST GAME OF DUAL BILL

SPORTS

By HARRY KECK

Sports Editor.

County Fair Sports. Varied, Interesting.

Carnera Speaks.

NOTRE DAME HARD HIT BY LOSSES

Sporting events make up a large share of the elaborate Allegheny County Fair program to be held at South Park from next Thursday to and including Labor Day, the following Monday, and should provide many of the thrills of the occasion.

Gar Wood

There is something for everybody in the sports line. Look over the list:

Polo, soccer, track and field, swimming, harness racing, horse show, dog show, military drills, aerial displays, rodeo.

Almost everything but baseball and mushball, and they likely will be added to the program. It is incomprehensible not to include our national pastime in the list. A golf driving test and tennis and horse shoe pitching exhibitions also might be added, if it isn't too late to include them.

The committee in charge of the fair merits a bunch of orchids for its efforts to make the games interesting to so many devotees of sports, and will reap its reward in a gratifying turnout of enthusiasts.

FADEOUT EMPHASIZES MRS. MOODY'S GREATNESS

The dramatic withdrawal of Mrs. Helen Wills Moody on the verge of collapse in the final set of her match for the National singles tennis title at Forest Hills Saturday drew a mixed response from the followers of sports.

To many of these who remember her as Miss Wills, the pigtailed girl who came East a decade ago to begin one of the most amazing climbs to fame in any women's sport, her crash from the heights was tragic. Others there were who had not warmed to the former "Poker Face" because of her attitude of reserve through all of the years of her success, and they were not sorry to see that other California Helen, Miss Jacobs, retain her laurels against the rival who had outstepped her across the seasons.

Regardless of any individual views on the matter, the shock occasioned by the fadeout of Mrs. Moody from the tennis picture in such striking fashion emphasizes the important position she has held in the sport. She was a great champion, and may come back to be a great one again.

PIRATES REACH 'WAIT 'TIL NEXT YEAR' STAGE

It's just about all over but the shouting so far as the Pirates' chances in the National League pennant race are concerned, following their three straight defeats by the league-leading Giants in their four-game series at the Polo Grounds on Friday and Saturday. If any club is to give the Giants a fight, it will not be our local outfit, but Bill McKechnie's Boston Braves or Frankie Frisch's St. Louis Cardinals.

We were up in there for a long time, and, with some breaks, might be there yet, but right now it looks as if we'll have to begin rehearsing the chorus of that theme song of seven clubs in each major league each fall, entitled: "Wait 'Til Next Year." It goes something like "Wait 'Til the Sun Shines, Nellie," only it's different.

GAR WOOD FIGURED CERTAIN WINNER AGAIN

Officials of the American Power Boat Association look for Hubert Scott-Paine, the Englishman, to give Gar Wood a real race of it for the Harmsworth trophy in their series in the St. Clair River near Detroit beginning next Saturday. They don't think he can win with his Miss Britain III, but they believe he will force the Detroit master to a new record. Scott-Paine himself says he doesn't expect his small craft to win, but will be satisfied with a good race.

So far challengers of Wood's speedy crafts have been very unfortunate in the way of mechanical and technical difficulties. Scott-Paine, a mechanic, who designed the airplane that won the Schneider Cup several years ago, has brought along with him eight other mechanics to help him overcome any mechanical trouble he may encounter, and he will not be caught short.

Steps will be taken to prevent a repetition of the 1931 farce, when Wood admitted he pulled a "Yankee trick" on Kaye Don at the starting line.

WALK TO RING TOUGHEST STRAIN, PRIMO SAYS

Take it from Primo Carnera, the heavyweight champion, talking during his visit here over the week-end, the toughest part of a big fight for a boxer is not the fight itself, nor even the training, but the walk from the dressing room down to the ring and the wait for the gong to clang for the first round. After that it's just another night's work.

Incidentally, when Primo visited St. Anthony's Orphanage here, Constable E. Helwig tried to put a pair of handcuffs on the big fellow, but they were only about half large enough.

NOTRE DAME HARD HIT BY GRADUATIONS

Few major college elevens will have to make as many replacements in the front line ranks this fall as Notre Dame, which plays its customary tough schedule. Here are the stars lost from last year's team by graduation:

Ends, Paul Host and Ed Kosky; tackles, Joe Kurth and Mike Leding; guards, Jim Harris, Norm Greeney and Bill Pierce; center, Ben Alexander; quarterbacks, Chuck Jaskwhich, Laurie Vejar and Emmett Murphy; other backs, Mike Koken and Joe Sheeketski.

Quite an imposing array. But Coach Hunk Anderson will find a way to carry on.

VIGNETTES OF THE SPORTING SCENE

Enid Wilson, British woman golf champion for the last three years, will be one of the most formidable contenders for our National championship in the tournament getting under way at Exmoor, Chicago, today . . . This is her third trip to the United States and her game is at its peak . . . Although there have been denials, the dope still is that Babe Ruth will pass on to the Chicago White Sox as manager next year . . . They're quoting the Washington Senators as a 7-10 bet to beat the Giants if they meet in the world series, and already both teams have able men scouting each other for weaknesses . . . The expert dope is that the Senators' more experienced pitching staff will outshine the great young mound corps of the Giants.

Tom Lawry, father of Tim Lawry, former Pitt basketball star, is running for Burgess of Emsworth . . . Like all structures of its kind everywhere, the $3,000,000 Cleveland Municipal Stadium has turned out to be a white elephant . . . It's too big to be of any use to anyone and can't be made self-supporting . . . The Cleveland Indians may pull away from the Stadium after next season, when their contract expires, and return to their own park . . . Southern California enters the football season this fall with a record of 20 consecutive victories and with all of its opponents loading their punches for the good old Trojans . . . Good news to one and all: Jim Long will be back from his vacation to resume writing this column tomorrow.

HELEN JACOBS' DOCTOR TELLS OF AILMENTS

What They Say:

Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen (from La Baule, France)—I think Mrs. Moody must have reached the end of her physical endurance, or she would not have defaulted. I would not say she "quit."

Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory (to whom Mlle. Lenglen defaulted in 1921)—Mrs. Moody defaulted because she feared defeat.

Miss Helen Jacobs (victor in match)—Did Mrs. Mallory say that? Well, she usually speaks her mind. I can't say. Only Mrs. Moody herself knows what her condition was at the time.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—As an aftermath of Helen Jacobs' sensational victory over Helen Wills Moody in the women's National tennis championships, Miss Jacobs' doctor today disclosed why the titleholder played through the tournament against his advice and that it was necessary to resort almost daily to stimulants to keep her going.

Miss Jacobs, according to Dr. Thomas C. Chalmers, of Forest Hills, suffered "acute inflammation and condition of the gall bladder," in addition to which "her heart condition was by no means as good as it should have been."

The physician explained that the champion's insistence upon her "duty" to play through to the finish in defense of the championship was such that he was compelled to yield to her wishes.

STIMULANTS USED

Stimulants were used by Miss Jacobs between the second and third sets of her match with Mrs. Moody, who defaulted after losing the first three games of the final set. The statement by Dr. Chalmers follows:

"Miss Jacobs played through the tournament against my advice. She fainted at Seabright after her match with Miss Sarah Palfrey. Following that, upon consultation with me, there was an acute inflammation and condition of the gall bladder. Her heart condition was by no means as good as it should have been for her athletic competition. She insisted upon playing in the tournament, and it was necessary for her to be under constant treatment by me in order to have her play. The remarkable thing is that she was able to play.

"In her matches it was necessary for her to take stimulants, even while playing, as it was her idea that as champion she must compete all the way to the end."

Two years ago, shortly before the Wightman Cup matches with the British, Miss Jacobs had an attack of ptomaine poisoning and was advised by Dr. Chalmers not to compete. Again at her insistence, he treated her and she went through the series.

Hitchcock Through For Polo Season

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Tommy Hitchcock is out of the polo wars for the rest of the season.

The world's only 10-goal player has been suffering from concussion of the brain ever since the second game of the recent East-West series at Chicago and has been forbidden to play any more polo until 1934.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF LAST SATURDAY: A DOG'S LIFE—Estevao Fora, a Brazilian slave, made several attempts to escape prior to the Brazilian Emancipation Act of 1888. In accordance with custom he was muzzled by his owners in 1854 to mark him as a runaway, and the muzzle and collar were not removed for 34 years, until the Act of May, 1888, which made slavery forever illegal on Brazilian soil. He then was given a little plot of ground to cultivate and died in Rio de Janeiro in 1901 at the age of 67.

center. Klein singled off the right field wall, sending Bartell to third. Hurst was out, Thevenow to Suhr, Bartell scoring and Klein stopping at second. Davis flied to Jensen. One run. Two hits.

SECOND INNING

PITTSBURGH—Vaughan singled to right. Suhr flied to Klein. Thevenow singled to right, sending Vaughan to third, as it began to rain. Grace walked, filling the bases. Swift hit into a double play, Knothe to Warner to Hurst. Two hits.

PHILADELPHIA—Schulmerich lined to Thevenow. Warner was safe on Thevenow's fumble. Knothe walked, as the rain began to fall heavier. The fans hurried to points of safety and time was called. After a wait of 30 minutes, play was resumed, although it was getting dark again. Elliott struck out. Fullis singled to center, scoring Warner, and sending Knothe to third. It began to rain again at this stage. Bartell forced Fullis, Vaughan to Thevenow. One run, one hit, one error.

THIRD INNING

PITTSBURGH—Jensen bounced to Warner. Lindstrom flied to Klein. P. Waner was tossed out by Knothe.

PHILADELPHIA—Klein rolled to Thevenow. Hurst popped to Thevenow. Davis grounded to Thevenow.

FOURTH INNING

PITTSBURGH—Traynor struck out. Vaughan singled through the box. Suhr singled off the right field fence, sending Vaughan to third. Thevenow doubled to center, scoring Vaughan and Suhr. Thevenow continued to third when Bartell threw the relay wild to the plate. Grace fouled to Hurst. Swift tapped to Elliott. Two runs, three hits, one error.

PHILADELPHIA—Schulmerich singled to center. Warner sacrificed. Swift to Suhr. Knothe singled to left, scoring Schulmerich. Elliott flied to Lindstrom. Fullis singled to left, Knothe stopping at second. Bartell singled to left, scoring Knothe, Fullis halting at second. Klein was out, Thevenow to Suhr. Two runs, four hits.

Bill Terry, Mel Ott Escape Suspensions

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—(INS.)—Bill Terry, manager of the league-leading New York Giants, and his hard-hitting outfielder, Mel Ott, today escaped with an official scolding following a run-in with Umpire Ted McGrew in the second game with the St. Louis Cardinals yesterday at the Polo Grounds. John Heydler, president of the National League, said:

"I am cautioning both players against such outbursts. Under the circumstances no suspensions are justified."

ITALY ADVANCES

ROTTERDAME, Holland, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Italy today was safely past the 1934 Davis Cup elimination play with a 3-and-2 victory over Holland. In the two final singles matches yesterday Hans Timmer defeated A. Redo, Italy, 9-7, 6-1, 6-1, 6-1 to tie the series, but Giogio De Stefani, Italian ace, came through with a 6-3, 6-2, 6-1 victory over W. Marsten to take the series.

MISS HICKS LEADS FOR MEDAL AT EXMOOR

ENID WILSON, MISS VAN WIE MATCH PAIR

BULLETIN.

EXMOOR CLUB, HIGHLAND PARK, Ill., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Clipping par by one shot with a 78, Helen Hicks, of New York, 1931 titleholder, led the early finishers in the struggle for the National women's golf championship medal here today.

EXMOOR CLUB, HIGHLAND, PARK, Ill., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Shooting the same type of game that has captured seven consecutive titles this year, Helen Hicks, of New York, took an early lead in the race for the National women's golf championship medal today by scoring a 37, two under par, over the first nine at Exmoor.

Two shots behind the husky girl who won the National title in 1931 and then failed to qualify the next year, was Miss Enid Wilson, winner of the English championship three years in a row. Miss Wilson was two under par through five holes, but became a trifle wild with her tee shots the rest of the way, scoring even par 39 for the nine.

CONDITIONS IDEAL

Except for a slight wind, scoring conditions were almost ideal for the 113 starters. Moost of the early starters were above the 40s on the front nine, but Miss Lucille Robinson, Des Moines, Western champion, and Miss Rena Wilson, 20-year-old Chicago girl, joined the English champion with perfect 39s.

Two of the top-ranking contenders for the championship, Maureen Orcutt, of Haworth, N. J., and Mrs. Leona Cheney, of San Gabriel, Cal., stuck in the medal flight, Miss Orcutt scoring a 38 and Mrs. Cheney a 39.

CHAMP MATCHES PAR

Virginia Van Wie, of Chicago, defending titleholder, scored even par 39 out and might have had a 36 except for two three-putt greens and a missed putt from two feet that would have given her a birdie.

Mrs. A. H. Means, Salt Lake City; Mrs. H. F. Prunaret, Jr., Newton Center, Mass.; Mrs. A. W. Clapp, St. Paul; Mrs. Arthur Millea, Roslyn, N. Y.; Mrs. Tom Wallace, Tulsa, and Mrs. W. B. Cameron, Ann, Arbor, withdrew.

W. & J. Grid Game Officials Named

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 28.—W. H. Friesell, Princeton, and Dex Very, Penn State, were the only officials to draw two assignments each as referees of Washington & Jefferson College football games this fall. West Virginia (Nov. 30)—Referee, W. H. Friesell, Princeton; umpire, F. W. Carson, Penn State; linesman, A. W. McMillan, Pitt; field judge, Dean Watkeys, Syracuse.

Mrs. Singer, Net Partners Victors

Fifteen couples participated in yesterday's intra-club round robin mixed doubles tournament at the Allegheny Country Club. Mrs. George H. Singer, Jr., and J. J. Lincoln, Jr., took first honors with total of 31 games won. Fanny Goodyear, Cooperstown girls' star, and J. H. Keeney, Mrs. D. M. Simmons and Oliver Keller, and Virginia Doyle and Charles J. Ramsburg, Jr., ended in triple tie for second place with respective marks of 28 games. Other results:

Mary Robinson and W. D. George, Jr., 23; Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Robinson, Jr., 21; Mr. and Mrs. George L. Craig, Jr., 20; Mrs. W. P. Snyder, Jr., and George R. Hann, 20.

Books, Gillespies To Clash Again

The Books are to meet the Brentwood Gillespies this evening at Olympia Park in the feature sandlot game of the schedule, with the outcome of the game having much bearing upon the second half race for the City League title. Yesterday the Books defeated the Gillespies, 14 to 4.

The Pittsburgh Crawfords were nosed out by the American Giants, of Chicago, 9 to 8, at Indianapolis yesterday.

BUENOS AIRES.—(AP.)—The Argentine Athletic Federation has lifted its suspension on Juan Carlos Zabala, Olympic marathon champion, thus paving the way for his appearance on American tracks this year.

PHILADELPHIA.—(AP.)—Edward Lee, New York Athletic Club swimmer, beat off 40 challengers to capture the 10-mile title of the Delaware River yesterday. Lee, who won the crown in 1928 and again in 1931, the last time it was contested, covered the distance in 2 hours 15 minutes.

OMAHA.—(AP.)—Gene Sarazen, national professional golf champion, and Joe Kirkwood, Canadian open champion, gave Johnny Goodman, national open titleholder, and Rodney Bliss, Nebraska State champion, a neat lesson in team play here yesterday to defeat them, 3 and 2, in a best-ball match witnessed by 2,000 spectators.

FAIRMONT, W. Va.—Bobby Lowe again won the annual White Day golf championship yesterday, defeating Jackson Blair, 12 and 10, in the final.

KITTANNING, Pa.—Jay Swigart yesterday broke the Kittanning Country Club course record with a score of 31-35—66.

LOCALS PLAY AT CHICAGO

By TOM BIRKS

As the cream of the nation's feminine golfers tee off at the Exmoor Country Club, Chicago, today, in the qualifying round of the national women's championship, now held by Virginia Van Wie, of Chicago, Western Pennsylvania will focus its attention upon the doings of three of its younger stars, Betty Abernethy, of Oakmont, and Mary Kuhn and Barbara Warmcastle, of the Pittsburgh Field Club.

Ted Luther, popular Valley Heights professional, has been under the weather for a few days. Ted started to get around again yesterday and will resume practice today. He wants to get into shape for the tri-state P. G. A. tournament, as he is the defending champion.

It is likely that a large delegation of local professionals will make the trip to Hershey, Pa., next Friday for the 72-hole medal-play tournament. Vincent Eldred, of Highland, has entered, and Toots Erath, of Edgewood; Emil Loeffler, of Oakmont, and Perry Del Vecchio, of Greensburg, are contemplating making the trip.

BASEBALL COMEDY

—By NICK ALTROCK—

Nick Altrock

CLEVELAND, Aug. 28.—Since last May, when they got to the top by accident, the experts have been yelping, "When do the Giants start slipping?" It now begins to look like the Giants' answer is "Yes, we have no banana peels."

I've been looking for signs of slipping myself, but I guess Bill Terry's boys are wearing the same kind of shoes as those Alpine mountain climbers. Unless there's a leak in the valves, I expect the Giants will stay in the stratosphere till it's time to come down for the world series.

Oh, well, New York ain't a bad town for our Washington club to play its out-of-town world series games. And the Gotham fans that were saving up to see the Yanks in the autumm classic will have to get their money back and hop over to the Giants' ticket window. It's a strange world, after all.

WILLOW LOFT BIRD WINS

Weeping Willow, to the Willow loft of the West Penn Combine, turned in the best average in the young bird race from Cochocton, O., yesterday. The bird's mark was 1254.61.

Silver Top, to the same loft, was second in 1254.02 and N. R. A. owned by Fred Miller, of the West End Homing Club, was third in 1233.31.

VETERANS WIN DOUBLES

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Two new sets of champions have been crowned as officials tied up the loose ends of the rain-hampered national doubles tennis tournament at Longwood.

Richard Bishop and George P. Gardner, of Boston, whose official duties in connection with the tourney prevented them from competing in it in former years, gained the national veterans' title with a surprising 6-4, 6-4 victory over Dr. William Rosenbaum and Fred C. Baggs, of New York, who were victors three times during the past six years.

The only other match yesterday was a second round mixed doubles contest during which Elizabeth Ryan and Ellsworth Vines, the top-seeded domestic team, defeated Polly Palfrey and Thomas Jansen, of Brookline, 6-2, 6-2, to enter the semi-finals against Dorothy Round and Fred Perry, of England. Sarah Palfrey and George Lott qualified for a semi-final against Margaret C. Scriven, England, and Jack Crawford, Australia.

CLUB PLAYERS NEAR TITLES IN PARKS PLAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Bracket-of-eight and semi-final frays grace today's bill of hostilities in the District XI, parks-playgrounds net tournament in progress on the South Park courts. With club players of the caliber of Russ Unger, of Stanton Heights; Harry Wald, of Shannopin; Henry Ackerman, of Rockwood; Jack Redmond, of P. A. A., and Frank Broida, of Edgewood, eclipsing municipal rectangle entries in the respective masculine events, the competition promises speedy action between now and windup of play Wednesday afternoon.

MRS. KAUFFELD WINS

Mrs. Helene Kauffeld, Mt. Lebanon contender, and Elizabeth Cone, dark horse performer, achieved the women's singles final yesterday. Mrs. Kauffeld eliminated Margaret Esser, North Side star, 6-1, 6-1, while Miss Cone eliminated Hazel Dixon, Rockwood hope, 6-1, 6-0. The trophy tilt will be staged at 5:30 p. m. tomorrow.

Miss Dixon paired with Ruth Challis, of Sewickley, to crash the feminine doubles finale at expense of Louise Cassidy and Marie McColligan, 6-1, 6-2. The ladies' dual event will be completed at 5:30 tomorrow along with the two-man terminal tussle, the men's singles final alone to be left for Wednesday.

Unger paced the field into the man-to-man semi-finals with a 6-0, 6-3 verdict over Al Lazar, from Highland Park. Meanwhile, Wald upset Redmond, 7-5, 6-3, in round four as Ackerman downed Milton King, 6-3, 6-2.

Meanwhile, out East End way, Billy O'Loughlin, P. A. A. flash, and Frank Broida, recently crowned Western Maryland premier, blazed impressive paths to the final of the second annual Stanton Heights invitation men's singles tourney on the Heights lot. O'Loughlin nosed out George Henderson, 5-7, 6-4, 5-4. Broida unslung too many guns for light-hitting Eddie Alcorn, 1932 Pitt racquet captain, and hustled off with 6-4, 6-3 verdict.

STARS IN EXHIBITION

The third of a series of special tennis exhibitions was held at the Pittsburgh Country Club, Beechwood boulevard, early last evening. Broida, Billy O'Loughlin, John Brown, of Mount Lebanon; Dolly Harris, of Edgewood; Miriam and Paul Sullivan, took part.

Entries for the Beaver County championships at Ambridge and the Allegheny Mountains championships at Westmont, near Johnstown, will close Thursday night, W. C. Jack is handling names for the Beaver milling. He may be addressed at Freedom, Pa. The Westmont get-together may be entered by writing to T. E. Owen in care of the Westmont Tennis Club, Westmont.

COLLEGE GRID CAMPS OPEN THIS WEEK

By JESS CARVER

College football comes bouncing into the limelight today, unusually early for these parts, where Labor Day ever has been considered the official date for the opening of training camps.

Actual competition was inaugurated at Beaver Falls this morning as Jimmy Robertson, former Carnegie Tech star, making his debut as a college mentor, called his Geneva College Covenanters together for their first workout. Meanwhile, preparations for the opening of camps this week at Waynesburg and Duquesne went on, the Jackets being scheduled to get going Wednesday and the Dukes on Friday.

Bob Schmidt, also a former Tech star, is assisting Robertson at Geneva, where Howard Harpster left his fellow alumni a trio of ace performers around which to build this year's Geneva team. The trio, Cliff Aultman, Art Grahame and Capt. Shorty Trioana were on hand for the roll call this morning.

Thirty-one varsity candidates will report to Coaches Elmer Layden and Joe Bach on the Bluff Friday, with just two weeks to go before the opening game of about the toughest season a Duquesne eleven ever has looked forward to. The Dukes have the honor of staging the first college game of the country with Waynesburg, September 15 under the lights at Forbes Field.

Akron Race Pilot Sets Sharon Mark

SHARON, Pa., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Bud Henderson, of Akron, established a new track record at the Sharon Speedway yesterday in winning the 25-mile feature automobile race in 23:06.4.

Jack Jariusso, of Pittsburgh, won the first 25-mile event.

One accident, in which the machine of Bill Carr, of Cleveland, crashed into a guard rail, marred the races. Carr was unhurt.

BRAVES GAIN IN PENNANT RACE WITH GIANTS

SENATORS HOLD LEAD OVER YANKEES

Associated Press.

Despite the snapping of their eight game winning streak, the Boston Braves, sensations of the National League, had clipped another half-game off the New York Giants' lead today and found themselves six games out of first place.

With a crowd of 40,000 urging them on, the Braves hung up their eighth successive win as Tom Zachary pitched a 7-0 shutout over the Cincinnati Reds in the first game of a doubleheader yesterday, but the Reds came back to snare the second 5-3.

Their even split still enabled the Braves to pick up half a game on the Giants, who dropped the first game of a twin bill to Dizzy Dean and the St. Louis Cardinals 7-1, and then were lucky enough to get a 5-5 draw in the second battle, halted by darkness after eight innings.

GIANTS, CARDS TIE

The Cards apparently had the second game won with a four-run rally in the eighth, but Fred Fitzsimmons parked a homer in the left field stands in the last half of the same frame to give the leaders a tie. A crowd of 50,000, biggest of the National League season, saw the double bill.

Brooklyn divided a doubleheader with the Chicago Cubs, bowing, 2-0, to the two-hit pitching of Guy Bush in the opener, but winning the second, 5-2, on a 12-hit attack on Bud Tinning and Leroy Herrmann.

Pittsburgh and Philadelphia enjoyed an open date.

The American League situation remained unchanged as both the Washington Senators and New York Yankees split doubleheaders.

A crowd of 60,000 saw the Senators bunch 13 hits with nine Cleveland errors to win the first game, 14-1. Cleveland drove Alvin Crowder to cover with a six-run outburst in the sixth inning, to take the second game, 6-3.

YANKS SPLIT EVEN

Tom Bridges held the Yankees to four hits as Detroit won the opener, 4-3, but the champions smashed out 22 hits, including nine doubles, a triple and a home run, to take the second, 12-2, before a crowd of 30,000.

Al Simmons collected five hits and drove in six runs as the Chicago White Sox took both games from the Philadelphia Athletics, 5-3 and 9-8.

The Boston Red Sox and St. Louis Browns split a double bill, the Red Sox taking the first game, 7-5, and St. Louis the nightcap, 5-3.

South Park Riders Rout Monongahela

The South Park polo team, riding and stroking in splendid form, walloped the Monongahela riders, 13 to 1, in the second game of the week-end series at South Park yesterday afternoon.

Landau and Ackerman led the South Park attack, each scoring five goals. Dette tallied for the visitors. The lineup:

SOUTH PARK—13.		MONON—1.
Fish	1	Lowstuter
Landau	5	Miller
Ackerman	Back	Dette

Substitutions—Schwartz for Fisher, Voltz for Ackerman, McClaren for Schwartz. Goals—Landau 5, Ackerman 5, Voltz 2, Schwartz, Dette, Fouls—Lowstuter, Fisher. Safeties—Lowstuter, Miller. Referee—J. Roy Degenhardt.

Ft. Pitt Marksmen Beat Girls' Team

The Harrison County Girls' Rifle Club, composed of a dozen Cadiz girls directed by a former University of Pittsburgh graduate, were defeated 985 to 975 by members of the Fort Pitt Rifle Club yesterday. Each contestant fired 20 rounds at targets set at 50 and 100 yards. The contest was held on the Fort Pitt range on the Graham boulevard outside Wilkinsburg.

BOBBY JONES' GOLF

By BOBBY JONES

Only Golfer Who Has Won U. S. and British Amateur and Open Championships in the Same Year.

When dealing with any one special feature of the golf swing, obvious limitations prevent us from always considering it in its relation to other parts. Yet it always must be understood that a close interdependence of the successive movements exists and that a discussion of one alone always is offered on the premise that the others are correct, or would be so except for trouble in the locality under consideration. One of the chief difficulties encountered by the teachers of golf arises because in almost every movement of the swing a certain amount of variation is permissible for which correction can be made in succeeding movements without affecting seriously the soundness of the whole. Although the allowable departure never is large, it is enough to deter the sensible instructor from prescribing and insisting upon any exact course of movement.

Bobby Jones

There never comes a time when it is more important to consider this inter-relation of the movements of the swing than when the effort is being made to correct some persistent fault. For often the noticeable defect is more a manifestation of the error than the seat of the trouble itself. Whenever the eye of the instructor alights upon such a mistake it is not for him immediately to set to work upon what he has first seen, but to endeavor to look beyond to the first cause.

TRACING THE TROUBLE

Here is a case in point. Not long ago, in the course of a round, my iron shots began to waver a bit and I hit a couple of wild hooks off the tee. It was not difficult to note. I suppose I was displeased, so one of the other players informed me that my right foot was dragging forward and my right leg was very slack as I came into the ball.

This was, of course, enlightening news, for I had not felt it myself. I knew something was wrong, but could not apply the right corrective. But this was only a clue, an indication, for it would have done no good merely to set out to keep the right leg straight. To make a long story short, I traced the trouble to my left wrist, which I had wholly neglected in concern over my hip movement. I was either failing to cock the wrist during the backswing, or discharging them too early in the downstroke. In any event, I was arriving in the hitting area with my wrists nearly straight. This prevented my hitting through with the left side and caused me to swing every shot over to the left. The exaggerated roll of the right shoulder pulled the right foot out of place.

WRIST ACTION

The discharging of the wrist-cock needs very little conscious direction. The wrists are opened mainly by the increasing speed of the clubhead, although there is a feeling of continued driving with the left arm, and of a certain amount of stretch in this arm as the hand presses down against the upward thrust at the left shoulder.

The objective part of the wrist-action comes in retaining the angle long enough, and accurate sensing of the proper instant to let go is the essence of good timing.

For a most satisfactory demonstration of this phase of the wrist-action in connection with the left-side thrust, I am particularly indebted to my friend, Frank Sampson, of Atlanta. The relation of these two actions with each other and with the hip movement are admirably illustrated in a set of skeletonized drawings which Sampson prepared and furnished me sometime ago. They were made from motion picture studies against Sampson's Spots 'N' Lines background.

HELEN JACOBS' HEALTH POOR

Miss Helen Jacobs denies there is any personal animosity between Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, from whom she won by default in the National tennis tournament final here last Saturday, and herself. She said:

"Helen Wills and I are certainly not close friends. We have apparently nothing in common. I do not see that we should be expected to cling to each other for the sake of photographers. Helen is certainly not a demonstrative person. I'd call her cold. And I cannot see myself ever making any display of emotion."

Mrs. Moody sent Miss Jacobs no personal message before she left for the coast and Miss Jacobs sent Mrs. Moody none before she left for a vacation in Marblehead, Mass.

Before leaving, Mrs. Moody said she proposed to play no more tennis for at least six months.

BACKED BY BRITISH

LONDON, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Helen Wills Moody's default to Helen Jacobs in the American tennis championship final provided a major sensation for the British press, which continued to give front-page prominence to the story today.

The London Star commented:

"If Mrs. Mallory's assumption that she (Moody) walked off because she did not want to be beaten is true, it belies her struggle at Wimbledon against Miss Round when, in spite of her recent injury, she fought hard and long to win.*Some Americans give her no more sympathy that a Roman crowd gave a defeated gladiator. English temperament is more generous."

The Evening News said:

"It seems a little ungracious that Helen Wills Moody's retirement in collopse from the court should be followed by cries of 'Don't quit.' A great figure has gone, if only temporarily, from the field of sport. It's better to do her honor."

SINGLE CRITICISM

The News Chronicle pointed out the defeat was not so sensational, since "Helen clearly wasn't physically fit to play," but the Telegraph, under the heading "End of Tennis Reign," remarked:

"The pity is not that Mrs. Moody failed, but that she failed the way she did . . . It's almost incomprehensible that Mrs. Moody didn't summon up sufficient resolution, however unequal she felt to the occasion, to finish a set in which she already had lost three games. Even if she had lost them all without winning a point she would still have gone down like a champion."

TO TAKE LONG REST

BERKELEY, Cal., Aug.—(AP.)—Mrs. C. A. Wills praised Helen Jacobs as one who "deserved to win" the women's national tennis championship, but said she felt sure the default of her daughter, Helen Wills Moody, was not going to put her out of the championship running. She said:

"I believe Helen Jacobs deserved to win because she had tried so long and so hard."

Mrs. Eula H. Jacobs, mother of the winner, declared:

"It's too bad Mrs. Moody had to default. It is always more satisfactory if such things can be fought out to the finish."

Dr. C. A. Wills, Mrs. Moody's father, said he had talked to his daughter by telephone after the match and that she plans "to come home for a six months rest."

SMITH EQUALS PAR TO TAKE WESTERN OPEN

OLYMPIA FIELDS, Ill., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—After an eight-year absence, MacDonald Smith, the old Scot, was back on the Western Open golf championship throne today.

Refusing to fade out against one of the largest fields that ever sought the title, the 43-year-old veteran who makes his living making clubs at Nashville, Tenn., and beating the younger generation in golf championships, won the Western Open crown with ease yesterday, finishing the 72-hole grind at Olympia Fields with a 282 total that beat his closest rival, Tommy Armour, of Chicago, by six shots. The trophy and top money of $500 went to Mac after his victory march.

Third in the championship test was Abe Espinosa, of Chicago, 1928 champion, who ran second to Mac until the sixty-third hole, winding up with third place money of $200 with 289. Armour's prize money was $500.

MAJ. CAVANAUGH LOSING FIGHT FOR LIFE

MARSHFIELD, Mass., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Maj. Frank W. Cavanaugh, of football fame, today lay critically ill at his Marshfield home.

The World War hero and nationally known football coach sank rapidly through the night and he was not expected to live through the day. He recently underwent an operation.

While football coach at Dartmouth, Boston College and Fordham he created some of the most spectacular teams in modern football history.

Many People Come to Me and Say "Is Now the Right Time to Buy?"

So many people—personal friends and customers have asked me this question. They have heard that wholesale prices have soared; and they have read the recent announcements by furniture merchants who have urged them with every known selling phrase to take advantage now of the lowest prices they will ever see. So—all these people, my friends who depend upon my integrity, ask me to tell them the truth of the matter.

I say to them what I say to you. It is my honest opinion, founded upon many, many years of experience in the furniture industry, that today's values at today's low prices will never be equalled. This is no excuse to buy if no need exists; but if you require new furniture for your home, by all means make your purchase now. I am personally helping you to do this by offering the most liberal credit here at May-Stern's. I hope that we may have the pleasure of serving you—soon.

1 DEAD, 8 HURT IN CRASH NEAR WAYNESBURG

One man was killed, a woman seriously injured and seven other persons received cuts and bruises in a triple collision of automobiles near Waynesburg early today.

The dead man, Edward Siers, 30, of Clarksburg, W. Va., was a passenger in the automobile of Carl K. Coughlin, 24, also of Clarksburg, which collided with a truck and then struck another automobile behind the truck.

Miss Anna McGary, 32, of New York, also a passenger of Coughlin, suffered a fractured skull. She was taken to the Greene County Memorial Hospital where her condition was described as critical.

The others injured were Coughlin, Mrs. Hallie Harr, 42, of Clarksburg; Earl M. Parker, 33, of Fairview, W. Va., truck driver, and George Bond, his wife and their two children, of Morgantown, W. Va., in the third automobile.

CHILD KILLED

Said to have run into the side of an automobile driven by Patrick McKenna, 50, 307 Amber street, on Penn avenue, East Liberty, last night, Anthony Cheesy, 13, 4224 Millgate street, suffered injuries which resulted in his death at Pittsburgh Hospital shortly after the accident. McKenna was to post bond before the Coroner today pending an inquest.

Police were investigating night clubs said to have been visited by Mrs. Charlotte Appel, 32, of 1124 Allegheny avenue, North Side, and Thomas Smith, 32, of 502 Broadway, McKees Rocks, before they were fatally injured when their automobile struck a pole in California avenue early yesterday morning. Both died a short time later in St. John's Hospital.

CRASHES INTO POLE

According to police, their car had broken down and was being pushed to a garage when Smith lost control, crashing into the pole. Both Mrs. Appel and Smith were unconscious when removed from the wreckage.

Mrs. Appel's body, taken to the morgue, was identified by her sister, Mrs. Alfrieda Willard, of 425 East Burgess street, North Side. She was the mother of four children.

The Coroner's office today was attempting to get in touch with Mrs. Cora Cone, of 177 Pennington avenue, Prescott, Arizona, to have her appear at the inquest into the death yesterday of George E. Dillis, 57, of 7334 Formosa way, from injuries sustained last month when struck by an automobile at Frankstown avenue and Sterrett street. Mrs. Cone, said by police to have been driving the car, posted a forfeit and was released on a reckless driving charge after the accident. Blood poisoning resulting from lacerations of the arm caused the victim's death.

Harry Cornman, 36, of 655 Allegheny avenue, Oakmont, was killed and his wife, Mable, was injured, last evening when their auto crashed into a truck while en route to visit relatives at Clarion. Mrs. Cornman was taken to a Clarion hospital as was Joseph Eberline, 23, of Clarion, driver of the other car.

SUSPECT HELD, FARMER FREED

Joseph Boda, Sr., West Deer Township farmer, at whose home Charles Zinkowski, 20, alleged bandit and Army deserter, was captured by county detectives Saturday, was released after questioning yesterday. Boda's son, Joseph, Jr., 23, suspected of being one of three accomplices of Zinkowski in a $5,000 brewery payroll holdup in Baltimore, is still sought.

According to County Detective Chief George W. Murren, Zinkowski and Boda, Jr., with two other men, deserted the Army at Camp Meade last Tuesday, stole an automobile in Baltimore, armed themselves, and held up the Globe Brewery Company.

Changing cars, they drove here to the Boda farm, according to the detectives, where Boda, Jr., and Zinkowski hid. Their two companions disappeared. Surrounding the Boda farm house Saturday, detectives arrested Zinkowski, and brought the elder Boda to Pittsburgh for questioning.

Zinkowski will be returned to Baltimore aut ities.

AUTO STRIPPING SUSPECT SHOT

William Cicanti, alias Angelo, 20, of 77 Clifton Park, North Side, is in a serious condition in Allegheny General Hospital today with a bullet wound in the head. The youth, who, police say, was caught stripping an automobile, was wounded when the owner of the car fired three shots at him and his companion.

According to testimony at a hearing in Morals Court yesterday, Charles Schlacter, 35, of 400 Chatauqua street, early yesterday found two men were stripping his automobile. He called to them to stop, and then fired three times. Cicanti fell, and his companion, George Himmelrich, 20, of 1532 Monterey street, halted.

An automobile, said by police to have been stolen by the two youths, was found near the scene of the shooting. Schlachter and Himmelrich, charged with being suspicious persons, were held for investigation by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg yesterday.

JOHN BOUMAN, 20

JOHN GLEASON, 17

2 CORAOPOLIS BOYS KILLED

Two Coraopolis youths, returning from the World Fair, were found dead in the yards of the New York Central Railroad at Toledo, O.

John Gleason, 17-year-old Coraopolis High School student, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Gleason, of 904 Fifth avenue, and John Bouma, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bouma, of 920 Watson street, apparently had been crushed by a load of pipe, according to Police Sergt. Charles Shafer, of Coraopolis.

Mrs. Bouma said she had received a postcard from her boy last Saturday, and Gleason had written a letter to his family. They were in Des Moines, visiting Bouma's grandmother, and said they were going to Chicago immediately to visit Bouma's uncle.

A special delivery came today from the Chicago relative expressing worry because the youths had not made their appearance.

FOUR HOLDUPS REPORTED HERE

More than $500 was the loot of bandits in four holdups in the Pittsburgh district early yesterday.

Herman Rumph, Negro night attendant of the Wilkins garage, Wilkins avenue and Wightman street, was lured from the garage by a "faked" call for service, while robbers entered and escaped with $191.

Harry Muncy, of Parkersburg, W. Va., reported the loss of jewelry valued at $140 from his automobile parked in the Chamber of Commerce garage.

A cash drawer in the Pittsburgh Warehouse and Van Company, 4073 Liberty avenue, was rifled of $158.

BUSINESS

Johnson Asks Banks To Get Capital From R. F. C.

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON, National Recovery Administrator, is asking the 14,000 licensed banks of the country to sell their preferred stock to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in order to secure increased capital which they can lend to industry to speed recovery.

This is made known today in a copyrighted article appearing in the September issue of the Bank Director.

When the national banks were authorized to issue preferred stock and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation was authorized to buy it, the natural assumption was that this new form of bank capital would be used primarily to assist in the reorganization of banks which lacked sufficient liquidity. Gen. Johnson's new proposal would put this form of bank financing to an entirely new use since all banks are asked to issue preferred stock.

* * *

Proposal Is Part Of Credit Drive

THE BANK PLAN is a part of a general administration drive to make bank credit more readily available to business. In the article, Gen. Johnson says:

"A situation that involves increased business for the banks is requisite for business recovery. If the banks that have emerged from the trials of depression are to make profits they must take them from the prospering business of the nation.

"If that business is to prosper, on the other hand, it must have banking accomodations comparable in volume to those of prosperous times."

* * *

More Liberal Policy Sought

IN THE ARTICLE Gen. Johnson asks the officers and directors of the entire banking system to take special measures to step up credit accommodations, not according to the present restricted standards, but according to the liberal policy of the prosperity year of 1926. He declared:

"In order that they may resume that liberal policy of a prosperity year with assurance of safety, I ask further that the approximately 14,000 banks now licensed as in sound condition become Double Eagle or government-partnered banks under the terms of preferred stock participation recently extended by Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation."

* * *

Safety of Banks Must Be Assured

GEN. JOHNSON stated that it is recognized that the demand for increased liquidity of deposits will not all at once be reduced to normal. The banks must for a time, at least, doubly assure their own positions and that of their depositors while providing the added credits needed. He declared:

"On this account the government has declared itself willing to provide, as compensating for the slowed-up accounts in the banks that have nevertheless maintained their soundness, the credit of the United States itself. I emphatically concur in the opinion of Mr. Jones that such partnership with the United States through its purchase of preferred stock in sound banks imparts to them added strength and prestige in peculiar degree; that in no other way can the complete confidence of the public be more quickly won than by partnership of such banks with the government as representing the combined credits of the nation.

"With their capital thus reinforced by outright government investment in approved banks they will be in position amply safeguarded to meet the rising activity of business under the Blue Eagle with a profitable increase in their volume of accommodations."

BANKS AGREE TO METALS PLAN

Success of the plan of reorganization of the Carnegie Metals Company is seen in the announcement that the bank creditors of the company have agreed to the plan to convert indebtedness owed to them into stock of the company. Such agreements have been signed and in the few cases where the creditors are restricted or closed banks, necessary official approval has been obtained, with only court certification yet required in connection with agreements by closed banks.

Stock is now in process of transfer to these banks, and the total debt to them of $473,377 will be converted into 200,000 shares of Carnegie Metals capital stock. In addition, 282,317 shares of stock will be issued to individuals to whom is owed $436,258 on notes and interest. With additional stock to be issued for working capital and that already outstanding, the total to be outstanding after the refinancing will be 1,070,460 shares.

TO BUY MINE

Some of the stock offered in the form of rights to stockholders was subscribed at $1.50 per share, and such funds are now held by the Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company to be paid out only for special purposes defined to stockholders at the time the offering was made. One of these purposes is to make the first payment on the outright purchase of the Bote mine, one of the properties in Mexico. Under the plan of purchase, this mine will become the property of the company in 1936. Heretofore, the properties have been operated under lease.

With the major portion of the floating debt cleared up, the company will still have $240,000 debentures outstanding, due October 1, 1934. While this maturity is more than a year off, committees have already been organized to provide for a plan to care for this maturity. It is expected that these debentures either will be extended or exchanged for stock and institutions, which are the largest holders, are said to be favorably disposed toward either one or the other of these plans.

RESERVE LARGE

S. A. Taylor, recently elected president of the company, in a report to stockholders, said he was able to determine that there is a large reserve of valuable ore in the Bote mine. Gold and silver assays, the present low labor costs in Mexico, and the rates of exchange should permit this mine to operate on a favorable basis, he said.

The Vetegrande mine is largely a silver mine, and is located about five miles from the Bote mine. The power plant for both these mines is located at the Bote mine and is not at present of sufficient size to operate both mines at their full capacity. Taylor has recommended that at the present the Bote mine be put into condition to operate at full capacity not only because of the power situation, but also because of the high gold content of the ore. He plans to allow the Vetegrande mine to remain idle for the present.

A tentative balance sheet, after giving effect to the proposed issuance of stock for working capital, shows cash of $509,945, total current assets of $549,534 and total current liabilities of $176,372.

Utility Rate Cuts Blocked By Court

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 28.—Supreme Court Justice Schenk today granted a temporary injunction restraining the Public Service Commission from enforcing utility rate reductions upon Consolidated Gas Company.

The court's restraining order is effective until after Supreme Court Justice Loughran decides a motion by the company to make the restraining order of Judge Schenck permanent.

Steelmakers Looking To Fall With Optimism

Orders for steel products at the present time are believed to be well under requirements to support the current production rates of leading units in the industry. For this reason the commentators are extremely conservative in their reviews of present conditions and about all that is put forth in the way of encouragement is that rising prices in September are expected to develop and again impart needed new stimulus to the lagging guying. On the other hand the heavy movement of ore, coal and coke, which is expanding at the time when steel output is contracting, at least suggests that steel makers are looking forward to the fall months with greater optimism than those less close to the industry and providing themselves with a backlog of raw materials for higher productive operations.

The fact that the upturn in total freight leadings in the week ended August 19 was in large part owing to the expansion in miscellaneous freight shipments undoubtedly accounted in part for the excellent traffic showing made by the New York Central, which serves the most highly industrialized sections of the country. In addition, the movement of coal and ore was heavier, and both items swell Central's regular freight movement. Nevertheless, the officials of the road must have done some very extensive traffic scouting and certainly the Central shared to an unusual extent in the increased business of the week. Total car loadings of all the carries for the week of August 19 gained 12,086 over the aggregate for the previous week. Figures issued by the New York Central showed that its traffic in the same week was about 5,400 cars over the week ended August 12. In other words the increase in Ceneral's traffic in the week of August 19 accounted for 45 per cent of the gain shown for the railroads of the country as a group.

Wall street is especially interested in the outcome of Chesapeake and Ohio Railway dividend meeting, scheduled for tomorrow in Cleveland. Some talk has been heard an increase in the present $2.50 annual rate, or declaration of an extra. Chesapeake Corporation directors meet for dividend action on the same day. Other important meetings for dividend action include South Porto Rico Sugar and Great Western Sugar.

The Trader in Barron's Weekly says: "Whether in all the smoke of inflationary rumors there is real fire it is futile to attempt to guess. The renewal of buying of government's by the Federal Reserve System on an unprecedented scale in this administration implies a distaste as yet for direct inflation. In any event, the authorities are still determined to make cash an undesirable asset, and, until, therefore, speculation gets decidedly out of hand or the cards of the new deal are shifted, the shrewdest operators and investment trust managers are likely to continue their preference for equities to any form of investment."

Net results of Atchison Railway System in July ran several hundred thousand dollars in excess of expectations. Revenues for the month were somewhat better than had been indicated by loadings figures, and continued close control was exercised over expenses, which still included cost of the company's increased rail-laying program, the major part of which, however, has now been completed. Net operating income of $2,836,275 showed a considerable increase over June net and fell only $173,459 short of net in July, 1932. Net income after charges and taxes was in excess of $1,800,000, as against around $1,100,000 in June and net income of $2,154,552 in July a year ago. Net figures are the best for any month since last November.

Strength in the tobacco shares, which all moved into higher ground, was interpreted as forcasting an increase in the wholesale price of standard brand cigarets to $6 a thousand from the prevailing $5.50 a thousand price. The additional 50 cents a thousand, announcement of which is expected next week, will find reflection in the last quarter earnings of the big four companies and the market action of the stock was obviously a discounting of better earnings. The price war, which started last February to drive the 10-cent cigarets from the volume market and to win back the large volume of smokers who were rolling their own cigarets, is at a successful end and standard brand cigarets, which have been selling as low in some places as 10 cents a package, will soon cost 13 cents or two for 25 cents, the price before the war started.

PATRONS ADD OWN CHECKS

Honesty is the best policy, and most people are honest if you give them a chance, according to H. G. Kalmer, manager of the Woodforth Cafe, newly located in the rooms formerly occupied by the Columbia Bank, Wood street and Fourth avenue. To prove it, he allowed patrons to make out their own checks during the opening week of the new restaurant. He said:

"I got the idea from a very successful restaurant in New York, which had weathered the competitive pressure of the depression through just such tactics. I think this is probably the first time it has ever been tried in Pittsburgh."

The opening of the Woodforth Cafe, in the heart of downtown Pittsburgh's financial section, gave jobs to from 35 to 40 men and women, under the NRA plan. Five different types of service are available in the new eating place: table and booth service, bar and counter and self-service, Mr. Kalmer said.

BUILDING WORK EXPANDS

Contracts awarded in the 37 eastern states for construction of all descriptions during the period from August 1 through August 15, 1933, totaled $56,243,600, according to F. W. Dodge Corporation. This figure is larger by 30 per cent than the total for the first half of July, but was about 12 per cent smaller than in the corresponding half of August, 1932. Public works and utilities awards during the first half of August totaled $27,209,800 and compared with only $18,940,800 for the entire month of July. It is this class of construction that is looked to, now, to bolster the improvement which has recently been manifested in private construction; hence, the current increase affords considerable encouragement.

Residential building awards during the initial half of August totaled $10,876,100 as against $9,998,300 for the corresponding period of 1932. Non-residential building awards from August 1 through August 15 totaled $18,157,700 as contrasted with $23,624,900 for the like 1932 period.

Report 749 Ships Built in a Year

WASHINGTON. — (INS.) — There are 749 steam motor, sail, unrigged and yachting vessels aggregating 193,313 gross tons built in American shipyards during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1933, according to A. J. Tyrer, assistant director of the Bureau of Navigation and Steamboat Inspection. All vessels of five net tons and over are included in this total.

Power Cuts Labor Needed on Farms

WASHINGTON. — (AP.) — Power and machinery on farms caused a reduction in labor requirements in wheat and corn production of more than 50 per cent in some localities in the last 30 years and a considerably higher percentage since 1840, says the Department of Agriculture.

Atchison Loadings Rise During Week

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—Revenue cars handled by the Atchison Railway System during the week ended August 26 totaled 22,993 and compared with 22,584 cars handled in the week preceding and 22,185 in the like period of 1932.

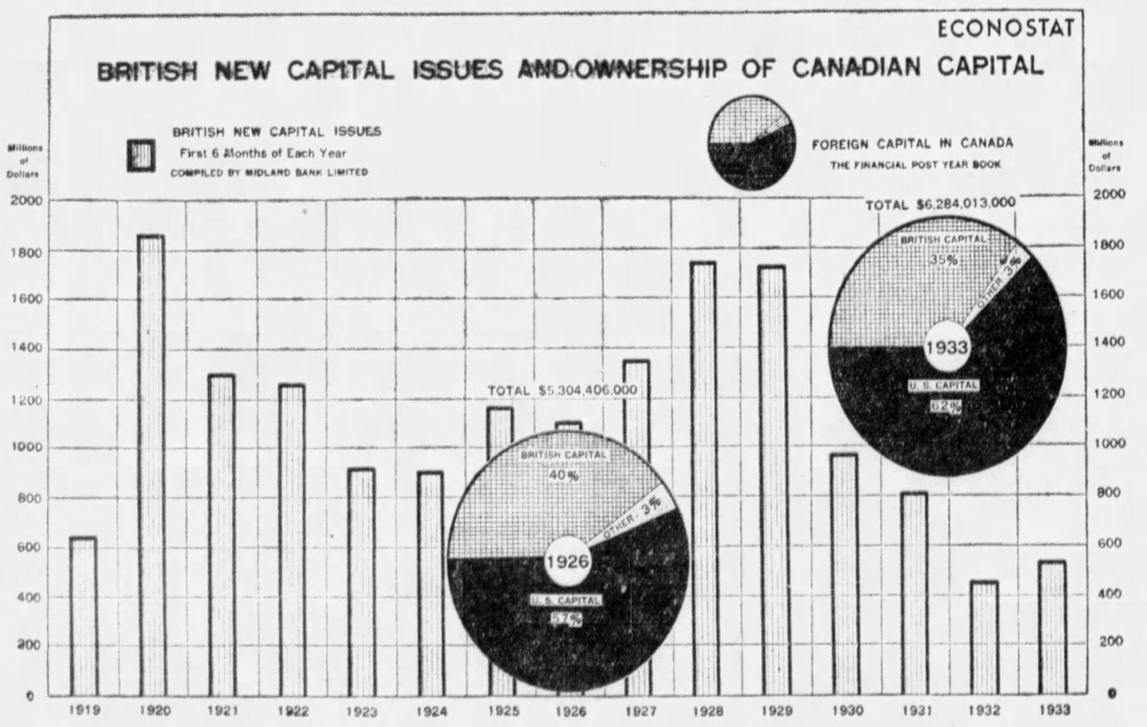
Decline in British New Capital Issues Reflects Conditions Throughout World



By JOSEPH STAGG LAWRENCE
Editor, The Econostat

The accompanying chart shows new capital issues for the first six months of each year in Great Britain as compiled by Midland Bank, Limited. The totals fluctuate in strict sympathy with the movement of business in other parts of the world.

We have the tremendous peak in 1920 and the post-war dip reaching a low point in 1924 from which recovery is made to the high level of 1928 and 1929. Since then there has been a decline in new capital issues reflecting in Great Britain, even as their diminishing total did in other parts of the world, the declining courage of capital.

The abandonment of gold in 1931, although it had a desirable effect upon the British balance of trade and eased the burden upon the Treasury, did not in any way relax the fears which capital had for the future. In this respect British capital behaved in orthodox fashion. It has been the general experience in the past that any tampering with the monetary unit tends to freeze the inclination of people with money to take chances.

Thus inflation in Great Britain insofar as it affected new capital acted according to form. The return for the first six months of 1933 reflects the recovery in world business which has been spectacularly evident in this country during the past four months.

The Ottawa pact signed last summer and the gentlemen's agreement effected at the London Conference among the leaders of the British family of nations coupled with the isolationist policy of the United States may restore to London the unchallenged preeminence in finance which it enjoyed before New York grasped the financial sceptre after the war.

At the end of July £15-million of Canadian 4 per cent 25-year sterling bonds were offered at par in London and met an excellent reception. It was hinted that this loan, the first of its kind since the bar imposed on foreign loans by London in 1932, was made as the price of Canadian adherence to the new Empire pact on currency.

The significance of this step is apparent from a consideration of the two circles in the above chart. They show the total foreign capital in Canada in 1926 and at the end of the first six months in 1933. The American stake in Canada increased absolutely from $3,023-million to $3,986-million and relatively from 57 per cent of the total to 62 per cent.

The questions now raised by students of finance are these: Will Canadian investments be refinanced entirely in London? Is this the first sign that New York is due to lose the financial leadership which it acquired after the war?

STOCK MARKET PRICE RANGE NARROW

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Timid financial markets failed to venture very far into the open today and prices, for the most part held to a rather narrow range.

Stocks, while dull and uncertain, were inclined to ignore a sharp rally of the dollar in foreign exchange dealings and an easier tone in grains and cotton. With sterling down 11 cents at one time, there was little selling pressure noticeable in the more active shares and some specialties even moved up a point or more. Wheat sagged around a cent a bushel at Chicago, but was fairly steady at Winnipeg. Foreign bonds followed European exchanges down and domestic categories were moderately irregular.

Automobile company shares, led by General Motors, received what little play there was and the majority recorded gains of fractions to more than a point. Small advances were held by United Aircraft, Aviation Corporation, du Pont, Standard Oil of California, Baltimore and Ohio, New York Central and Deere. Allied Chemical lost a point, Goodyear was off about as much and United States Steel, Case, Santa Fe, Western Union and many others were a bit lower. The alcohols were virtually unchanged.

COTTON PRICES TAKE DIP

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Cotton futures opened easy, 11 to 16 lower in response to disappointing Liverpool cables and the decline in foreign exchange. October, 9.62; December, 9.78; January, 9.84; March, 9.98; May, 10.16; July, 10.33.

The market worked off to 9.71c for December and 10.16c for May after the call, or about 14 to 18 points net lower, but offerings tapered off and the market rallied 4 or 5 points. Trading was quiet after the early offerings had been absorbed.

General business continued quiet. At midday December was quoted at 9.80c and May at 10.23c, representing a recovery of about 7 to 10 points from the lowest and leaving the market about 5 to 8 points below Saturday's close.

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 28.—Cotton, 12,000 bales, American Nil. Spot in fair demand; prices unchanged; quotations in pence. American strict good middling 6.39; good middling 6.09; strict middling 5.79; middling 5.67; strict low middling 5.49; low middling 5.29; strict good ordinary 5.09; good ordinary 4.79. Futures closed quiet. October 5.51; December 5.53; January 5.56; March 5.60; May 5.64; July 5.68.

Retail Food Prices Rise During Month

WASHINGTON Aug. 28—Retail food prices in the U. S. rose less than 2 per cent from July 15 to August 15. The Bureau of Labor statistics reports.

This compares with a rise of 8 per cent from June 15 to July 15.

Compared with the low month of April this year retail prices were 18 per cent higher.

DOLLAR SPURTS ON EXCHANGE

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Commercial buying combined with speculative short covering lifted the dollar sharply against the pound and the European gold currencies today with the rate advancing to 70.5 cents gold from 67.8 cents on Saturday.

Sterling dropped to $4.55, off 9 cents, reflecting heavy short selling and a further flight from the pound brought on the belief that the exchange equalization fund had ceased operations for the time being.

European gold currencies were sharply lower in favor of the dollar with francs off 13 points at 5.54 cents, belgas 40 points at 19.75 cents, Swiss francs 67 points at 27.28 cents and guilders 132 points at 57.08 cents.

Marks featured the restricted gold currencies with an 81 point drop at 33.74 cents, and lire and pesetas lost 17 and 23 points respectively.

Scandivanian exchanges dipped from 39 to 43 points each in sympathy with the pound and the Canadian dollar lost 3/8 cent at 95 13-16 cents.

STEEL PRICES RISE FORECAST

CLEVELAND, Aug. 27.—(AP.)—Noting a further reduction in steel works operations of three points last week, the magazine Steel said today that the downward swing is expected to collide with a general rise in prices sometime in September.

With seasonal influences operating in practically all consuming fields, the market still lacking the stimulus of higher prices, and the government's public works program maturing with disappointing slowness, it appears this trend will extend into September.

Some time in that month the downward swing is expected to collide with a general rise in prices, which steelmakers hope will arrest the decline.

Uncertainties over the NRA's effect on the steel industry are being dissipated. Steelmakers are filing prices which will apply under their code for the remainder of this quarter. It is indicated that on many heavy finished steel products no changes will be made from present official levels, though advances are impending in some of the lighter products.

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—Prices of pig iron here have been advanced 50 cents a ton, bringing current prices $2 above the low reached earlier this year. The price on foundry and malleable is now $17.50 a ton f. o. b. furnace. $18 a ton on Bessemer and $17 on basic openhearth pig iron.

Argentina Shuns Wheat Agreement

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Minister of Agriculture Duhau said today Argentina may not sign the international wheat price-raising agreement approved last week in London by 21 nations.

But, he declared, if the sacrifice imposed on Argentina promises to bring an equivalent benefit in the future, "the matter will be considered with the required serenity and urgency."

PANAMA HINTS ANGER AT U. S.

PANAMA, Republic of Panama, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—The Star and Herald declared today that all Panama "burns with deep resentment" because the United States is exercising "greater governmental functions than necessary" in the Canal Zone.

This statement was contained in an editorial discussing an article by William R. Castle, Jr., former American under-secretary of state, published yesterday in the New York Herald Tribune. In the article Mr. Castle said the United States could no more permit the canal to be endangered by revolution "in the surrounding countries" than it could "submit tamely to attack from overseas." The Star and Herald said:

"We quite agree that the United States may not permit the canal to be endangered by revolutions, but we cannot see how it could be so endangered by the surrounding countries.

"The only country surrounding the Panama Canal is the Republic of Panama. There is no danger of revolution in Panama. At least, there is no danger of a revolution of such magnitude as would involve the whole country and jeapardize the safety of the canal."

MORGUE VISITOR FINDS BROTHER

Gratifying her wish to view the bodies in the County Morgue, Miss Mary Fijas, of 1708 Sarah street, South Side, yesterday recognized that of her brother, George, 50, recluse cliff dweller on the hillside above the Point Bridge, according to deputy coroners.

Miss Fijas told morgue attaches she had last visited her brother a week ago, when she made an appointment to meet him at the Court House yesterday afternoon. After waiting some time, she felt a curious urge to visit the morgue, and the identification followed.

Fijas, known to his fellow dwellers on the steep hillside overlooking Carson street only as "George," collapsed and died in his lonely home last Monday, and was brought down on a stretcher with difficulty by police and deputy coroners.

His body has since awaited identification. He had died of apoplexy, according to the records at the morgue.

'NO ACCIDENTS,' DRIVE SLOGAN

Mayor John S. Herron has proclaimed a "No-Accident" Month" for September as the first feature in a three-month "Better Times Safety" drive. The Better Traffic Committee and the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council will conduct the drive.

Walter Rosenbaum, of the Better Traffice Committee, announced the following program for September:

September 3 to 9, Child Safety Week; September 5, Children's Traffic Safety Day; September 10 to 16, Motorists No-Accident Week; September 17 to 23, Pedestrian No-Accident Week; September 24, Traffic Safety Sunday, and September 24 to 30, Traffic Courtesy Week.

BAD-CHECK RING HUNTED HERE

Detectives today were trying to find what they described as a ring of bad-check racketeers.

Forged payroll checks on existent and non-existent Pittsburgh concerns are being passed on local merchants, according to Inspector of Detectives Frank R. Boyd.

Two companies whose names have been used by the forgers are Bell Telephone and Standard Oil.

Another check, cashed by an East Liberty accessory house, was drawn on the non-existent Liberty Chemical Company, the sleuths said.

'Flock' to End War Of 2 Rival Pastors

JONESBORO, Ark., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Rival claims of the Rev. Joe Jeffers and the Rev. Dale S. Crowley to the pastorate of the Jonesboro Baptist Tabernacle—now padlocked under a court order following a series of outbreaks there—have been referred to the congregation itself for a settlement under a ruling by Chancllor J. F. Gautney.

Meanwhile the tabernacle remains closed to avert a clash between the warring factions of the tabernacle.

Chicago Politician, Facing Prison, Dies

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—(INS.)—Timothy J. Crowe, widely known politician and former president of the Sanitary District, died today at his summer home at Williams Bay, Wis.

Crowe was fighting serving a one to five-year prison sentence as result of the alleged graft connected with the "whoopee era" of the Sanitary District.

PREMIERE -:- Gripping Story of Life Behind The Scenes at Hollywood -:- By ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

CHAPTER XL.

Cavanaugh was now on the way to join her. His youthful recuperation made him feel strong, elastic and full of energy.

The star of his luck was riding high.

At his own apartment he stopped for a shower and a change of clothes. His irresistible energy had given a whirlwind finish to the business with Mulrooney.

The detective had not been friendly but he had been square. Poletzki was in a cell and his brief confession of the Annette Santos murder in Mulrooneys' hands.

Twilight had fallen definitely when Cavanaugh reached Leni's home.

She had not known when to expect him because he had not phoned. Nevertheless, she had ordered dinner prepared for two against the chance of his coming.

Letters, telegrams, phone calls and visitors were all shunted aside. All were annoyances and nuisances.

She went into the dining room. The table with its glistening silverware and linen was big enough to seat a dozen. With the aid of Celeste and the butler, Leni removed the middle section and reduced the size by half.

She went into the kitchen and prowled into everything. Never before had she wanted to put on an apron and cook.

NEW KIND OF WOMAN

For years she had been so lonely and wretched—and now she was craving a pittance of the simple warmth of ordinary life.

And here, tonight, in this unfamiliar kitchen of her own, she felt herself glow and change into a new kind of woman. The love which she had enacted upon the screen—that artificial and unconvincing pretense—had miraculously awakened into reality and flooded her through with a new and golden form of life.

Cavanaugh's arrival was touched with a curious note of formality.

The butler met him at the door, took his name, admitted him as though he were a casual visitor and went to announce his presence to Leni.

The dazed anguish of her remote and recent past had become an ecstasy of very youthful excitement and gratitude. The years the locust had eaten were restored. The secret misery of her hidden self was all melted away. She was as fresh, as delighted, as a girl of 17, with her first real beau . . .

In the living room after dinner they stood together, eager for the tenderness and intimacy that had not been possible before the servants. Cavanaugh had told her his story as best he could in fragments between courses. Leni stretched out her hands to him and he looked deep into her eyes from which the tense look of suffering had utterly vanished.

WANTS TO MARRY

It was the most beautiful moment of her life. Now was the time he should ask her to marry him.

"How about your contract at the studio?" he said.

"It doesn't matter. I'll see Wingate tomorrow. There won't be too much trouble. It's not as though I were going to another company."

There was, she thought, a faint cloud on his smooth brow. Silence. A motor car passing softly out in the street. The ticking of his wrist watch. The faint exhalation of cigarets and soap . . .

"I want to marry you right away," he said. . .

Intuition told her he was going to add to the statement. She waited silently.

"The devil of it is," he continued reluctantly, "I am up against something I didn't expect. I—you—it's one of those things I don't like to talk about. It looks like we might have to wait . . . maybe for a long time . . ."

Just for an instant Cavanaugh avoided Leni's eye. In the somber depths of his averted gaze she saw something like shame. That which had been masterful and masculine seemed to drop away from him in ever so slight a degree.

"Why must we wait so long? What is wrong?" Leni said at last.

A dim tide of color crept into his cheeks.

"I—I can't afford to get married. I am broke. I'll have to make a killing first."

"Money—I have enough!" Leni said rapidly, a though she were dismissing a trifle. "You can have it all."

"I don't get it that way," Cavanaugh answered instantly.

S: looked at him uncomprehendingly. In the depth of her generous heart this seemed a very silly business. After all, her background was European and the touchiness of American men about money was a mystery.

MYSTERY TO LENI

Money to Leni Luneska was, in fact, a mystery. One either had it or one didn't. One lived in a palace—or starved. She was familiar with both extremes.

The motion pictures in the last year had been a golden flood of money. The cash flowed in and it flowed out.

The fact was that Leni actually had less in the bank and in bonds than she thought. The ice was thin, but she had forgotten the cold water beneath.

"I had plenty myself until today," Cavanaugh said, his voice a little off balance. "I've got old-fashioned ideas. When I marry I expect to support my wife."

Leni knew, suddenly, that this was what she wanted. A sustaining quality of which money was the symbol. It had to come from the man!

A vigorous impulse, automatic and over-mastering, hurled them into each other's arms and locked them tightly together. It was a positive intervention of a force stronger than human arguments.

At this moment Celeste was inspired to enter the room with the after dinner coffee. The sight she witnessed caused the cups and paraphernalia on the tray to clatter with her nervousness. There was no embarrassment in Leni's jubilant heart. Without emerging from the embrace, she loosened an out-flung arm and indicated a little table between two comfortable chairs.

"There, please!"

It was immeasurable, this sensation of security and authenticity.

"Darling," she said to Cavanaugh, "I feel so established!"

Being a woman she already felt it more than Cavanaugh. There was a sensation of contentment all through her body, her house, her clothes, her affairs. She whispered things to him which he could not understand in the language of Mittle-Europa—terms of endearment, that were sweet, sharp, pungent and aromatic.

"You see how idiotic it is about money?" she cried happily.

But Cavanaugh knew the lack of money was not a trifle to be brushed aside. He was a gambler, accustomed to the crest of the wave and occasionally, the trough as well.

With an ordinary woman the lack would have been not quite so important. It was different to take the responsibility for Leni Luneska—to drag her out of the most lucrative career a woman can know and take her money besides.

He made her sit down and listen to him.

"I'm not afraid that I can't take care of you," he said, "but this comes at the very time when I couldn't even give you a decent honeymoon. Yesterday I had $50,000 in the bank. I made a deal with Poletzki that I'd get him the best lawyers to be had. They happen to be Littlefield, Meyers, Yates and O'Bannon. In the old days they all took criminal practice, but they're corporation men now. The full battery cost $50,000—in advance."

A small man who had struggled for his pennies would have carried the check in a stout wallet, but it was characteristic of Cavanaugh that it was no more than a folded piece of paper in his vest pocket. He took it out and showed it to Leni.

"There it is—that's what we would have started on. I'm sending it to the law sharks in the morning."

There was a significance in this that Leni did not fail to understand. Although the details were not clear to her, the check was tangled up in that intangible quality that a man like Cavanaugh chose to consider his honor.

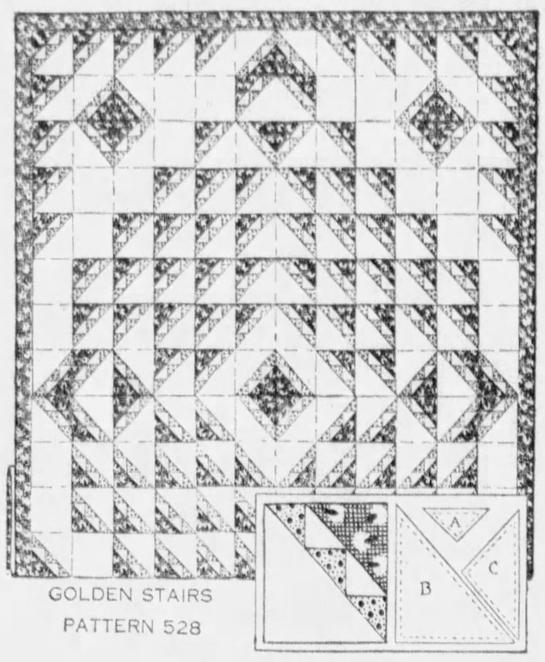
UNUSUAL QUILT



GOLDEN STAIRS

PATTERN 528

By LAURA WHEELER

The quiltmaker of olden times was not moved to make quilts only by the desire to be economical. Her quilts were a means of self-expression—they were a proof of her proficiency as a needlewoman—they were a means of comparing her ingenuity with that of her neighbors. So, some unusually ingenuous needlewoman decided to show her skill—not in making an intricate block, but rather in taking a simple block and making a striking pattern by an unusual arrangement of it, different from the usual rows of blocks. The Golden Stairs is such a quilt. Made of the simplest of blocks, as can be seen from the larger illustration of the single block and the pattern pieces that form it, the finished quilt is among the choicest in the beauty of its design.

Pattern 528 comes to you with complete, simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10c for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

The Junior Patrol Mail Box

What do you see, fellows?

That seems like a strange question, doesn't it? You probably think that you see almost everything that happens in sight. Well, it is a fact that almost no one sees everything that happens or even a small part of everything. It is a real art to see things.

For instance, when you are out in the woods and you hear the songs of birds and the scurrying of small animals, how many of them do you actually see up in the leaves and down in the grass and the bush? Probably, you don't see them very often. But a real woodsman or forest guide does—his eyes are trained to see quickly and sharply in the woods. He knows where to look.

Around Pittsburgh, for example, we have noticed that almost everyone who walks down the street almost never lifts their eyes to look above their heads. They stare almost straight ahead—often they do not even see good friends as they walk past them Towering over them, are beautiful buildings, but they never see above the first floor.

One of the best things a Junior Patrol member can learn to do is to be observant—that is, he should try to see MORE. It is possible for you to train your eyes to see quickly and sharply—you can be EAGLE EYED if you want to be. Look into a show window of the big stores for two minutes. Then turn away and see how many of the things in it you can write down and remember—including the colors of the articles. At first you will miss many, but as you train your eyes to move quickly and see accurately, you will soon find yourself seeing thousands of details that other people never notice. It's smell fun—it makes the whole world seem a thousand times more interesting.

Right in your own neighborhood you will see hundreds of things you never saw before in all the time you have lived there if you train yourself to be a good observer.

In our neighborhood there are shade trees along the street. Everyone soon noticed that they weren't looking well this summer. Finally someone who looked a little closer noticed that the leaves were full of holes and that some of them were turning brown. But it was quite a while before a boy who has sharper eyes came along and pointed out the little green worms that were eating under the leaves. No one had seen them before.

It is good for a fellow to learn to be curious. All the great inventors and the scientists wanted to know why there wasn't a better way of doing things—it was their curiosity that made them investigate the wonders of nature. There is something interesting about everything if you can only see it and find out about it. Keep trying until you find it.

We are still waiting for more members to send in drawings and photographs, especially photographs of Junior Patrol clubs helping others. Send them in, fellows.

Here's a letter today from Capt. Robert Hogg, of 2011 Metropolitan street. He writes:

"Here's my fourth letter that I am writing about our Blue Eagle Chapter. Everything seems to go fine with us. My members are all satisfied with this wonderful club. Our chapter mushball team has now won seven games and has had one reverse.

"One member has gone artist and is drawing cartoons. We are enclosing one of his drawings. It's Mickey Mouse encouraging and boosting the Junior Patrol. The artist is none other than our secretary, Andy Samoy."

We are glad to hear such good news, Robert. Andy's cartoon was fine, but you might tell him that we prefer to have pictures that don't have cartoon comic characters in them.

FEARLESS JOURNALISM

(Silverdale, Wash., Breeze.)

The party who stole our laundry off our front porch while we were away on a vacation certainly had their nerve. It consisted of a green shirt, a pair of underwear, bed sheet and pillow slip. They not only had their nerve, but probably needed it worse than we do. They were seen taking it and are known. Before issuing a search warrant, we have this to say: We go to bed about 10:30 each night. If we do not find our laundry on the porch some morning before next Monday, things are going to happen. This notice should be sufficient.

We were just hanging by our eyebrows and then some fellow comes along and steals all our clothes. What would you do?

This is J. Oswald McGlutt, patriot. Behind closed doors, he made a ringing appeal to fellow members of the Associated Dealers in Necessities urging them to immediately mark up prices 400 per cent. He was cheered to the echo when he told employers to forget their selfish interests, and provide their workers with an extra paper towel.

As the band concert swung along in the courtyard, Saturday afternoon, J. K. Hyder, Milford's sage and philosopher, getting near to 70, stood out and danced to the inspiring strains, as nimbly as a 16-year-old. The crowd was pleased with his exhibition of ryhthmic motion.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

It is a sobbing shame that, in this universal crusade toward the beauty goal, more women don't pull themselves up, stand properly, walk splendidly, sit gracefully. The body is then highly energized, muscles carry on, the figure retains its youthful outline. Women with shapes like cream puffs mourn about their fat tummies, when it isn't fat at all that makes the bulge but muscles that have gone slack through the habit of slumping. Posture is more important than complexion batik, slick coiffures and heavenly dry goods, but it is a subject that does not interest the great majority. Too bad.

When the plump, dumpling-like lady takes to shrugging her shoulders, it doesn't necessarily signify that she is being high-hatish, assuming the manners of the supercilious and haughty femme. She may be battling that arch enemy of middle age, adipose tissue, which has settled on the back of her neck and upper arms. Fat cells are all for the calm, tranquil life; muscle activity throws them into a state of despair. A good exercise for shoulder bumps; clasp hands tightly, lower them; take a deep breath, lift the torso, inflate the chest, at the same time stretching the arms with strong muscle effort.

Finger nails break easily when the hands come in daily contact with harsh soaps and flaying cleaning powders. Clipping increases brittleness, so keep faithfully to the company of the nail file. At night, apply cuticle cream. Or dip finger tips in hot mineral oil, cover each one with an absorbent cotton thimble. Diet deficiency may be responsible. Drink milk, eat lettuce.

There is a certain artistry in the use of the voice. It should carry melodious inflection, have expression. The droners and mumblers, whiners and shriekers will never make the beauty grade no matter how pulchritudinous they may be of face and figure.

John Government and Company

Seems that we have drifted into industrial socialism with no more fuss and feathers than a parboiled herring.

It ain't been so long since we heard that good old monopolistic skirmish cry, "Keep the government out of business."

Well, folks and Aunt Ella, the government slid into business as neat as a thumb in a pie.

Let's look back and see who was the Delphic oracle hollering that there should be no connection between the federal axle and the public wheel.

Was it you? Was it me? Was it the government? Write in "No" to all three questions and also mention that your grandparents lived to a ripe old age. We might as well sell a little insurance between lines.

The lads who keep the sounding board echoing with the aforementioned cry were the boys who had everything sewed up prettier than a tailor bird's nest.

When a racket becomes dignified by age and grows enough whiskers to decorate 16 directors it is an established industry. Nobody would think of squawking about it any more than they would think of straightening out hair pins. They get to imagine that it has always been that way.

There is nothing like dusty years to obscure your original intentions. But, by and by, some alert citizen starts hollering wolf. He knows he is being trimmed and it ain't by a barber. So he investigates and discovers that Capt. Kidd would still be alive if he had stayed at sea. He finds that private interests have a headlock on the public grapefruit.

Nobody can tell us that the government shouldn't own the power rights of Muscle Shoals, Niagara Falls, Bunker Hill or any other place you can reach by bicycle, mule or parachute.

The government thinks so too, and that's the reason for the incorporated wailing and sobbing by-products.

'Tis a sad spectacle to watch when your beautiful plum tree turns to prunes before your red-rimmed eyes.

Air Pollution

Notwithstanding That Pittsburgh Is Less Smoky, the Problem Is Far from Solved.

Dr. H. B. Meller, chief of the Bureau of Smoke Regulation, says that such improvement has been made in stoking and combustion in Pittsburgh's manufacturing plants that even after our industries are again operating in full we need have no fear of a return of the pall that gave us the name of "Smoky City."

So far as emission of smoke is concerned the chief offenders now are domestic heating plants, which are not subject to the same regulation that is applied to the industries. But Meller says progress is being made in abating the domestic smoke nuisance, too. The people are gradually being educated to use fuels and methods of stoking that result in a minimum of smoke.

This is gratifying; but the problem of air pollution has some other baffling aspects and is unfortunately still far from solution. For it has been found that even after the elimination of the visible smoke the atmosphere over Pittsburgh continues to show other elements of contamination which are supposedly the products of combustion. Even when smoke is not to be seen there is a steady precipitation of minute solid particles, which are believed to be injurious.

Not long before his death the late Dr. Charles B. Maits, director of public health, read a paper before the Allegheny County Medical Society which had an interesting bearing on this subject.

In 1912, he said, the solid matter precipitated from the air averaged 1,000 tons per square miles per year. In 1923, the year of our highest mortality rate from pneumonia, 374.4 deaths per 100,000 of population, the average precipitation was 1,400 tons per square mile. In 1930, when the death rate had dropped to 203.3 per 100,000 of population, a figure approximating that of 1912, the solids in the air dropped to 1,000 tons per square mile per year.

Dr. Maits pointed out further that the pneumonia mortality rate was highest in wards where there was railroad and industrial concentration and the greatest precipitation of solid matter from the air. It was found that at one point where the pneumonia rate was especially high there was a precipitation of 2,500 tons of solid matter per square mile, while in the Thirty-second, Twenty-ninth, Fourteenth and other wards where the pneumonia rate was very low, there was a precipitation as low as 250 tons per square mile per year.

If the fact that the pneumonia curves and the precipitation curves run parallel is more than a mere coincidence, Pittsburgh has more important reasons than mere esthetic considerations for getting rid of smoke, and should not rest content with the elimination of smoke, but strive for the elimination of invisible elements of contamination as well.

Rescue of Education

The Federal Government Is Giving Valuable Aid, But Something More Must Be Done.

In 33 states of the Union, some 80,000 teachers have been thrown into the ranks of the unemployed by the depression.

In these states, and especially in rural areas, hundreds of schools have been closed. In hundreds of other districts, school terms have been curtailed drastically.

The effect has been to deprive many thousands of children of the benefits of education, at the only period in their lives in which education is likely to be provided for them.

This deplorable condition has been made yet worse, from the social point of view, by a virtual cessation of schoolhouse construction everywhere in the country. To a large extent, states and localities have been unwilling or unable in the hard times even to keep existing school buildings in repair.

In short, education had reached an unprecedented crisis in America, the doleful consequences of which were truly unpredictable.

Educational organizations and leaders have pleaded frequently for official aid in their great emergency.

The Hearst newspapers, during the last year, have warned the public and its officials repeatedly that this emergency was swiftly developing into a long-lasting debacle.

The federal government, we have said, would have to come to the aid of education in order to save its own citizenship from progressive ignorance and incompetency and degradation.

The federal government has now done just that. Its emergency relief administration has authorized the use of relief funds to employ idle teachers temporarily, and thereby to enable the communities to reopen their school classes to their neglected children.

This, surely, is one of the most important decisions that the federal relief organization has made. In announcing the new policy Administrator Hopkins said:

"I consider this kind of relief work one of the most constructive applications of the principle of exchanging service to the community for public aid.

"I believe that the expenditure of work-relief funds in the interests of destitute teachers will result indirectly in great community benefit.

"In many rural communities the complete closing of schools means virtually the disintegration of community life for children. No one will ever be able to make up the loss to children who are deprived of education, for the plastic state of childhood mind comes but once."

The immediate plan, as described by Mr. Hopkins, is to provide such funds as will permit the teachers to "give their services on the basis of their relief needs." This policy, however, is not to "subsidize the school system in any community" nor is it to "relieve school officials of their responsibility."

Without disputing the soundness of the policy, and with nothing but commendation for what the federal government is now undertaking, the question remains, does the policy go far enough?

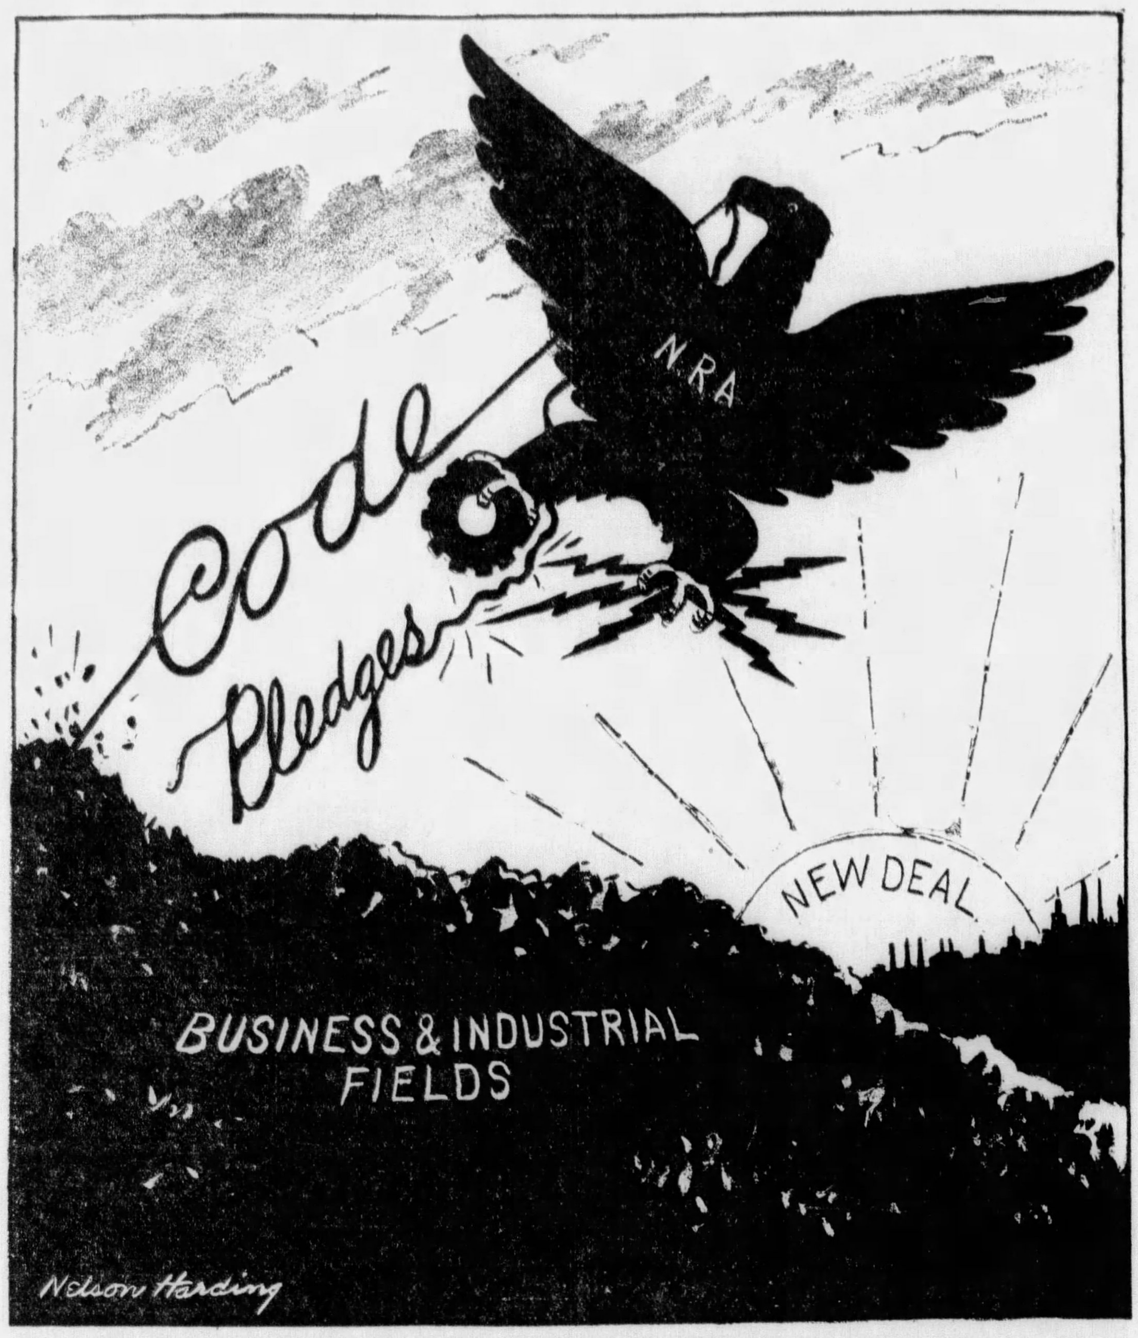
Unless something more is done the country is going to emerge from the depression with a serious shortage of school buildings and school facilities, which inevitably will prolong many of the difficulties now existing.

Congress has provided $3,300,000,000 of federal funds for public works projects.

The recent national conference on the financing of education urgently recommended that the federal public works administration allot some $300,000,000 of this fund for school construction to be carried on during the depression.

The federal government ought to give this recommendation careful consideration, both as a means for making employment and as a measure for restoring as rapidly as possible our progress and efficiency in education.

Early Bird, Don't Hurry the Worm! -:- By Nelson Harding



The early bird may well be prompt
In rising with the sun,
The job of gathering the worm
Goes best if soon begun.

But even early birds beware
Of roughness and of haste.
Go slow, Blue Eagle, lest your time
And effort go to waste.

How to Get Ride of a Wife

My description of "The Perfect Bore," entitled "How to Shake a Woman," has met with such heartfelt response that I am impelled to go farther and give some points on "how to get rid of a WIFE."

* * *

What's the use of spending all that money to send your wife to Reno and to pay her lawyers, when you can make her life so miserable that she'll cheerfully buy her own ticket or run off with another man?

* * *

Never, by any chance, get to your meals on time or come home when you promised. There is nothing a woman enjoys so much as hanging over a hot stove, on an empty stomach, for an hour or two. And then eating a dried-up dinner.

Never listen when she speaks, and always answer in grunts or monosyllables. Make her realize that she's a dumbbell and couldn't possibly say anything that would interest you.

* * *

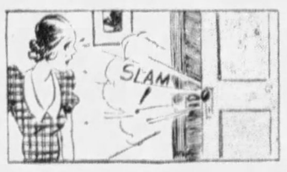
When she tries on her new hat, squint at her critically, turn down the corners of your mouth and ask her what she PAID for that "fool thing." You paid her the highest compliment that a man can pay a woman, when you married her—so why need you ever pay her another?

* * *

Always let her see your face light up with interest when a younger or prettier woman appears on the scene. This will inspire her to invite all the pretty girls she knows to her parties.

* * *

Don't bother to be polite to your wife, unless there is another woman around. A "gentleman" is a man who always takes off his hat in his wife's presence—if somebody else is looking.



When she gets sentimental or affectionate and tries to kiss you, twist in your chair, offer her the edge of your ear, and go right on reading your newspaper. It just thrills a woman to fondle a refrigerator and to pet a snow man!

* * *

Always start the day with a good grouch at breakfast and slam the front door behind you, so that it sounds just like a "damn." This will keep her weepy, worried and jumpy all day long.

* * *

It's SO easy to make a woman hate you or to drive her to look around for a "soul mate" when you have breakfast opposite each other every morning. But, if you follow all these simple rules—don't blame ME if she shoots you!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Breakfasting alone. And a letter from one of my stage favorites, Charlotte Walker. So out and came upon Natalie Gordon as dazzling as a billboard girl. Also waved to Wellington Cross and his dogs. Then to my book-seller and articled for Don Quixote in four volumes.

Working, and a learned visitor from Washington, saying the younger minds are uppermost, the older lords being out of favor. My wife came in enthused over Louis Browfield's "The Farm" and read passages from it of exquisite beauty. Albeit I can abide no one else reading to me.

Lucius Beebe called and carriaged me to Moneta's in Mulberry street for dinner and Papa Moneta joined us for coffee, in a gusto of highly philosophical wit. Later I drove to Billy DeBeck's costume party, but Arthur William Brown and Rube Goldberg had already done the judging. To bed late.

The two-story rococo temple that will house Texas Guinan's return to Sucker Land on Seventh avenue in the 50's will be outfitted with greater flashiness than any other night club has attained. Texas works best against a background of vivid color. Her own costumes give the idea. Backing for her new bow comes from what the wiseacres call "The Mob."

Drama at the Bide-a-Wee home for friendless pets and often tragedy. Pups run over by automobiles, dogs with mange, distemper, etc. A tenement child with a soiled fox terrier. She was tearful. "King barks so," she explained, "that the landlady says we will have to send him away. We would rather have him killed." King stood with his head on one side, pathetically unconscious of crime, so pleased with life, so near to death. "We can't kill him," explained the patient grey haired attendant, "but we will find him a good home." A face brightened, there was a convulsive hug and the girl stumbled away crying as though her heart would break. King looked after her wonderingly.

I never pass S. Jay Kaufman, a columnist himself once, that he does not pilot me to something unusual a few steps away—then prance right on. This morning it was a man in a Coney Island bus in Times Square—a fellow who was the image of the old-time banker of tradition, the sort who scraped apple parings in his top drawer. In dark broadcloth with boiled shirt, square-cut derby and Franz Joseph side whiskers he could have passed even in Wall street for the late George F. Baker.

Through boom time and depression John and Cristo have perhaps been Broadway's most successful head waiters. On Long Island or in the Roaring 40's their spot is packed. They have teamed together, off and on, since days at Reisenweber's. Steeped in the psychology of the wisest street, they hold out the hoop and the crowd leaps through. Their success at The Plantation, with Florence Mills, in the Winter Garden Building, is an example. For the first four weeks no one was admitted and the orchestra played to an empty room. Everybody who came was told there was no more room. Thousands were turned away. The fifth week they had police reserves. It made a huge fortune.

There is always brittle patter floating from booths at Lindy's. Two bright blondes puffing cigarets over coffee. A natty caneswinger strolling by, glanced approvingly, plopped impertinently between them, shifted a cigar and inquired: "How do you like my lack of veneer?"

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I don't know Roy Croft. But "Dorothy S." has sent me a little poem which he wrote, and I'm passing part of it along with my thanks to him. And presently you'll be clipping it, too, and sending it on again to someone else. For it's about that one thing which means most to all of us, does most for all of us.

LOVE

I love you,
Not only for what you are,
But for what I am
When I am with you.

I love you,
Not only for what
You have made of yourself,
But for what
You are making me.

I love you
For the part of me
That you bring out;
I love you
For putting your hand
Into my heaped-up heart
And passing over
All the foolish, weak things
That you can't help
Dimly seeing there,
And for drawing out
Into the light
All the beautiful belongings
That no one else had looked Quite far enough to find.

I love you because you
Are helping me to make,
Of the lumber of my life,
Not a tavern
But a temple;
Out of the works
Of my every day,
Not a reproach
But a song.
I love you
Because you have done
More than any creed
Could have done
To make me good.
And more than any fate
Could have done
To make me happy.
You have done it
Without a touch,
Without a word,
Without a sign.
You have done it
By being yourself.
Perhaps that is what
Being a friend means,
After all.

Roy Croft.

Just by being yourself—and believing.

Believing in the good; ignoring the bad.

Believing you can be as strong as you secretly think you can be; believing that you are as honest as you really want to be, and as clean and kind.

There's the whole lovely mystery of love. And if that mystery has happened just once to you in all your life—if just one person has given you such tenderness and tolerance and faith—then you are rich. No matter what happens afterwards; no matter what heartbreak or shame or poverty or distress you may know; if you have once been touched by love like that, you have known the best in life. And you can always be proud.

What would this poor, sad world be like, I wonder, if we could all pass on such faith? Not sermons. Not threats. No criticisms or punishments. Just FAITH? Would it heal you, and help you, and lift you out of any gutter, if someone believed in YOU like that? Then what would it do to the other fellow—I wonder.

The Human Side of the News

The Belief in Divining Rods Persists—Prof. Barrett's Opinion—Precious Manuscripts That Were Almost Lost.

By EDWIN C. HILL

STRANGE AND persistent are ancient beliefs. And sometimes with more in them than cold science can fathom—something just beyond the ken of mind.

There's the Abbe Mermet, in Paris, who has attracted world-wide attention by asserting that a great underground river of pure water flows at a depth of 1,600 feet near Paris. And adjacent to this subterranean river, the abbe asserts, is a vast storehouse of gas which could illuminate the French capital for generations. Now, the odd thing about this discovery is that Abbe Mermet made it with a divining rod, a forked twig of hazelwood.

The tip of the rod bending stubbornly toward the ground revealed to the French clergyman and scientist the presence of this vast, hitherto unsuspected store of good water . . . They come, such tales as this, from all over the world to attest to the fact that countless persons, even in this day of skeptical science, have faith in the power of the divining rod to expose the hidden places of water and previous metals.

The rod doesn't always perform its miracles. Many times the twig of hazel declines to make its mysterious genuflections. But many other times, without any question, it has pointed the way to hidden springs or riches. It's a very old belief.

The principal investigator of the magical rod was Prof. W. F. Barrett, of England, a scientist of distinction.

"Making liberal allowances for failures of which I have not heard," said Prof. Barrett, "I have no hesitation in saying that where fissure water exists, and it is very difficult to discover underground water, the divining rod finds it too often to make it merely a matter of luck."

* * *

The Technique Of the Dowser

THE "DOWSER," as they call the man who carries the forked twig, walks slowly over the ground in which the water is believed to be. He balances the rod lightly over his fingers, or holds it easily at the tips. With unaccountable violence it moves suddenly and resolutely, twisting or bending toward the ground, pointing to the hidden water. A curious fact is that the "dowsers" who use these hazel rods—though some dowsers prefer willow twigs or branches—are generally illiterate men engaged in some humble occupation.

Not so long ago a crowd of 300 looked on intently while a divining rod was being tested near Rochester, N. Y. And water was located in most of the 20 tests. All over the United States people are using divining rods or some contraption designed to "eavedrop" on nature's secrets. In Illinois a man attracted attention by exhibiting a magic ball which, he asserted, would reveal the presence of gold or silver ore underground, but was unaffected by the presence of coined money.

Down in Georgia a minister asked a countryman to give up his divining rod, arguing that the rod was a pagan device, contrary to the principles and practices of God-fearing folk.

"Reverend," said the countryman, "I might give up my old woman, or even my mule, but I ain't a-goin' to give up my divinin' rod. It'll make me rich someday."

A few months ago the dowsers of the world held an international conference in France. Two hundred men and women, equipped with magic rods of hazel, willow or holly, roamed the countryside, exclaiming excitedly every now and then: "There's water here!" or, "I'm standing above a cavern!" And all around, twigs were writhing and bending like the serpents of Moses and Aaron . . . Life would be dull without these little mysteries.

Narrow Escapes Of Manuscripts

A STROLL through the marvelous library of the celebrated collector of rare books and manuscripts, Dr. A. S. Rosenbach, revealed the fact that some of the most precious possessions of literature had a narrow escape from destruction before they ever reached printer or publisher. Sir Philip Gibbs relates that the most anguished hour of his life was when he discovered that he had left the manuscript of his first novel, "The Street of Adventure," in a railroad station.

The book had cost him so much nervous expenditure that the misfortune seemed like the death of his soul. He never would have had the courage to rewrite it. But luck was with him and the missing sheaf of papers was turned up.

Lord Tennyson, after writing "In Memoriam," left it behind when he moved from one flat to another. By a fortunate chance the manuscript was recovered by his friend, Coventry Patmore.

Thomas Carlyle, after completing the terrific labor of writing the first volume of his "French Revolution," destroyed all his notes and sent the manuscript of the book to John Stuart Mill. And Mill's housekeeper, looking for wastepaper with which to start a fire one winter morning, picked up a sheaf of papers from a table and used the sheets to get her fire going.

When Mill reported the loss, Carlyle, crusty old Scotchman that he was, felt physical agony, as if an iron hand was squeezing his heart. But he sat down and rewrote the book from end to end, and we will never know how the second labor compared with the first, great as the second turned out to be.

Joseph Conrad temporarily lost the manuscript of "Almayer's Folly" in a railroad station restaurant in Berlin, and nearly lost it again in South Africa.

Rudyard Kipling so greatly disliked his "Recessional" that he threw the finished poem into the wastebasket. Mrs. Kipling found the discarded sheets, retrieved them and sent them to the London Times. The editor of the Times sent to Mr. Kipling a blank check, requesting that the poet fill in any figure he pleased.

Still vexed over what he considered inferior work, Kipling returned the check with a curt note and was even angry, so it is said, with Mrs. Kipling for rescuing the poem from oblivion.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

When you take your late vacation this year are you going to be sensible?

Or will you return more tired than when you left home?

Perhaps your schedule is already made out and it includes of necessity long automobile trips and agreements to be with certain friends on a particular date.

Irrespective of what of interest en route you must pass up, you will try to keep to your schedule, as unfailingly as if your life depended upon it.

Can't you feel it in your bones even now, just how tense and keyed up you will be from day to day?

If conditions make it necessary for you to stay over anywhere, even a day longer than the allotted period you know you will be nervous and uneasy.

The possibility of delays will be more in your mind than pleasure.

Why not be sane in your plans this year?

Get away from definite set plans and wander as you please and not in a hurry.

See the important things wherever you go, and arrive home rested and better than when you started.

This plan will bring you much more joy than the one you have probably followed in the past.
